WEDELL BREAKS OTTAWA-MEXICO AIRPLANE MARK

His Average Speed of 250 M.P.H. Overcomes Fog and Wind Handicap.

Mexico City, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Jimmy Wedell, New Orleans speed pilot, set his plane down here this afternoon after having broken Jimmy Doolittle's record for the flight from Ottawa to Mexico City by way of Washington. He calculated his elapsed time as 11 hours 54 minutes. Doolittle made the flight just a year ago in 12 hours 36 minutes.

It was 4:49 p. m. (Central standard time) when he landed. According to Ottawa dispatches, this made his elapsed time 11 hours 59 minutes, five minutes more than the flier's own reckoning. Ottawa dispatches said he left there at 4:50 a. m. (Central standard time).

Pauses in Washington.

On the way down Wedell stopped at Washington and at Patterson, La., his home town. He said his average flight speed was about 250 miles an hour.

Between Ottawa and Washington the flier encountered headwinds all the way, as well as fog.

When he left Patterson he struck out across the Gulf of Mexico, hitting Mexico near Tampico. Then he came direct to the capital. He circled the landing field once at high speed and made a perfect landing.

Wedell announced he would return to the United States in two or three days. He said he is undecided about attempting to establish any more speed records on his return.

(Associated Press.)

James Wedell stopped in Washington fourteen minutes yesterday to refuel his low-winged monoplane on his Ottawa-to-Mexico City three-capital flight.

He reported satisfactory flying during the hour and 40 minutes it took him to come from the Canadian capital. After taking on 125 gallons of fuel he left at 7:59 a. m. (Eastern standard time) with Patterson, La., the next stop.

19 Are Drowned In Bus Accident

Chartered School Bus Falls Off Dock Returning From Convention.

Natchz, Miss., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Joseph Bowman, 27, of Moselle, Miss., and eighteen Negroes, of Waterproof, La., were drowned here tonight when a school bus, driven by Alma Ellzey, of Waterproof, crashed through the guard gates of the dock of the Royal Route Co. and went into the Mississippi River.

Ellzey, Duke Cooley, 18, of Waterproof, and a 14-year-old unidentified Negro girl were the only passengers rescued from the bus. The others were trapped in the submerged machine. Cooley was saved by James Bernard, Negro youth employed on the dock; Ellzey by Junior Scott, another dock employe, and the girl by George Lee Trindle, a white youth.

The bus had been chartered by its passengers to take them from Waterproof to a Negro Baptist convention at Meadville, Miss., and was on its return trip when the tragedy occurred.

Girl, 8, Kidnaped; Jersey Hunt Starts

Daughter of Grocer in Newark Is Abducted; Man Is Described.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Anna Kleinhandler, 8-year-old daughter of a grocer, was kidnaped tonight and a police teletype alarm containing a description of the supposed kidnaper was broadcast throughout the State.

The girl was standing on the street talking with Agnes Shipley, 14, Negro, when, police said they learned, a man engaged them in conversation. Without warning, the man took the girl away with him.

The teletype alarm described the kidnaper as a man about 33 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 165 pounds. It said he had several cars under his chin and wore a dark suit and dark felt hat.

TOKYO CLAIMS RIGHT TO PRESERVE PEACE

Saito Pleads for League to Understand Japan's "Responsibility."

Tokyo, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Japan has assumed the task of maintaining peace, not only in Manchuria but throughout the Far East, Viscount Makoto Saito, prime minister of Japan, declared today.

The 75-year-old prime minister, interviewed by a Japanese news service as he rested at his Hayama villa, pleaded for understanding by the League of Nations of what he termed "Japan's sincerity and fairness" in dealing with problems of the Orient.

"Direct Sino-Japanese negotiations concerning Manchuria, as recommended by the Lytton report, seem hopeless," he declared. "Unless China can become unified and form a responsible government, negotiations can achieve little.

"Because China is not unified, the responsibility for maintaining peace in Manchuria and the Far East is upon the shoulders of Japan," he continued. "I believe this will finally be recognized by the League of Nations."

Saito had nothing to say concerning Japan's attitude toward the league.

"My opinion has already been stated," he said. "I have nothing

Woman Falls; Lies Helpless 6 Hours

Plunges From Ladder in East Falls Church and Fractures Hip.

After lying helpless for six hours in the front yard of her home in East Falls Church, Va., yesterday, Mrs. Blanche Lockwood, 40, was brought to Georgetown Hospital suffering from severe injuries suffered when she plunged to the ground from a high ladder.

Mrs. Lockwood told physicians she was cleaning leaves from the roof of the front porch. Shortly after she started to work, about 10 a. m., Mrs. Lockwood said the ladder suddenly gave way, throwing her to the ground.

Unable to summon aid, the woman lay semiconscious until her plight was discovered by a neighbor, Mrs. Inez Stalcut, about 4 p. m. She was admitted to the hospital when it was found she suffered a fractured right hip, severe injuries to her right shoulder and possible internal injuries.

HOOVER, BACK, DECIDES UPON ACTIVE DRIVE

Will Make Fourth Trip to Midwest and May Go to Coast.

ADDRESS IN DETROIT PRAISED BY SCORES

President Follows Advice of Ford to Campaign Up to Election.

(Associated Press.)

Definitely decided upon an active campaign up to November's election eve, President Hoover yesterday returned to the White House to find scores of telegrams congratulating him upon his third political swing into the Midwest.

Henry Ford accompanied the Chief Executive on his return journey from Detroit and urged him to carry his campaign for a fourth time into the interior.

As a result of this counsel and similar advice from a number of his political lieutenants, the President has tentatively decided upon appearances in Indianapolis and Chicago, possibly this week.

May Be Postponed.

Such plans as have been made, however, are so arranged that if Mr. Hoover can not complete the speech he will deliver in New York's Madison Square Garden a week from tonight his fourth Midwestern swing can be postponed until later. He may, however, leave the Capital Thursday night for Indianapolis and go on to Chicago, returning here again before going to New York.

The President has not definitely decided against a transcontinental tour that would place him in his Palo Alto, Calif., home by voting time. Should he make up his mind to such a trip he would begin it soon after his New York speech.

Mr. Hoover's return from Detroit Saturday night and yesterday proved a swift but uneventful journey. His special train made a few stops, including York, Pa., where a crowd awaited him on the station platform.

Presidential Party.

Ford and Mrs. Ford, Senator Glenn, of Illinois, with his daughter, Mary Elizabeth; Postmaster General Brown and Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, made up the presidential party on the return trip.

The automobile manufacturer, who sat close to the President during his last night's speech in Detroit's Olympia arena, had his special car hooked onto the Hoover train. He conferred often with the President during the day, as did Glenn.

After a brief stop at the White House yesterday afternoon, and an

Germans' Largest Nudist Organization Outlawed

Berlin, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The Prussian Ministry of Education today outlawed one of Germany's oldest and largest nudist organizations — the school headed by Adolf Koch. It has 4,300 members.

The ministry, in banning the school, said that it has gradually lost its gymnastic character and is encroaching on the province of medical treatment. Koch, challenging the government's accusation of immorality, is preparing an appeal.

Bishop Helps to Force Closed Church's Door

Dr. Manning Acts in Dispute With Vestry Over Segregation.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Bishop William T. Manning helped force an entrance into All Souls' Protestant Episcopal Church, which had been closed to its rector, and delivered a sermon today declaring it the "plain duty" of the church "to minister to the people of the community, white and colored alike."

Despite the statement of some of the vestrymen that any one who attempted to enter the church today might be arrested for trespass, Bishop Manning appeared at the appointed time, ordered a locksmith to pry off locks and force open doors, and assisted the Rev. Rollin Dodd, rector, in holding services amid scaffolding, shavings and carpenters' canvas.

The church had been closed by the vestrymen and the rector deprived of his keys. Mr. Dodd said the action was taken because he refused to hold separate services for Negroes and whites. The majority of the vestrymen said it was because of the necessity of repairs.

Bishop Manning declared in his sermon that the action of the vestrymen was "apparently with the purpose of preventing the rector from continuing this policy of admitting colored people to the services."

"This action," he said, "is not only uncanonical and illegal, it is contrary to the central principles of our religion."

The sermon was delivered under strange circumstances. A police sergeant and ten patrolmen stood outside. Bishop Manning, the rector and a locksmith had made a tour of the church, unlocking and forcing open doors and inspecting the building, which the vestrymen said was "dangerous."

Shavings littered the floor and scaffolding cluttered the walls and ceiling. The chancel and sanctuary as well as the lectern were obstructed. The rector and the bishop had to stand in the aisle, about a third of the way from the front. The organ was screened with a plasterer's canvas, so the choir sang without accompaniment.

ROOSEVELT CHEERED BY GEORGIA CROWDS

Cites Hope for Return of Prosperity to Every Class of Citizen.

Atlanta, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt was welcomed back to his "other home" today by cheering crowds that greeted him in a 150-mile drive through Georgia after he had told Atlantans he would not discuss politics since "I don't have to talk politics in Georgia."

Returning here tonight after a visit to Warm Springs, Mr. Roosevelt said any discussion of Cabinet appointments was "highly premature" when asked in a press conference about a report he would create a new Cabinet post for Alfred E. Smith.

He called his visit to the South in the role of a presidential candidate "another breaking of precedent." Few Democratic presidential candidates in the past have visited this section.

His plans for the remainder of the

2 Students and Girl Dead in Auto Crash

Car Returning From Navy-Princeton Game Hits Trailer of Truck.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Two of a party of football week-enders were killed, a third was fatally injured, and two others were hurt early today as their automobile collided with the trailer of a truck parked on the side of the New Brunswick pike near here.

William A. Dallmeyer, a Princeton undergraduate of the class of 1934, from Jefferson City, Mo., and Julia Waters, of Bayshore, N. Y., were killed. W. Z. Miller an undergraduate at Brown University, died after being taken to the Princeton Hospital.

LANKFORD IS WAGING STRONG HOUSE FIGHT

Is Unusually Active, Despite Possibility of His Defeat by Darden.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Virginia Democrats are particularly happy over the prospect of the defeat of Representative Menalcus Lankford, of Norfolk, the only Republican from Virginia in the House of Representatives.

The happiness of his opponents is enhanced by the fact that until the State redistricting law was set aside by the Virginia Court of Appeals Mr. Lankford had an excellent chance of being reelected for his third term, but running from the State at large he not only has to overcome the strength of Colgate W. Darden, jr., his Second District opponent, but the preponderant Democratic strength of the State as a whole.

Despite his prospective defeat, how-

Man Kills Parents, 2 Sisters and Self

Coloradan Believed Goaded Into Desperation by Father's Illness.

Colorado Springs, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Theodore Gilberg, 25, a shoe repairman, in what authorities termed a sudden fit of insanity, shot and killed his father, mother and two sisters and then committed suicide at his home here today.

The youth killed his father, Frank Gilberg, 65, and his two sisters, Mrs. Eaada Stauffer, 30, and Bertha Gilberg, 13, with a rifle as they slept, the latter two dying instantly and the father two hours later. Gilberg shot his mother as she was preparing breakfast, the bullet going through her head. He then took his money and insurance papers to a neighbor and told them he was going away, but returned home and killed himself.

Police said the youth had been goaded into desperation by his ill and partly mentally unbalanced father.

Four Washingtonians Take Part in Madrid Bullfight

Thousands in Huge Arena Cheer Americans, Members of Delegation to Radio-Telegraph Conference; Amateurs Prove Very Adept at Art.

Four members of the American delegation to the international radio-telegraph conference in Madrid, including two stenographers from the State Department, staged a bullfight there to the cheers and applause of thousands of "aficionadas," it became known here from cable advices yesterday.

Virginia W. Collins, of 3117 Thirteenth street northwest, and Marguerite R. Roddy, of the stenographic section of the State Department, were the girl assistants in the spectacle. R. Allen Haden, assistant secretary of the conference, of 2712 Wisconsin avenue northwest, and Leon Dostert, instructor in French at Georgetown University, were the matadors. The final death thrust was omitted, however.

With finesse and dispatch, the amateur bullfighters put on a complete performance that brought cries of "Vivan los Americanos!" from the thousands in the arena.

The original idea for the spectacle arose with Allen Haden, who had learned the art of bullfighting when he was a student in the Mont d'Or School in Barcelona. There the boys usually spent their recesses baiting scores of young bulls who were being bred for the corridas (bullfights). M. Dostert had also some experience in the art of manipulating the mantel-eta in bullfights in the southern part of France. However, both Miss Collins and Miss Roddy were evidently the real amateurs, as they were both inexperienced at the delicate art.

Miss Collins was born in Norfolk, and was educated at St. Joseph's College, Emmitsburg, Md., while Miss Roddy was born in North Platte, Nebr., and went with the Forbes commission to Haiti in 1930.

Miss Collins and Miss Roddy were the bright stars as they poised on their toes to await the onrush of the bull and then lanced the bandarillas into his neck and danced away.

Mr. Haden executed a perfect "veronica" with his cape before the charging bull, and Mr. Dostert executed several maneuvers that would have done credit to the celebrated Belmonte.

ON THE AIR TONIGHT

A new feature, "The Postilion," is offered radio listeners tonight over Station WMAL at 10 o'clock by The Washington Post.

"The Postilion," a 15-minute period of news while it is news, will be on the air seven nights each week at the same hour. It will offer stories and features from everywhere, gathered by the local staff of The Post and the far-reaching resources of the Associated Press.

Briefly "The Postilion" will summarize the events of the night up to the minute of going on the air and even during the broadcast period. Keep up with the happenings of the world through "The Postilion" each night and through The Washington Post each morning.

No other morning newspaper can offer such service because no other morning newspaper carries Associated Press dispatches.

MUSSOLINI ASKS AMERICA TO CUT EUROPE'S DEBT

500,000 HEAR LEAGUE CALLED INEFFECTIVE

One Remark Interpreted as War Challenge to France.

Turin, Italy, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Premier Benito Mussolini appealed to the United States to cancel or reduce the European war debts in an open-air address today, carried by loud-speakers to about a half million Italians jammed in three public squares of Turin.

He declared Germany's armament parity demand was "fully justified," and deplored what he termed the ineffectiveness of the League of Nations, but said Italy would remain a members. He also argued against the dole and money inflation.

Without mentioning France by name, he made what was interpreted by the crowd as a challenge to that nation—whose frontier is only 40 miles west of here—in his statement that "Turin has never been afraid of war."

Appeals to U. S.

Elaborate precautions were taken for protection of the premier in his first visit in nine years to this industrial center, long the hot-bed of anti-Facism. He made a promise to Turin citizens that "hereafter contacts between us will be close and frequent."

The premier appealed to the United States in the matter of what he described as "the ship of debts" and said, "I hope the people of the great starred State will not repel this vessel which carries a cargo of hope and anxiety of so many people."

Shouts of "no" came from the crowd.

"Would that your 'No!' could be heard on the other side of the ocean and touch the heart of that great people," the premier added.

Coatless and Bareheaded.

Referring to his speech last year in Naples, he said:

"I spoke then of the tragic bookkeeping of the war and in two articles in Popolo D'Italia, which are not forgotten, affirmed that it was time to pass the sponge over this bookkeeping."

Wearing the black shirt of Fascism and coatless and bareheaded, the Duce appeared on a balcony above the great Castello Square, 500,000 square feet, promptly at 10 a. m. This and two other large squares of about equal area were jammed. On

America Asks Turkey To Refuse Insull Visa

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—It was unofficially learned today that the American Embassy asked the Turkish government to refuse a visa for Samuel Insull, utilities magnate wanted in Chicago on embezzlement charges. He is in Greece.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull left here this morning on an excursion to Corinth. Two plain clothes policemen accompanied him. He was expected to return here.

Two Bind, Gag and Lock Up Oil Manager; Flee With $150

Attendant Lies Helpless Nearly Half Hour, But Finally Batters Down Door; Armed Pair Linked in Other Robberies of Past Week.

Trussed hand and foot with several lengths of fabric used on the inside of automobile tires, gagged with a dirty rag and thrown into a small washroom, the door of which was bolted from the outside, F. Murphy, night manager of a gasoline station at Sixth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, lay helpless for nearly half an hour last night, while two bandits escaped with the station's entire week-end receipts.

It was almost 11 o'clock, Murphy said, when two colored men walked into his office. After a brief conversation, one of them produced a revolver, he declared, and in a husky voice demanded:

"Let's have it—don't stall!"

While one of the men covered him with the gun, Murphy told police, the other indicated a small safe at the end of the room, and ordered him to open it. Murphy said he complied and the second man bent over and scooped out its contents—between $150 and $200.

After pocketing the money, Murphy related, the man with the gun stood near the door as a lookout, while his companion ordered the manager to lie on the floor.

A length of fabric was procured and Murphy was bound hand and foot. An oily rag was stuffed into his mouth, held in place by a handkerchief. One of the men, Murphy said, then dragged him into a small washroom, threw him on the floor and departed with a warning "not to try anything."

Murphy said the washroom door was locked from the outside with a padlock. It was almost half an hour before he was able to batter down the door with his feet.

After working the gag from his mouth, Murphy called for aid. A small colored boy responded and cut his bonds.

Murphy said the bandits apparently had no automobile. It is believed they are the ones responsible for numerous other gas station robberies during the past week.

WIFE OF COL. INGLIS REVEALS HIS SUICIDE

Shot Her and Then Ended Own Life, She Says; Prominent Seattle Republican.

Seattle, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A woman who identified herself as the wife of Col. William M. Inglis, 58, World War veteran prominent in Republican State politics, declared today he had shot her and then killed himself in his apartment last night because he was "dissatisfied" with life.

The woman, known as Miss Mary C. Nash, a Government employe, was at a hospital in a critical condition with two bullet wounds. The body of Col. Inglis was found sprawled across a bed last night, with a bullet wound in the head.

Declaring she and Col. Inglis had been married recently in Portland, but had kept their wedding secret because she was employed by Col. Inglis in the United States Veterans' Bureau, she said Col. Inglis yesterday morning had declared he was "dissatisfied with life," and remarked to her:

"I can't go on this way."

Col. Inglis had been drinking heavily several days, she said, and last night, without warning, he fired twice at her and she sank to the floor. Then, she said, he turned the

Adrift Two Days, 3 Men Are Saved

British Naval Officers on Small Boat Caught in North Sea Storm.

Antwerp, Belgium, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—After being tossed helplessly for 2½ days in a small sailing boat during a storm on the North Sea, three British naval officers finally were rescued by the steamer Romanby, which brought them here today.

The trio, Lieuts. Colin McMullen, C. E. Keys and G. F. Blaxland, left Havre, France, Wednesday in the Little Owl, accompanied by a yacht, The Wallop.

A violent storm separated the boats. The Wallop being rescued while the Little Owl lost its masts and sails, as well as the officers' instruments, in the tempest. The sturdy shell, however, rode out the gale.

On Saturday the sea was comparatively calm and the three men sighted the Romanby, bound for Antwerp. They fired the last cartridges in a

HUNGER MARCH NEARS LONDON, DEFYING STORM

GALE-BOUND WOMEN HALT AT BLETCHLEY

Others Housed in Church at Chatham; Hundreds Are in Processions.

London, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Whipped by boisterous gales and drenched by incessant rain, hundreds of hunger marchers trudged along the roads of England today on the way to London.

Fifty sympathetic Oxford undergraduates tried to make the week-end comfortable for 230 of the marchers from Lancashire, who arrived last night. They were given billets and a dozen doctors treated them for wounds suffered when they clashed Friday with the authorities at Stratford-on-Avon.

Today was the first day of rest these men had enjoyed since leaving Lancashire nineteen days ago. Members of the University Labor Club and undergraduates not connected with any political organization worked in field kitchens all day long while the marchers overhauled their kits before blazing fires.

Women Are Stormbound.

Reinforced by a group of Oxford unemployed, the Lancashire contingent will start tomorrow for High Wycombe.

Thirty-eight women marchers, who had expected this evening to reach Leighton Buzzard from Wolverton, were stormbound at Bletchley. Only two of this group reached their objective. The others, after plodding several hours through torrential rain, halted at Blechley and were given refuge in the workhouse. They will push on to Luton tomorrow.

Another contingent arrived tonight at Braintree, Essex, after a march from Colchester. The Braintree Labor Club distributed dry clothes among them and a local cooperative society provided food and some cash. Twenty Braintree men will join the parade in the morning, and when this group reaches London Thursday it is expected to number 300.

Are Housed in Church.

The Unitarian Church at Chatham tonight looked like a wartime barracks. About 150 marchers from Dover and Canterbury and other parts of Kent were housed there.

The vestry was used as a quartermaster's store for issuing clothing. The marchers slept on the church floor under blankets furnished by residents of the city.

A column from Yorkshire, numbering 150, bivouacked at Bedford after nine hours of trudging through the downpour. They were singing cheerily when they arrived. Quarters in public schools were made available to them and before blazing fires they dried their soaking clothing.

Man Drowned in Battle To Land Fighting Fish

Seattle, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Loser of a life-and-death struggle with a fish, the body of Jack Wenta, 48, was brought to the surface of Elliott Bay today entangled in his own fishing line.

DETROIT DISTURBERS HELD ON U.S. CHARGE

Secret Service Investigates Quartet Seized at Arrival of President.

Detroit, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Four men arrested last night when, police said, they were exhorting a crowd gathered opposite the Fort Street Union Station for President Hoover's arrival, were held today for investigation tomorrow by U. S. Secret Service agents.

The men identified themselves as Walter Ecker, 32; William Reynolds, 28; William Gaetz, 21, and Harry Silverstein, 19. Police said they were held on charges of "violating the U. S. code," but that the violation charged could not be told until Federal agents have completed their investigation.

Ecker, police said, was a member of the Bonus Expeditionary Force and was arrested during a demonstration in Washington. Reynolds was named last spring as Communist candidate for Governor of Michigan and, police said, was involved in the demonstration at the Ford Motor Co. plant last March in which four persons were killed. Gaetz, police said, participated in an unemployment demonstration at the Briggs Manufacturing Co. plant a few months ago.

The group which officers said the men were exhorting last night was openly antagonistic to the President. Placards were displayed attacking the President and Gov. Wilber M. Brucker of Michigan, and there was a chorus of "boos" when the President appeared.

Registration Off In New York Cities

Eighteen Upstate Municipalities Report Slight Drop From 1928.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Although registration in New York City reached a record high level this year, total registration in eighteen up-State cities which had reported tonight ran slightly below the 1928 registration figures.

Registration in the group of up-State cities totaled 754,647, compared to 758,980 in the previous presidential election year, an Associated Press survey showed. Only Albany, Rochester and Norwich showed gains over 1928 registration. New York City reported a total of 2,334,131 voters registered in its five counties. This compared to 2,029,618 in 1928.

It will be about two weeks before all county registration figures will be complete and the rural registration totals officially announced.

Drys' Leader Promoting Law Preserving Groups

Boston, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton, prominent prohibition leader, has decided to decline an invitation to run for lieutenant governor on stickers as a prohibition candidate, and instead will devote her time to creation of "law preservation groups," in all the States of the Nation.

Asserting she believed the Prohibition party's efforts would be more effectively spent in promoting national candidates, she said in a statement announcing her decision, that the law preservation candidates would support dry candidates of the major parties and set up tickets of their own where the major party candidates were not acceptable.

Hitler Again Predicts He Will Head Germany

Berlin, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Adolf Hitler, in one of several campaign addresses today by party leaders, again asserted he would take nothing less than full leadership of the German government after the Reichstag elections on November 6.

The National Socialist leader, speaking at Zwickau, declared he had refused to cooperate with Chancellor von Papen on August 13 because he knew "Von Papen's doom was sealed." Prior to the dissolution in September of the last Reichstag, Hitler had demanded the chancellorship for himself, and refused to take any lesser post.

Inventor of Fish Lung Under Water Half Hour

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A crowd of more than 10,000 persons, including government authorities, saw Adrian Alvarez, inventor of the "fish lung," submerge himself for half an hour in a park pond today in the cone-like tank he calls by that name.

The former railroad mechanic, whose invention is supposed to extract oxygen from water by a process similar to that of fish gills, returned to the surface earlier than was expected. He said a loose nut had caused a leakage.

Coroner's deputies said Col. Inglis had been killed by a bullet which entered his head behind the right ear. Deputy Coroner Cary Keyes declined to render an opinion until further study of the case.

Aside from the bullet wound, police said, the body bore bloody finger marks on the throat and was marked by flesh bruises.

Col. Inglis and the woman had been living together at the apartment the last three years as man and wife, J. A. Mikel, the apartment manager, told authorities. Detective Capt. Ernest Yorts said:

"We are not prepared to say who fired the revolver we found on the bed beside Col. Inglis."

Col. Inglis went overseas in command of the 161st Infantry, but in France was assigned to the command of the 109th Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division, which was active in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. After the Armistice he was assigned to the American Army of Occupation.

He organized the Old Seattle Athletic Club, and following his return was a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator. Last June, he was elected to the presidency of the United Veterans of the World War.

His wife, Anne, died in Renton three years ago.

Late today a check of Multnomah County marriage records at Portland from January, 1930, to date, the county clerk said, showed no license had been issued to any Col. Inglis or Mary Nash in that time.

Wife of Roosevelt, on Flying Visit, Declines to Prophesy

Unwilling to Predict Outcome of Election on Grounds She Is Not Politician; Stops Off Here Few Minutes on Way to New York.

"I'm not a politician," declared Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic presidential nominee, yesterday, "and therefore I couldn't make any prophecy as to the outcome of the November election."

This was Mrs. Roosevelt's answer to queries of an enthusiastic group which greeted her yesterday afternoon when she stopped off ten minutes at Hoover Field as she was being flown via Eastern Airport from Warm Springs, Ga., to New York.

A large delegation of Washington Democrats, including a group from the Young Democratic Club, greeted Mrs. Roosevelt and asked her and Mr. Roosevelt to be patrons of the Democratic victory ball at the Mayflower, November 4. Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of the Montana senator, presented Mrs. Roosevelt with a corsage, and Mrs. Arthur Charendon Smith presented a bouquet. Mrs. Roosevelt was greeted at Newark by a delegation of Democrats upon completion of her trip.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—New York's most famous school teacher arrived home tonight by airplane, to be on hand to meet her classes at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

She left the special train of her husband, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, at Marietta, Ga., at 6:30 this morning, drove some 20 miles, boarded an Eastern Air Transport passenger plane at Atlanta at 8 a. m., and arrived at Newark airport after dark.

She spent the day knitting, except during stops, when she was greeted by delegations of Democrats. Crowds running from 50 to 2,000 had gathered at the eight airports where stops were made—Greenville, Spartanburg and Charlotte, S. C.; Greensboro, N. C.; Richmond, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

A group of Newark Democratic leaders and a crowd of about 200 awaited her at Newark airport. After an informal reception she drove to her home in New York in a car provided by the airline.

She telephoned Gus Gennerich, the governor's bodyguard, whose mother died Friday, offering to go over to his home tonight if there was anything to do. She will attend the funeral tomorrow afternoon.

A late dinner and her secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson, with a portfolio full of telegrams and letters, awaited her on her arrival home.

"Bring them on—all of them," she directed. "Let's get caught up tonight, if we can.

GOV. ROOSEVELT IS HAILED BY CROWDS OF GEORGIANS

campaign are indefinite, Mr. Roosevelt said, except for speeches that have already been arranged for the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, and Madison Square Garden in New York, in both of which he will appear on the same platform with Alfred E. Smith.

After the press conference Mr. Roosevelt began work on plans for tomorrow, which include a parade, conferences with the Governors of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, South Carolina and Tennessee and various Democratic leaders of the five States, and an address tomorrow night.

The presidential nominee told a frequently cheering crowd that met him at the station this morning he hoped the time would soon come when "we will all smile of our own free will."

Other large groups and more cheers greeted him along the route to Warm Springs and again on his return drive to Atlanta.

A brief talk, expressing his pleasure at being back in Georgia, made from a platform under the pines to a crowd in which there were many in rolling chairs and others holding crutches, preceded his departure from Warm Springs to return by automobile to Atlanta.

After the talk at Warm Springs, Mr. Roosevelt accompanied by his son, James Roosevelt, went to the cottage of A. E. Carpenter, a director of the Warm Springs Foundation, for lunch with the board of directors of the Warm Springs Foundation. He is chairman of the board.

The cottage, a white painted structure set in a clump of pines, stood a short distance away from the infirmary for afflicted persons, which Mr. Roosevelt had so great a part in helping to establish.

His first stop of the day came at Marietta, Ga., where a considerable crowd had gathered to shout a first welcome to the State and hear the Democratic candidate say he hoped that prosperity would be brought back to every class of the Nation's citizenry.

Marietta is only a few miles from Roswell, Ga., where was the home of Theodore Roosevelt's mother.

Superstitions About Hat.

In Atlanta, Mr. Roosevelt left his train for an automobile and was driven to the station plaz where a huge crowd waited. It overflowed into Forsyth street viaduct and many persons had clambered to the nearby tiled roofs and heads appeared from windows of buildings close by.

After being introduced by Gov. Russell and Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, who praised him as a great executive of New York and as a statesman of great ability, Gov. Roosevelt waved his hat to the crowd and said he had just one superstition. "That is not to change hats during a campaign," he explained. "This one is beginning to look a little shabby on one side, but I am going to stick to it."

"I am glad to hear the band play 'Happy Days Are Here Again,'" he said. "I heard one the other day playing 'Smile, Darn You, Smile.' I hope that the time soon will come when we can all smile of our own free will."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt Highway."

Leaving the station plaza, the automobiles passed through the suburban towns of East Point and College Park to Fairburn, Palmetto, Newman and Greenville, before reaching Warm Springs. Each town brought out its hundreds of persons to cheer his passing. In Palmetto the church bells were ringing as the candidate's party crept slowly through the main streets. Several hundred persons surged into the streets about his car to shout and wave.

A gaily decorated banner overhead proclaimed, "Roosevelt for President." At intervals along the roadside stood signs: "Franklin D. Roosevelt Highway." The road leading to Warm Springs was named after the candidate about two weeks ago.

At Warm Springs, Mr. Roosevelt's party passed up the hill into the main street of the town where many persons had gathered to cheer. The procession passed to the end of the street and wheeled about to return to the hospital grounds.

Another crowd had assembled under the pines between the hotel and the infirmary building. With a wide smile, Mr. Roosevelt shouted greetings to old friends in the crowd, patients and residents of the town.

Baltimore Speech Tomorrow.

"I've got only two weeks more to go and then I am coming down to Warm Springs," he told them. "I shall have a longer stay with you when I come down here for Thanksgiving in November."

As he finished, a group of the young people in the wheel chairs started a song in which praise of the governor was the predominant theme. Several leaned forward from their crutches to join. A nurse far back in the crowd lifted a tiny patient high into the air so the child might see Mr. Roosevelt.

After returning to Atlanta tonight, the governor planned to work on the speeches he will make here tomorrow night and at Baltimore on the succeeding night.

Mrs. Roosevelt was not with the nominee's party when the special reached Atlanta. She left at Marietta early in the day and came here by automobile to board a regular passenger plane for New York, returning home to resume her duties as teacher in a girls' school.

Boy Misses Roosevelt After Record Pony Ride

Atlanta, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Winfred "Toby" Cook's pony got flat tires or fallen arches or something and Toby was too late to greet Gov. Roosevelt today, but the 6-year-old Tift County boy hopes to be rewarded for his 210-mile ride by shaking hands with the Democratic nominee tomorrow.

Toby and Bill—that's the pony—limped into Atlanta with a police escort and everything at 4 p. m. today but Gov. Roosevelt had arrived in the morning and left for Warm Springs.

"Billy's feet got sore and we could not come any faster," Toby said in explaining the delay. Toby and Bill covered the 210 miles in 61 hours with eight hours sleep.

Walking alongside, just in case of trouble, was John Towns, Negro, a family servant.

Warm Springs Trustees Seek Fund of $50,000

Warm Springs, Ga., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Trustees of the Warm Springs Foundation, of which Gov. Roosevelt is chairman, voted today to seek a fund of $50,000 for the coming year to be used in supplying treatment to victims of infantile paralysis unable to afford it.

This year the foundation is spending $20,000. Though the entire cost of a patient is $42 a week, an increasing number are finding it impossible to pay this sum, hence the drive for more supplementary funds.

Shots Are Fired In Miners' Fight

Tear Gas Bomb Is Thrown at Illinois Meeting Called by "Progressives."

Zeigler, Ill., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Several shots were fired, a tear gas bomb was thrown and at least one man was struck over the head with a revolver and injured here today, during a fight between members of the newly-formed progressive miners' union of Illinois and the United Mine Workers at a meeting which had been called by the progressive miners.

The shots were fired into the air by men in the crowd.

The fighting occurred after two officials of the United Mine Workers had mounted the speakers' platform in the park where several hundred members of the new union had gathered. County officials had ordered a ban against holding the meeting.

Warfare With Colombia Is Expected by Peru

Lima, Peru, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—War with Colombia over possession of Port Leticia was considered almost inevitable today, with publication of a new note by Peru, insisting that the seizure of the port by Peruvian civilians last September constituted an international incident, and therefore should be settled by conciliation.

The note, dated October 30, was in reply to a communication from Colombia, in which that government claimed that the Leticia seizure was an internal matter, and therefore should be settled by direct armed intervention. Both countries are concentrating their armed forces near Leticia, preparatory to a struggle for permanent possession of the village.

31 WOMEN SEEKING SEATS IN CONGRESS

Two Out for Governor and 69 Running for Lesser State Offices.

(Associated Press.)

Content heretofore with casting their ballots and making a few scattered bids for public office, women this year are trying to pick political plums in record numbers.

More than 100 of them, 102 to be exact, are seeking important offices in 31 States, a survey by the Associated Press shows.

Three are running for the United States Senate, 28 for the House, two for governor, and 69 for lesser State offices, exclusive of State legislative posts.

By parties, the 102 candidates who will vote on November 8 are divided this way: Socialists, 23; Communists, 22; Democrats, 18; Republicans, 17; Prohibition, 6; Farmer-Labor, 4; Independents, 3; Nonpartisan, Liberty and Independent Republicans, 2 each, and Law Preservation, Progressive and Socialist-Labor, 1 each.

Two Major Reasons.

The significance of this unprecedented number of women candidates? Ruth Taunton, secretary of the National Woman's Party, believes there are two major reasons:

"One is a natural growth through 12 years of political activity; the other is growth forced by the efforts of many to destroy economic independence of women in the name of the depression.

"Until the nineteenth amendment was a fact," she adds, "schools did not teach girls how to participate in politics, editorials sneered and pulpits denounced. Each year since 1920 countless women have taken advantage of political science college courses, editors write daily of women's duty to become politically active and pastors pray for women's awakened civic consciousness.

"Results are with us. A few more general elections will see a more equal distribution of office-holding between men and women.

Forced Growth in Politics.

"As for the second reason, women have learned during this depression that the right to vote in a country where you have not the right to paid employment is a farce. An attack on employed married women is an attack on all women. Hence, a forced growth in politics and lawmaking."

Among the three senatorial women candidates is the lone woman incumbent, Senator Hattie W. Caraway, Democrat, who was appointed to succeed her late husband and then was elected in her own right to fill out the term. Her Republican opponent is John W. White, of Russellville.

Another candidate is Esther Hill Elfreth, prohibition candidate in New Jersey, in opposition to Senator W. Warren Barbour, Republican, and Percy H. Stewart, Democrat. Miss Elfreth has been a member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union since its organization in 1887, and served as its president for ten years and as State president for thirteen.

Seeking Smith's Seat.

The third woman senatorial candidate is Miss Clara Harrigal, Republican, out for the Democratic seat of Senator Ellison D. Smith, in South Carolina. Miss Harrigal is the new Republican national committee woman from her State. The first woman ever to run for Congress from South Carolina and the first Republican senatorial candidate there in nearly 50 years.

Among the 28 women candidates for the House are Edith McClure Patterson, Republican, and Florence E. Allen, Democrat, Ohio. Mrs. Patterson is a widely traveled educator and lecturer and is now a member of the Dayton school board. Judge Allen is just winding up her second six-year term on the Ohio Supreme Court bench.

Both Ohio women are running against incumbents, Mrs. Patterson against Representative Byron B. Harlan (Democrat), Third, and Judge Allen against Representative Chester C. Bolton, Republican, Twenty-second District.

Mrs. Roosevelt Given Wild Ride

Mayor Key's Car Detained, She Hurries to Airport in Reporter's.

Atlanta, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was given a wild 20-mile ride today by a newspaperman.

The wife of the Democratic presidential candidate detrained at Marietta, Ga., to motor to Candler Field, near here, to board an airplane for her trip back to New York. Arrangements had been made by telegraph for an automobile to meet Mrs. Roosevelt and Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, had sent his car. By mistake, however, the driver was told that Mrs. Roosevelt would leave the train at Kennesaw, and when she arrived at Marietta the automobile was not there.

A reporter for an Atlanta paper offered to drive the Governor's wife to the airport. Mrs. Roosevelt took one look at his none too elaborate machine and climbed in. The mayor's automobile rolled up a few minutes later and set out after her, but in spite of extra horsepower, was unable to overtake her until she had reached Candler Field.

G.O.P. Leaders to Begin Tour of Virginia Today

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Republican leaders after a meeting here today announced they were "all ready" for the State-wide tour which will begin tomorrow in the interest of the party's candidates and platform.

"Everything is in fine trim for the tour," said State Chairman R. H. Angell. "The people of Virginia seem thrilled with the idea," he added. "We expect to put on a rousing campaign from one end of Virginia to the other."

Roosevelt's Straw Vote Advantage Now 3 to 2

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Democratic national committee announced today that with over 3,500,000 ballots tabulated from various straw votes reported to that headquarters, a 60-40 split in the popular vote was indicated.

The announcement added that the "split," if followed out at the polls November 8, "would give Franklin D. Roosevelt a popular majority in excess of 7,500,000 votes."

Arson Suspected in Blaze That Damages Community Center.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Fire which destroyed three buildings and damaged several others at an outlying community center today caused damage estimated at from $150,000 to $250,000. The cause was undetermined. The fire department arson squad was ordered to investigate when neighbors said they had seen loiterers near the building.

The Leopold Furniture Co. Building, a residence and a business and residence block were destroyed. The Lorain Street Savings & Trust Co. Building and several small business blocks were damaged. Several firemen and Webster C. Seeley, reporter for the Cleveland News, received minor injuries.

In another fire at Toledo, which caused damage of $20,000 at the plant of the Devilbiss Co., two firemen were injured.

Norfolk Driver Held After Fatal Accident

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Edi Rucho, 49, was killed early today on the Lafayette boulevard, opposite Winona Station, when struck by an automobile allegedly operated by Sanford M. Parker, of 2921 Somme avenue.

Parker was taken into custody by police on charges of homicide and operating a vehicle while under the influence of ardent spirits. He will be given a hearing tomorrow in police court. Rucho was knocked 25 feet and sustained fractures of both arms and legs and several skull fractures.

Man Seized as Suspect Found Escaped Convict

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A man arrested as a robbery suspect was identified tonight by police as John Reed, alias William Dupont, escaped convict from the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Baton Rouge.

Reed and two copanions, one a girl, were arrested when riding in an automobile which bore no license plates and in which, police said, they found a sawed-off shotgun. A policeman identified Reed as a man he had taken into custody several years ago and who said he confessed to several robberies, one of a bank in Louisiana.

automobile ride with Mrs. Hoover, Ford and his wife boarded their car again and left for Detroit.

What Mr. Hoover's studied reaction was to the mixed reception given him in Detroit his aids did not make known.

As he left the railroad station there for the 3-mile drive to the arena, a chorus of "boos" came from milling throng that at one time almost surrounded the open automobile in which he rode. Banners inscribed, "Vote Communist" and "Workers Ex-Service Men's League" were displayed in the crowd.

On the ride back to his special train the President and Mrs. Hoover changed to a closed car. So swift was the parade through the city that two accidents resulted. An automobile carrying one of Mrs. Hoover's secretaries collided with a taxicab, while another car filled with newspapermen crashed into the car in front during a quick stop.

Messages of Praise.

No serious injuries resulted. The crowd that had "booed" him at the railroad station was dispersed when he returned there.

White House aids said yesterday that "several hundred" telegrams received at the White House and on the President's special train praised his Saturday night's address in which he criticized as "amazingly removed from the truth" some of the statements of Franklin D. Roosevelt. None of the messages was made public.

HOOVER IS LABELED AS FIGHTING QUAKER

Elbert Hubbard Is Among Those Praising Speech at Detroit.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—President Hoover was called "the fighting Quaker" by Elbert Hubbard in one of a batch of laudatory comments on his Detroit speech given out today by Eastern headquarters of the Republican national committee.

The President's "ringing call to arms at Detroit," Hubbard's statement said, "united the Nation in confident battle against a common enemy and sends us singing on our way to victory.

"His exposure of Gov. Roosevelt's ignorance, most careless and willful, brands the Democratic candidate as an amateur goat gland specialist prescribing experimental hypodermics of hate loaded with infusions of fear."

Lauded by Mrs. Harrison.

A statement from Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of the former President, described Mr. Hoover's speech as "great." She said President Hoover "certainly has the data proving that leaders of the opposing party were making many statements which were untrue and making promises without stating any constructive plan as to how they were to be carried out."

Other comment included:

Herbert N. Straus, merchant: "President Hoover set forth in vivid and vigorous terms that without his power of veto the Democratic Congress would have made greater inroads on our Treasury and made the balancing of the budget an impossibility. When it comes to reckless expenditure of public funds, Gov. Roosevelt in his New York State program, during his entire administration, has shown exactly what we may expect of him should he become President."

George M. Moffett, president of the Corn Products Refining Co.: "President Hoover's Detroit speech should be gratefully received by all for its clear and businesslike statement of the facts of the administration's struggle to combat the economic storm."

Donovan's Statement.

Col. William J. Donovan, New York Republican gubernatorial nominee: "It seems to me that President Hoover performed a public service of no small value at Detroit in outlining the various signs of economic recovery in the face of unwarranted deprecation of the opposition."

Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works: "President Hoover's address in Detroit should convince even the most skeptical among America's voters of his preeminent fitness to run the country during the next four years."

Frank A. Vanderlip, financier: "It was by far the best speech Mr. Hoover has made since he began his campaign. It was the sort of speech which those who are interested in the welfare of the country will not soon forget."

Dandelion Found To Contain Rubber

Soviet Making Substitute for Material It Lacks From Plants.

Moscow, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—In its widespread search for rubber substitutes, Soviet Russia has found that the lowly dandelion contains a substance which preliminary investigation has established as equal in quality to natural rubber. Natural rubber is virtually the only important raw material not produced in the U. S. S. R.

Newspapers announced that an expedition of the Scientific Exploration Institute has discovered a variety of dandelion in the Crimea which contains a liquid in the stem and root having all the properties of rubber. This liquid is said to be much easier and less expensive to extract than substances from other plants which are used here in the making of a substitute for rubber.

Experimental transplantation to other soils and climates has proved successful. Plans now are being made to start large scale growing of the "rubber dandelion" for industrial purposes. Already 2 tons of seed are being gathered.

Loyalty Plea Made By Mrs. Ferguson

Texan Moves to Counteract Political Combination Against Her.

Austin, Tex., Oct 25 (A.P.).—Her opponents combined in an attempt to prevent her from serving a second term as governor of Texas, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson pressed her fight as the Democratic nominee today in the name of party regularity.

"It is the duty of every good Democrat," she said, taking cognizance of an intra-party blot, "to lay aside the discussion of personal ambitions and personal platforms and declare his or her allegiance to the party principles and the party nominees, from president to constable."

Orville Bullington, Republican gubernatorial nominee, who yesterday was pledged the support of Gov. Ross S. Sterling, Democrat, offered to quit the race if the Democrats will withdraw Mrs. Ferguson and offer instead "an outstanding man."

Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform Announces 553 Candidates Favor Repeal With 54 Against; Returns From 45 States.

(Associated Press.)

The women's organization for national prohibition reform reported yesterday that in a poll it is conducting "wet candidates for the Seventy-third Congress exceed drys 11 to 1."

An announcement issued by Mrs. William B. Mason, chairman of the District of Columbia division which is national legislative department of the organization, tabulated replies of 607 candidates from 45 States.

The organization classified 553 of those replying as "wet" and 54 "dry." The "wet" classification included 474 candidates who were listed as supporting a resolution for straight repeal and 79 "for either repeal or submission with qualifications."

"Democratic candidates are still leading Republicans more than two to one for straight repeal in the poll which already covers over 50 per cent of the candidates and which will be continued right up to election day. * * *" Mrs. Mason said.

"The arrival of a militant wet group in the new Congress after March 4, is definitely forecast. Wets have real cause to be jubilant. These latest returns of the congressional poll spell defeat for the drys, and a new deal for prohibition reform advocates is on the horizon."

| | For repeal | For repeal or submission with qualifications | Against repeal |
|---|---|---|---|
| Democrats | 322 | 22 | 2 |
| Republicans | 135 | 56 | 47 |
| Rep.-Dem.. | 7 | .. | 2 |
| Min. parties | 10 | 1 | 3 |

The Republican-Democrat designation covers members of either party who have obtained nomination from both.

"I think it is particularly interesting that 322 Democrats are standing on their national plank while 135 Republicans, avowed repealists, have parted company with the Republican restrictive plank," Mrs. Mason said.

The second column figures included candidates which the organization designated as: For submission; for Republican platform; evasive; for "Hoover plan;" for qualified submission or qualified repeal.

The first column, it said, was made up of those answering yes to this question:

"If elected, will you support a resolution for the straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the restoration to each State of its power to regulate the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages within its own limits? Such resolution to be submitted to conventions in the several States for ratification or rejection."

Prohibition Party Busy in Vermont

Drive for Body's National Ticket Begun in State by Kidder.

Barre, Vt., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Vermont today has become one of the battlegrounds of the Prohibition party as Harley Walter Kidder, of this city, secretary of the Prohibition national committee, circulated certificates of nomination in behalf of his party's national ticket.

Kidder, since July, has been organizing the Prohibition party's campaign in eight States. He opened his activities in Illinois, then moved on to Indiana. He claimed to find sympathetic sentiment in Indiana which he attributed to the fact that both the Democratic and Republican parties there were pledged to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Although only 500 signatures are necessary, Kidder said he filed nomination papers in that State bearing 1,200 signatures.

In Ohio, Kidder said, he found his party at a disadvantage through a statute that required 20,000 signatures to a petition placing Prohibition candidates' names on the ballot. The petition filed by his party in Ohio bore 21,000 names, he said.

"Tide Has Turned," Curtis Is Confident

Says People Are Awakening to G. O. P. Program as Slump Remedy.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Vice President Curtis, here today on his way to Michigan, in a statement released through Republican national headquarters declared "the tide has definitely turned" in favor of the present administration in the coming general election.

"In many States which have been claimed by the Democrats," his statement said, "the people are waking up to the fact that the Republican party only has offered a program which will bring relief."

"I have campaigned through five 'border' States where Democratic optimism has been rampant, and through six Northern and Western States where the so-called 'progressive' sentiment has been dominent, but I have been given the warmest welcomes and the most attentive audiences of my career," the statement said.

DRYS PLAN OBLIVION FOR CONGRESS WETS

Already Plan 1934 Battle; Nonpartisan Beer Advocates Organizing.

(United Press.)

Antisaloon League leaders are determined to punish at the polls in 1934 the Congress members who vote for beer this winter.

The strategy to be used in administering the proposed rebuke will be planned here in the annual league convention, summoned to meet in mid-December. The gathering will coincide with early short session maneuvers of congressional wets who hope, with the aid of hitherto dry Southern Democrats, to legalize beer.

A spokesman for the league says a primary purpose of the December convention will be to accomplish political oblivion for those voting for beer. A warning, it was said, will be given the Congress members.

Nonpartisan Wet Fight.

"A lot of the boys who are trying to drift into Washington on a presidential campaign this year will have to paddle their own canoes in 1934," the league official said. "The issue will be clear-cut then. Every member of the House and one-third of the Senate will be up for election. There will be no presidential complications."

The attempt to legalize beer at the forthcoming session of Congress is expected to be nonpartisan. Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, and Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, are unofficial wet leaders in the House. Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, and Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, are leaders of the Senate beer forces.

The wet-dry fight seems likely to originate and first be fought to a conclusion in the House. Normally the question of altering the alcoholic specifications of the Volstead act would be decided first through action of the judiciary committees of the Senate and House.

Agreement on Single Bill.

But wets in both houses will urge beer at the short session as a source of taxation. They will shunt the question to the to the House ways and means committee and the lower body will be the first to vote, as tax measures must originate in the House.

Senator Bingham estimated revenue at upward of $375,000,000 per year on an annual consumption of 62,000,000 barrels of beer in the United States. Treasury records show that 60,000,000 barrels of beer were drunk in 1918. The tax then prevailing, $6 a barrel or 2 cents a pint, still is on the statute books.

When nonpartisan wets get together early in December they hope to agree upon a single beer proposition. They are expected to select a percentage somewhere between the 2.75 proposed by the American Federation of Labor and the 4 per cent sought by the more optimistic antiprohibitionists.

Psychological Diplomacy Names Minister to Haiti

Norman Armour Schooled for Delicate Task by Paris Experience.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Psychological diplomacy in the appointment of Norman Armour as Minister to Haiti has been invoked by the State Department in an effort to finally liquidate the impasse in Haitian-American relations. Mr. Armour had his final interview with President Hoover Friday and will leave to take up his new duties in Port au Prince tomorrow.

For the first time the State Department has recognized the delicate problems of Haitian psychology by sending as its diplomatic representative a diplomat who has had a long and successful career in Latin and Gallic temperaments. Mr. Armour has been charge d'affaires of the American Embassy in Paris for the last four years and has been the guiding spirit in the embassy during that time. His fluent knowledge of the French language, his long experience in diplomacy and his understanding of the French temperament will enable him to approach the peculiar circumstances now existing in Haiti with better chances for success than any other choice that could be made.

Rejection of the recent treaty proposed by the United States to the Haitian government has thrown the entire problem of Haiti back to where it was shortly after the Forbes Commission went there in 1930. The State Department has shown no inclination to revise the conditions proposed to the Haitian Congress in its treaty, and a similar position has been taken by the Haitian government.

In the note of October 10 presented to the Haitian foreign minister, the American position was thus expressed:

"This Government feels that protocol B of the new treaty, relating to financial administration, contains the maximum concessions to the point of view of the Haitian government, considering the obligations of existing agreements assumed by both governments."

The Haitian government on its side thus stated the case in its reply to the American charge d'affaires in Haiti:

"You stated to us that the United States, therefore, is not disposed to discuss the withdrawal of the Marine Brigade, or the complete Haitianization of the garde, in advance of the date of the expiration of the treaty of 1915, except in connection with a definite settlement of all the questions at issue.

"This notification after the rejection by the national assembly of the treaty signed on September 3, 1932, to regulate these questions, would signify in short a sort of decision to do nothing until after 1936."

The United States wishes to assure the servicing of the Haitian debt of $14,000,000 by regular and definite appropriations in the Haitian budget for the sinking fund. This is at the present time being administered by a financial advisor, whose functions, the Haitian government claims, supersede the President of Haiti himself.

The former Minister to Haiti, Dana Munro, resigned to become a professor at Princeton University. Mr. Armour has been conferring with him for the last six weeks to acquaint himself thoroughly with the situation which exists in the black republic at the present time.

DORMAN ARMOUR.

Mr. Armour's diplomatic career began in Paris, where he returned in 1927 as counselor of embassy. In the interim he had been in The Hague, Rome, Montevideo, Tokyo, Vienna and finally Paris.

When his appointment was announced the Haitian minister in Paris, Constantin Mayard, in a formal statement declared:

"From the Haitian point of view, it is certain that for the application of the necessary program which should eventually establish friendly relations between Haiti and the United States, it would be impossible to find a man more or better qualified than Norman Armour.

"Washington has chosen a diplomat who has experience in European affairs. His mission in Haiti will harmonize the French mentality of the Haitians with the progressive and Democratic ideas of the United States."

How well the new minister understands the psychology of the Haitians may be derived from an address he made shortly before leaving Paris en route to the United States. He said at that time:

"I am extremely anxious to start on my new mission, as any one would be who had read the fascinating history of Haiti. In the Revolutionary era, after Franklin had obtained the official cooperation of the French King in the Colonies' struggle for liberty, a French admiral visited the ports of the then Haiti, where he found 1,500 Haitians volunteered for the defense of American independence. They embarked and left for Havana to join the American forces.

"I am happy to feel that in leaving Paris, I am going to a country which seems France by its culture, its literature and its language. All these factors will enable me to work with the Haitians and to study the problems of their counttry with more sympathy and understanding than I would have had had I not spent these last four years in France itself.

"To well understand the life of a people, it is necessary to read their history, but to understand the soul of a people, one must read their poetry."

Armour is married to the Princess Moudacheff.

Baroness Facing Shoplifting Count

Former American Dancer Arrested in Theft at Nice, France.

Nice, France, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The Baroness de Plessen, of Denmark, formerly the dancer, Marie Louise St. Denis, of New Orleans, was under arrest today, charged with shoplifting. The alleged theft involved three pairs of gloves. The baroness already is facing trial at Aix-en-Provence in a unique case involving an alleged fake birth. The trial is to be held early next year.

In 1929 the baroness' mother-in-law, the Baroness Sophie de Plessen, of Copenhagen, accused Marie Louise of having presented a servant girl's baby as her own in order to obtain possession of the De Plessen feudal castle at Copenhagen.

Japanese Find New Way to Produce Oil

One Ton of Fuel Can Be Extracted From Two Tons of Coal.

Tokyo, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A new method of producing heavy oil, which is expected to revolutionize Japan's naval fuel supply, was announced today by the South Manchuria Railway.

After five years of experimentation, a cheap process of low temperature carbonization, by which one ton of heavy oil can be extracted from two tons of coal, has been perfected. The product is good fuel oil, the railway announced, and it is possible to "crack" it into gasoline.

The navy, which has been seeking new fuel sources independent of American, British and Dutch supplies, assisted in the experiments. The chief source of the new fuel is expected to be the great Fushon opencut coal mine in Manchuria, where coal at the pit head costs less than 50 American cents a ton.

Death Defeats Doctors Using New Goat Serum

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Modern science lost a battle against death here today as Fred Daugherty, 27, kept alive for 21 weeks after his condition was first pronounced critical, died from a streptococcus infection.

A new goat serum, perfected in the laboratories of the University of Cincinnati Medical School, was brought here by airplane to combat the disease shortly after Daugherty's condition became grave. Physicians said he showed improvement after injections of the serum. The serum, however, was exhausted and laboratory experts said it would require a year to cultivate a new supply.

MALONE SUPPORTS HOOVER REELECTION

Change Would Be Mistake, Former Roosevelt Ally Tells Reporters.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Dudley Field Malone, noted international lawyer and heretofore a "liberal minded" Democrat, today announced his support of President Hoover and the Republican, State and national tickets.

In a letter to the President, Malone said:

"If you were condemned for bad times, why should you not get credit now for the upward change?"

Malone, who campaigned four times for former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and twice for Gov. Roosevelt, now the Democratic presidential nominee, told reporters that if Roosevelt were elected he would have to spend the first two or three years getting oriented to his new duties and meanwhile "we would wobble back and forth."

Change Called Mistake.

"President Hoover," he said, "has spent four years in the Presidency and to replace him at this time would, in my opinion, be a mistake."

Malone told the President he had been one of his "most partisan critics," but until the latter's speech at Des Moines did not realize "the titanic struggle of world forces in the midst of which, during the first two years of your administration you were silently fighting with infinite courage and without complaint."

Although no arrangements have yet been made, Malone said he would volunteer his services in the campaign as a speaker.

Malone, who was associated with Clarence Darrow in the "evolution trial" at Dayton, Tenn., in 1925, served as Assistant Secretary of State and collector of the Port of New York under the Wilson administration.

Cites Better Conditions.

In his letter to the President he said:

"The women of America should realize this need, for women are always realists and they must handle the worried problems of the home. It is true that people in all walks of life have been reduced to conditions of great distress, but President Coolidge and Speaker Garner both agree that conditions are steadily improving.

"If you were condemned for bad times, why should you not get credit now for the upward change?"

"It seems to me the high duty of citizenship to stand by the President who has seen us through the past three dreadful years. There is too much at stake in every home, store and shop to change leaders now.

Medalie Is Praised.

"George Z. Medalie, running for the United States Senate, * * * has an unsurpassed mind and character and has made the ablest and most honorable United States district attorney our bar has ever known.

"With such leaders I stand. I do not belong to Tammany Hall and have always been independent, though my father, now 90 years of age, has voted Democratic 66 times. No one can question the service I have rendered the rank and file of the Democratic party. I toured the country twice for and with Woodrow Wilson and managed the campaign in California for his reelection. I campaigned four times for Al Smith, twice for Gov. Roosevelt and twice for Mayor Walker. But the comfort and faith of millions of workers and mershants in this country must not now be held subject to the danger of political change.

"I respectfully offer you my complete support and am prepared to serve my Government in any way."

FOR HOOVER

M. I. T. PROFESSOR BOLTS PRESIDENT

Doten Declares Hoover Is Unfitted by Experience and Nature for Post.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Prof. Carroll W. Doten, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a formal statement today announced that although he was a native of Vermont and a "life-long Republican," he would vote this year for the Democratic presidential candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

At the same time, Owen S. M. Tierney, a former assistant United States attorney, said in a statement he had resigned as a member of the Park Republican Club and would enter into active support of Gov. Roosevelt.

Prof. Doten, who said he became personally acquainted with both Gov. Roosevelt and President Hoover while serving as head of the industrial service section of the United States Shipping Board during the war, termed Mr. Hoover "unfitted by nature, education and experience" for the Presidency.

"He has no stomach for a fight," Prof. Doten added, "and he can not persuade, coerce or compel those not dependent on him for their jobs."

Tierney, who said he had been a Republican for fifteen years, attributed his change of attitude to "the inability and miserable failure of the national Republican leaders to cope with the present economic problems, the indecisiveness of President Hoover, the Republican attitude on prohibition, the continuation of policies to benefit the vested few in disregard of the needs of the average citizen."

Opera Star Is Wounded By Husband in Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Gertrude Bindernagel, soprano opera star, was shot by her husband, Wilhelm Hintze, at the stage door of the Charlottenburg Opera House after tonight's performance of "Siegfried," in which she appeared.

The singer, who is 39 years old, was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. The shot lodged in her kidney. The husband, a man of 53, submitted quietly to arrest. Police ascribed the shooting to domestic difficulties.

Longer Naval Holiday Is Approved by Japan

Tokyo (Monday), Oct. 24 (U.P.).—The Japanese foreign office today instructed its representatives at Geneva that they were empowered to accept an extension of the naval holiday to March.

LANKFORD WAGING STRONG FIGHT TO GAIN REELECTION

ever, he is going down fighting a hard fight along with all the other Republican candidates. It is said in Norfolk that when the court decision required candidates to run at large Mr. Lankford thought his chances so slim he at first decided not to run. He changed his mind, it is said, willing to take a licking this time, but with an eye on victory in the next election when a new redistricting law has been enacted by the Legislature.

There is a strong appeal to sympathy in his situation as is indicated by Mr. Darden's answer. He doesn't want to run at large any more than Mr. Lankford does, he told the voters. He wants the issue settled between himself and Mr. Lankford right in their own bailiwick. Unless the voters of the Second District vote him in, he'll qualify as a member of the House and resign and force a special election, he announced. He doesn't want to go to Congress on the basis of a State-wide vote, if the folks of his own district give his opponent more votes.

The two men have their Norfolk headquarters close by. Each has his name bannered with the national candidates of his party, the signs reading, "Hoover, Curtis and Lankford," and "Roosevelt, Garner and Darden."

The Lankford campaign posters proclaim him as "Mack." Just how he came to be "Mack" no one seems to know, but he is "Mack" on the campaign posters, and his supporters never mention "Menalcus" to the voters. But the Democrats do, and they have made a play on the name. They call him "Miraculous" because of all of the benefits he claims to have gained for the city as a result of his fights for larger Federal appropriations for the local Navy Yard.

"He has stood by us. Let's stand by him. His record speaks for itself," his campaign posters say. On the windows of his headquarters at No. 2 Monticello arcade are pasted copies of four bills he introduced in the House. One was introduced in 1930 and provided for an appropriation of $1,300,000 for the naval training station at Hampton Roads. It also provided for expenditure of $6,930,000 for other naval stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Another provided $30,000,000 for modernizing the New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho. An identical bill introduced by Representative Darrow, of Pennsylvania, is pasted beside Mr. Lankford's bill. A third, introduced last December, provided $1,150,000 to complete a barracks and mess hall for enlisted men at Hampton Roads. Another, introduced in 1929, provided $600,000 for the same purpose.

Mr. Lankford ran for Congress in 1920 and 1924 and was defeated both times. He was elected in 1928, defeating Representative Joseph T. Deal, and was reelected in 1930. He is well liked. Norfolk folks say he has done right by them out of the Federal Treasury, only they don't phrase it that bluntly, of course.

Mr. Darden is a young lawyer, 35 years or thereabouts, whose family has lived in Franklin for a while. He has served two two-year terms in the Virginia House of Delegates. He married a daughter of the Du Ponts and is conducting his campaign very economically because he doesn't want any one to say Du Pont wealth is pouring into the campaign.

On the soldiers' bonus the two agree it isn't an issue. On prohibition they disagree. Supporters of Darden urged him to say nothing. He said even more than the Democratic platform. Lankford said he stood with President Hoover, and A. J. Demming, who was anti-Smith in 1928 and supported Lankford in 1930, said that Lankford's stand didn't mean anything and he announced his determination to run as a dry. But that was about as far as he got.

No election is settled until the last vote is counted after the polls are closed. But how many persons feel about the outcome of the Lankford-Darden contest might be illustrated by an incident.

Several young women of the district got together for a party among themselves. One was a supporter of Mr. Darden and she greeted later arrivals graciously. One was a supporter of Mr. Lankford.

"My, I'm glad you came, Jane," Mr. Darden's supporter said in all sincerity. They talked of a few things, as girls do, but the catastrophe which was about to fall on Mr. Lankford was too much, and out of her sympathy she exclaimed, anxious to salve the wounds of her friend, "Jane, I'm awfully sorry about the election."

Doctor Reports Narcotic Theft.

Dr. Louis A. Cornett, of 1927 North Capitol street, last night reported to police the theft of 99 quarter-grain morphine tablets. The tablets, Dr. Cornett said, were stolen from his office.

ROOSEVELT BRANDED TAMMANY SERVANT

Norman Thomas Charges He Barters With Machine for Its Support.

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, said tonight that Gov. Roosevelt "was more obedient to Tammany than any other governor in recent years—until he discovered that the country would not take him with the Tammany label."

In an address before a Socialist rally, advance copies of which were delivered to the press, he said that "now with the city investigation smothered by Walker's convenient resignation, Roosevelt is again doing business with Tammany."

"He is trading his indorsement of a Tammany man who will give the city another Walker administration without the annoying saxophone accompaniment, for machine support at the polls."

Astor "Chief Contributor."

Thomas asserted "the amazing number of so-called 'progressive' leaders who are again misleading their followers and throwing away not only their votes but the chance of saving political action from that depredation which means Fascism, compels me to examine Gov. Roosevelt's record and his close associates."

He added that the Democratic nominee for President "has proved himself unable or unwilling either to regulate banking or to crub Wall street, yet he now promises to do for the Nation what he did not do as Governor of New York."

After reviewing Roosevelt's record, Thomas said:

"What is still worse is the political company Gov. Roosevelt keeps. I do not refer to the ramshackle condition of his party, the outrageous lack of democracy it displays in the South, or its passion for plunder. I mean individuals. Here are a few:

Hearst Foreign Policy Mentor.

"2. William Randolph Hearst, leading promoter of the Spanish War, fomenter of trouble with Mexico, advocate of the sales tax, jingo extraordinary and the dictator of Roosevelt's foreign policy.

"3. Such diverse political bosses and unprincipled demagogues as Frank Hague, of New Jersey; John Nance Garner, of Uvalde, Tex., and Huey Long.

"4. Such supposedly enlightened capitalists as Owen D. Young. I say 'supposedly' because from a reliable source I have information which should be investigated concerning two companies largely controlled by Mr. Young which illustrate capitalism at its worst, and make a mockery of Mr. Roosevelt's pledge, in such company, to make Wall street behave."

Thomas said he believed "the operation of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Radio Corporation of America set-up" should be investigated.

Cabinet Talk Premature, Gov. Roosevelt Asserts

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—"Any discussion regarding the makeup of my cabinet is premature," said Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight when asked regarding reports that he had decided to bring Alfred E. Smith into his official family.

Despite his statement, close associates have for some time indicated a strong probability that Miss Frances Perkins, New York State industrial commissioner, was likely to be Secretary of Labor if he is elected.

Davison to Leave Today On N. Y. Speaking Tour

New York, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—F. Trubee Davison, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, who has been confined to his home in Locust Valley, Long Island, for four days by a cold, will leave tomorrow morning by airplane for Elmira and other points upstate.

Davison has a speaking tour scheduled which will cover the entire State. He expects to cover all of these places by plane, using his own amphibian. Mrs. Davison will accompany him and pilot the plane most of the way.

Three Killed When Two Autos Crash in Ohio

Fostoria, Ohio, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Christ Diller, 50, his wife, Arvilla, and his mother, Mrs. Barbara Diller, 75, all of Bluffton, Ohio, were killed late today and three other persons were injured when two automobiles collided 4 miles south of here.

The occupants of the other car, E. Duffy, 29, and J. E. Smith, 35, both of Detroit, Mich., suffered cuts and bruises.

"Hand Over Your Gold Dust," Two Men, Pointing Six-Shooters, Tell Patrons; Came From Nevada With Rodeo, One Says on Arrest.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—With a wild whoop, two larruping big cowboys strode into an eleventh avenue restaurant early today and pointed six-shooters at a half dozen unsuspecting patrons.

Coffee cups went down with a crash as the intruders braced their bowed legs and drawled:

"Stick 'em up, you varmints, and hand over your gold dust."

The order was obeyed with alacrity, for anybody could see these gents were bad hombres, with their chaps, their high-heeled boots and their ten-gallon hats—not to mention their six-shooters. Besides, they had that steely glint in their eyes, and that ominous ring in their voices that come from years on the prairies.

While one of them kept the patrons covered, the other announced that "we shore mean business" and strode over toward the cash register.

"Waal, I'll be durned" he drawled, "one of those new fangled contraptions, heh?"

And with that he pressed a long, lean finger to the "No Sale" button and scooped out the $40 in greenbacks that lay in the till. Then turning to the proprietor he pointed to the latter's watch and chain.

"Reckon you better be giving us that too, stranger," he said.

But this was too much for the proprietor, Archie Edwards, who blustered:

"Say, what are you, a wise guy, huh?"

"Smile, stranger, when you say that," the cowboy scowled, and he struck Archie on the head.

Outside, a startled passerby peered through the window, rubbed his eyes, and galloped for the nearest telephone. In a few seconds a radio squad car came screaming around the corner, just as the cowboys were departing.

Seeing that the constables were coming, they looked around frantically for a pair of horses, and then took to their heels. One of them scaled a passing freight train and disappeared.

The other, corraled in a police station, said he was Bob Hubbard, 32, of Reno, Nev. He was arraigned on a short affidavit charging burglary and held without bail for a later hearing. Hubbard, who stands 6 feet 2 inches, was quoted by police as having admitted he served a term in San Quentin penitentiary for cattle rustling, in 1924.

He came to New York, the police said, with a rodeo troupe.

383 Economists Attack Hawley-Smoot Tariff

New York, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Condemning the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930, a total of 383 American economists, representing 98 colleges, have signed a petition urging President Hoover to use his powers to revise its rates and "end the tariff war by negotiating with other nations."

The majority of the group were also signers of the petition addressed to the President by more than 1,000 economists on May 4, 1930, warning that the bill, then pending in Congress, would cause retaliation and prolong the depression.

"These conclusions have been confirmed by events," the present petition states.

$250,000,000 DROP IN HOARDING SHOWN

(Associated Press.)

A decrease of $250,000,000 in money hoarded, an increase in gold stock and reserve funds of member banks and a drop in bank indebtedness to Federal Reserve Banks and in bank suspensions were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board in its monthly review.

The board said national banks under the Glass-Borah amendment to the Home Loan Bank law had issued $100,000,000 in new national bank currency.

During recent weeks the bank holdings of Government securities had been practically unchanged, the board said, adding that between June 15 and September 30, member banks had increased reserve funds partly because of the addition of $275,000,000 to the country's gold stock, bringing it to $4,200,000,000. The excess of reserves of Federal Reserve Banks now is $1,200,000,000.

Huge Drop in Hording.

"Since July 20 there has also been a release of currency from hoarding estimated at $250,000,000," the board said. "This estimate is based on the fact that the amount of money in circulation declined by over $130,000,000 at a time when it usually increases by more than $110,000,000."

The inflow of funds to member banks, the review continued, enabled them to reduce their indebtedness to the reserve banks during recent weeks by $200,000,000. The lowest level since September of last year, and at the same time to increase their reserves in excess of legal requirements to approximately $400,000,000.

The growth in member bank reserve balances was accompanied by an upturn in total loans and investments of member banks in leading cities amounting to $575,000,000, or 3 per cent; the board asserted.

Fewer Bank Closings.

Hoarding, the review said, was first lessened by organization of the National Credit Corporation, also declining $250,000,000 when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was established last February.

The board said that in September 65 banks with deposits of $16,008,000 suspended, compared with 85 with deposits of $30,530,000 in August.

In September fourteen banks with deposits of $13,623,000 were reopened while in August the 25 banks that reopened had deposits of $33,498,000. The number of bank suspensions in September was the smallest since the 47 last March.

PEACE IN FAR EAST CALLED TOKYO AIM

more to say regarding the question. However, I will repeat my hope that the league will understand that Japan is sincere and fair in handling problems of the Orient."

Mukden, Manchuria, Monday, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Gen. Chang Tien-Chu and 1,000 of his insurgent followers made a fierce attack today on the small Japanese garrison at Fulaerchi, the first station on the Chinese Eastern Railway west of the Nonni River, which was occupied by the Japanese two weeks ago.

According to Japanese reports there was a bitter ten-hour battle in which the assailants were repulsed, leaving more than 200 dead behind them. Japanese casualties were three killed and twelve wounded.

Gen. Chang Tien-Chu is the chief lieutenant of Gen. Su Ping-Wen, the principal insurgent leader in the district. Recent Moscow and Changchun dispatches have reported that Gen. Su was showing a more conciliatory attitude toward the Japanese.

From Moscow news came the other day that Gen. Su had acceded to a Soviet suggestion that he permit evacuation to Russia of all Japanese women, children and male civilians held captive by the insurgents at Manchuli and Hailar.

Changchun has reported that Gen. Su agreed to confer with peace envoys from the new State of Manchukuo, against which he is in rebellion.

Moscow, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Publication today of news that the Soviet government has completed negotiations for the evacuation of Japanese in the Manchuli region of Manchuria has made it possible for the Soviet Union to disclose that it is acting as a friendly intermediary for Japan since insurgents seized the district, which lies to the west of Taitsihar.

Completely cut off from the east, Japanese citizens have succeeded in contacting their home government through Soviet consulates. The consulates have even loaned money toward support of 158 refugees concentrated about the Japanese consulate in Manchuli. Only 33 of these are men, the rest being women and children.

Soviet officials insist that their motives are purely humanitarian, although it is generally conceded that their evacuation of the district tends to relieve further the tension that has existed between Japan and Russia.

The Japanese civilians have been held by anti-Manchukuoan forces in the Manchuli region since late in September. China agreed to the evacuation, it was learned, following Russian intercession.

LEGION STATEMENT OF BISHOP ASSAILED

Retraction by Methodist Prelate Demanded by Former Soldiers.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—An assertion by Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, presiding over the Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, before the conference in Richmond yesterday, that the American Legion is "the great American menace," and that the bonus seekers are "beggars and robbers of the public Treasury," created much of a stir among World War veterans in Norfolk today.

A group of eight veterans, describing themselves also as members of the Methodist Church, sent Bishop Mouzon a telegram of protest, in which his utterance was termed "un-Christian, uncalled for, and very detrimental to the church at large."

Meanwhile Mahood P. Hardy, commander of Junius F. Lynch Post 33, American Legion, of Norfolk, addressed a letter to Bishop Mouzon protesting against his remarks on the subject and asking that they be "either modified, tempered or retracted." The text of the telegram sent by the group of eight follows:

"You are reported in the press to refer to the bonus seekers as beggars and robbers of the public Treasury, and the American Legion as the great American menace. We, the undersigned veterans and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, have verified your reference and construe it as un-Christian, uncalled for, and very detrimental to the church at large. We hope the present conference in session may record a retraction."

The telegram is signed by W. G. McClure, C. E. Fontaine, A. A. Brittingham, W. Kenton Cason, L. S. Duncan, George R. Abbott, E. N. Sizemore and V. T. Myers.

In his letter Mr. Hardy terms it "unfortunate" that the bishop should have addressed his remarks to the people of Virginia in particular, "since the Virginia department of the American Legion happens to be one of the few State departments that asked only that the certificates be paid when the Government could afford to pay them."

Jury Gets Case Of Cleric Today

Judge Says Verdict Must Be Either Murder or Acquittal.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Three courses were charted today for the jury in the murder trial of the Rev. S. A. Berrie, 52-year-old hymn writer, charged with poisoning his wife last March in order to marry pretty 19-year-old Ida Bess Bright, one of his Sunday school teachers.

The jury may find him innocent, the victim of "malicious gossipers" as he contends, or it may find him guilty of murder and fix his punishment either at death in the electric chair or life imprisonment.

District Judge W. J. Crump made it plain today his instructions will permit no manslaughter verdict. He said he would deny a defense request that his instructions point out the poison alleged to have been the cause of death can not be purchased in Oklahoma without a record by the druggist which is available to police. The jury rested today. Tomorrow, after the judge's instructions and attorneys' arguments, the case will be placed in its hands.

Black Bear Drowned By 2 Polar Den Mates

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 23 (A.P.). The jungle law asserted itself in a clash of claw and fang in the Milwaukee Zoo, and today children have one less black bear at which to toss peanuts.

The black bear was responsible for the act that disturbed the state of armed neutrality which allowed himself and mate, two polar bears, two grizzly bears and two tiger wolves to occupy the same den. He fell into the polar bears' pool, and for his clumsiness he died. The polar bears drowned him.

The other animals, dropping their peacefulness, snarled and howled, leaping and tearing at the kill. Before several hundred spectators firemen retrieved the body of the bear.

Clothing of Slain Woman Is Sought

Clew to Desert Killer Is Sought by Deputies in California.

San Bernardino, Calif., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Deputy sheriffs deployed today through small towns on the Mojave Desert seeking clothing stripped from the auburn haired young woman whose nude body was found by a prospector yesterday in the wasteland 40 miles northwest of this city.

Authorities judged the woman was slain Friday night and thrown from a motor car by some one who knew the country, knew that the old wagon trail which he drove was rarely used. There was a tire track near the body, but no footprints. The ground lacked a sign of a struggle, but the body bore evidence the woman had put up a strong resistance until her life was ended by a blow on the head.

Man Says Robbers Burned, Beat and Left Him for Dead

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—H. H. Littlecamp, 37, of Statesboro, Ga., told a weird story here today of having been beaten, robbed and left for dead near Petersburg, Va.

Littlecamp, who described himself as an adventurer and professional photographer, said he was hiking from Trenton, N. J., to Augusta, Ga., to meet his wife when he was attacked by three men in a section called "Moonshine Bottom," between Petersburg, Va., and Dinwiddie, Va., on the night of October 18.

He said he was robbed of $105 by the men, who pinioned him and burned his arms and legs with lighted cigarettes and beat him into insensibility when he cried out.

Littlecamp said he regained consciousness to find himself wrapped in a waterproof sheet and lying in a ditch. He said he made his way to a filling station, where he was warned to leave and not to notify police.

It took him until today to walk to Raleigh, the first city Southward.

The man displayed evidences of a severe beating. His upper lip was split, but the edges of the wound had been sewed together. He said he sewed it up himself with cotton thread.

Littlecamp gave his address as Statesboro, Ga., Route 2, care of his father-in-law, J. M. McCorkle.

Freak Requests for Loans Flow Into R. F. C. Office

Boston Woman Would Borrow at 3½ Per Cent to Relend at 7; Nevadan Wants Sheep "Without Tariff on Wool."

(United Press.)

Up in Boston, Mass., a woman would like to have the Reconstruction Finance Corporation lend her $150,000 at 3½ per cent interest to be reloaned at 7 per cent, while out in Reno, Nev., a man wants a medium-sized sheep "without any tariff on the wool" to go into the sheep raising business.

These two requests for loans are typical of some received daily by the world's largest fiscal agency. Most of them can not be granted, of course, under the act.

"A loan of $225,000," one application read, "would make it possible for me to extend my sponge farm. The water, food and climate for such a farm are present on my Florida holdings. Remember, sponge prices are not depressed. Please advise me your rate of interest on such a self-liquidation project."

The application for the medium-sized sheep read, in part, "I wonder if you have any sample sheep you give away.

"When you skin a sheep once is that the end of it or can they be skinned regularly like a human being?

"I see by the papers that there is a lot of trouble these days about the tariff on the wool; if you can pick out a sheep that hasn't any tariff on the wool, it might save me cleaning it when it comes here. Does this tariff come back after you have once got rid of it?

"And another thing, don't send me a U sheep because they have signs on the street here that say that you can't make a U turn and I couldn't get one to the office very well if I couldn't make it turn."

The Boston woman informed the corporation that she is a former real estate salesman and that she has loans arranged for the entire $150,000. Her loans, she said, would yield $11,500 a year, or about $480 a month for herself.

From Mississippi came the following: "Gentlemen, I believe your are interested in advancing the beautiful as well as material things of life. For years I have longed to propagate gold fish. A loan of, say, $75,000 at not more than 3¼ per cent interest would make this possible. Please write particulars for such a worthwhile loan."

Out in a growing Ohio city a group of men desire a slum rehabilitation loan to "construct eight-room apartments, including two bathrooms, a game room, reception hall and sun parlor, to improve living conditions for the working man."

Another group of ambitious real estate promoters would gladly "accept $1,500,000 to pipe fresh water from the mainland of Florida to islands off the coast."

Still another syndicate wants money from the corporation to construct lakes in Alabama to provide duck shooting.

One New York farmer hopes to build a service station and carry a sideline of groceries. He offers the stock and physical properties of the proposed establishment as collateral and adds:

"A loan of $950 would make this possible. I request the loan in the name of 'the forgotten man.'"

Several financiers believe that a loan to construct a toll bridge half way across the St. Lawrence River would be a sound investment for the corporation, since "some Canadian group certainly would build the remaining half."

COX, OIL PROMOTER, ARRESTED AT BORDER

U. S. Marshal Seizes Man Under Prison Sentence Mexico Deports.

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—S. E. J. Cox, oil promoter and former convict, free under $25,000 bond pending appeal of a sentence to ten years imprisonment for mail fraud, landed in the arms of a deput. United States marshal upon his deportation by Mexican authorities late today.

"Where's the guy who is going to arrest me?" Cox asked on reaching the American side of the Rio Grande.

Deputy Marshal Henry Keene introduced himself. He said the promoter would be held in jail pending "further instructions." A telegram asking Deputy Marshal Keene to arrest Cox was sent by the United States district attorney at Oklahoma City.

U. S. Asked Deportation, He Says.

Cox, under sentence to the Leavenworth, Kans., Federal prison in connection with operations of the Universal Oil and Gas Co. at Oklahoma City, asserted he was deported at the request of the American Government and not because he was doing business in Mexico while holding only a tourist passport, as reported from Mexico City.

"I was in Mexico just looking around," he said. He said he had been in the southern republic since last February.

Asked about an announcement of Herbert K. Hyde, United States district attorney of Oklahoma, that he would seek forfeiture of Cox's appeal bond, the promoter replied:

"If they wanted me there, I would have gone immediately, and they know it. I was convicted and given eight years in the Federal penitentiary in the Cook case, of which I know nothing."

Was Indicted With Cook.

Cox was one of several defendants indicted at Fort Worth, Tex., with Dr. Frederick Cook, Arctic explorer, and convicted of mail fraud in promotion of an oil concern. Cox was freed on parole July 20, 1926, after serving nearly two and one-half years.

Hyde said last Friday, "the actions of Cox since his trial here justify the bond forfeiture."

"I have been advised," the prosecutor said, "he has organized a mining company down there and has sold thousands of dollars' worth of stock without owning a mine."

Cox was accompanied from Mexico City by his son, S. E. J. Cox, jr., and a nephew, Philip Seager. He was in custody of a Mexican immigration inspector.

Paraguayans Claim Fort Arce Capture

Asuncion Asserts Bolivian Troops Flee in Disorder From Stronghold.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Oct. 23 (A.P.). The war ministry announced that Fort Arce, one of the principal strongholds in the Gran Chaco, was captured this afternoon by Paraguayan troops, and that Bolivian soldiers were fleeing, leaving arms and ammunition behind.

A previous bulletin announced decisive operations had been inaugurated against the major fort, to which Bolivians had dropped back after Paraguayans recaptured Fort Boqueron several days ago after a three weeks' siege.

The army general staff had issued a statement that a major offensive was opened along a 60-mile front from Fort Sorpresa, near the Argentine border, northwestward to Fort Arce.

La Paz, Bolivia, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Official announcement was made tonight that Fort Arce, in the Gran Chaco, has been evacuated by Bolivian troops under general staff orders.

COMDR. F. L. MULLER IS DEAD; HERO IN WAR

Succumbs to Lung Ailment He Contracted While German Prisoner.

San Fernando, Calif., Oct. 23 (A.P.). Burial Wednesday with full military honors at the Presidio, San Francisco, was decided upon today for Lieut. Comdr. Frank Louis Muller, U. S. N., retired, hero of a naval incident of the World War.

Commander Muller, a member of a well known military family, died at the Veterans' Administration Hospital here yesterday.

He succumbed to a lung ailment contracted while he was held two months aboard the German submarine UK-152 after the United States transport Ticonderoga, of which he was chief officer, had been torpedoed by the submersible with a life loss of more than 200.

Muller and another officer were picked up by the U-boat, the few other survivors escaping in life boats. Muller and his companion were kept prisoners aboard the submarine until the armistice.

Commander Muller is survived by his widow here, and six brothers. One of the brothers is Lieut. Walter Muller, U. S. A., Gainsborough, Fla.

Paris, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. Richard Herrera y Guiral, Cuban Minister to France, died today in his apartment in the Rue Bassano. He was 66 years old.

Woman Confesses Killing 3 Children

Drowned Them in Bathtub; Feared Hunger, She Tells Police.

Mattoon, Ill., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—State's Attorney C. M. Heinlein said tonight that Mrs. Inez S. Carrell, of Chicago, self-admitted slayer of her three children, would be taken to the Coles County Jail at Charleston when her condition warranted removal from the hospital. He indicated he might request a special grand jury investigation of the triple slaying.

The woman, under arrest at the hospital where she is recovering slowly from the effect of a narcotic she took in an effort at suicide, is being closely guarded.

The tragic story was revealed last night when hotel employes, wondering because the family had not appeared all day, broke into their room and found the three children dead and the mother unconscious. Later Mrs. Carrell said she had given the children—Mary Ellen, 5; Robert, 7, and June, 10—a narcotic and then drowned them in a bathtub. Mrs. Carrell, a widow, said she had lost her position and her reserve funds through failure of a utility security firm, and feared her family would become destitute.

George Weston Is Stricken by Heart Attack as He Plays Golf.

Westfield, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—George Weston, vice president and treasurer of the American Express Co., died suddenly today while playing golf at the Echo Lake Country Club. He suffered a heart attack as he was about to drive off the third tee. He was 56 years old.

Mr. Weston was born in Ohio and had been associated with the American Express Co. for about 40 years. He represented the company on the West Coast, later in South America, and since 1924 had held executive positions in the New York office.

He was prominent in civic affairs here and was vice president and a director of the Young Men's Christian Association. His widow, Ruby, and a daughter, Mrs. F. J. Gimber, of Plainfield, survive.

Judge Robert Ewing, 83, Dead in Nashville, Tenn.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Judge Robert Ewing, 83, former Mayor of Nashville and prominent in business and educational affairs, died at a hospital here today following upon a recent operation. Death was attributed partly to the infirmities of age.

Judge Ewing's sister, Rebecca, married Henry Watterson when the noted editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal was engaged in newspaper work in Nashville shortly after the Civil War. Judge Ewing attended Washington and Lee University in 1867-68, while Gen. Robert E. Lee was president of the institution.

A Hosiery Bargain --- If Perfect

The majority of Washington Merchants cooperate with the Better Business Bureau by plainly-stating when merchandise is not perfect quality. This cooperation extends to newspaper advertising, window displays and even to their store signs.

In the interest of the buying public, these stores candidly and frankly state when merchandise is imperfect, irregular or of second quality. They do not attempt subterfuges such as "run of the mill," "substandards" or employ other terms that may not be readily understood by the layman.

Some few merchants are not so particular, especially in widow displays of hosiery. If you are buying "bargain" hosiery, it is only fair to yourself, as well as to the merchants, who are using truthful advertising, to see whether the merchandise is perfect.

Report to the Better Business Bureau any instance where you believe there has not been absolute frankness relative to the merchandise offered.

GEM THIEF QUIZZED IN LINDBERGH CASE

Answers Questions Freely; Escaped From Auburn Three Years Ago.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Arthur Barry, debonair jewelry thief captured last night in a secluded Sussex County cottage, where he had spent most of his time since escaping from Auburn Prison, N. Y., three years ago, freely answered detectives' questions at police headquarters tonight, but smiled when he was asked if he had any connection with the Lindbergh case.

"It's about time they got around to pinning that on me," he remarked to Chief McRell, when he was subjected to the routine questioning to which police now subject every criminal on the Lindbergh kidnaping.

"Everything that has been big and worthwhile in the last ten years has been pinned on me," Barry said.

The city police said the State police planned to question him further in connection with the kidnaping. The questioning, it was explained, is merely part of the practice that every criminal is a suspect until eliminated.

Is Captured by Ruse.

Barry was captured by a police ruse when a staged automobile crash lured him from the cottage in the Roseville Mountains, where he had been living as a $2-a-week boarder.

When Chief McRell interrogated him about the robbery of the Long Island home of Jesse Livermore, the stock market operator, Barry was quoted as replying:

"They said that the Livermore jewels were worth about a quarter of a million. I was satisfied with a take of $80,000."

After escaping from Auburn Prison, Barry said he then made his way to Albany and New York and ultimately went to the Sussex County hideaway where he was trapped.

He gave his age as 37 and said his family name was Gillison. He was born in Worcester, Mass. He also volunteered the information, police said, that the market crash of '29 had cost him between $300,000 and $400,000.

Employed as Carpenter.

Otto Reutter, owner of the cottage where Barry lived, knew his boarder as "James" Toner. Reutter, a building contractor, employed the escaped convict as a carpenter, but he told police Barry's work "wasn't even good."

Barry, he said, went in a great deal for the rural social activities of Sussex County and was regarded as quite a card and checker player.

At one time Barry applied to the county aid board for a job and did a turn at swinging a pick and shovel on Sussex roads. He also helped dig cellars, and did other odd jobs before he became a salesman for a window-wiping accessory.

Reutter said Barry was intensely interested in scientific matters. After his capture a large number of clippings from science periodicals were found in his room.

Four weeks ago Reutter said Barry received a telegram that his 83-year-old father had died in Tulsa, Okla.

Hunters Feared Dead in Wyoming

Little Hope Held for Men Missing Week After Snowstorm.

Sheridan, Wyo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The fate of three Wyoming hunters today apparently was sealed in the winter fastness of the Big Horn Mountains, where they have been missing for a week. The three men, and hundreds of others, went into the mountain wilderness 30 miles west of here last week-end for the opening of the big game season. They were caught in the most severe storm of the winter, a 14-inch snowfall.

The missing men are F. E. Demmel, 35, of Sheridan, father of five children, Byron McKinnon, 17, of Greybull, Wyo., and B. F. Yoakom, 21, of Columbine, Wyo.

Search was continued by forest rangers and local authorities, who fear the three men could not have survived. The weather was moderating today and scores of hunters were returning to the mountains to resume their trail of big game.

3 Held as Looters Of Minnesota Jail

Police Declare Confession Implicates Others as Members of Gang.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Authorities of Red Lake County, near here, today arrested three men as suspected members of the five-man gang which early Saturday raided the Polk County Jail here and fled with a truckload of loot.

Sheriff I. L. Haaven declined to reveal the names of the men held, but officers said they obtained a partial confession implicating two others, who are sought.

The raiders bound two jailers and a companion and carried out to a truck a machine gun, pistols and rifles, ammunition, liquor, $500 in cash and twenty slot machines estimated to contain another $500. Part of the loot was reported recovered at Red Lake Falls.

PRODIGAL EDUCATOR IS FORGIVEN BY WIFE

Goes Into Seclusion After Flight to Washington to Wed Another Woman.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Redondo Beach's prodigal school superintendent, 36-year-old Elliott B. Thomas, disappeared from public ken again today. This time he was accompanied into seclusion by his forgiving wife, Oliv.

They said they needed a rest.

Returning wearily and unshaven yesterday from a flight to Washington—a fugitive trip based on a complicated attempt to make it appear he had been kidnaped and slain, and with the confessed purpose o. changing his identity and marrying Miss Sylvia Wilson, of Seattle—Thomas appeared at the sheriff's office and talked as freely as his attorney, George Penney, would let him.

Charles Pierpont, clerk of the Redondo Beach school board, revealed the board had secretly adopted a resolution just before Thomas' return holding up his salary as superintendent pending "investigation" of his disappearance.

Pierpont said he was informed Thomas would submit his resignation to the board tomorrow.

No Charge to Be Pressed.

In the sheriff's office, where it was stated no charge would be pressed against Thomas, his endeavor to drop the accustomed routine of life for a fresh start as a new person was set down as the fortunate failure of a too intricate scheme.

"I say it is fortunate," commented Capt. Norris Stensland, "because had Thomas simply gone away without leaving behind him such a mass of glaring clews, he might have concealed his true identity long enough to have married Miss Wilson. He had taken out the marriage license at Kelso."

The captain quoted Thomas as saying he met Miss Wilson last July at Portland, Oreg.; that he created the fictitious character of "E. T. Sherwood" by registering a motor car under that name in Los Angeles; that he faked a burglary to remove his clothing from his home; that he threw his office into confusion last Monday to give an impression he had been attacked there by burglars, and that he then drove the "Sherwood" car to Seattle.

Surprised by Police.

Thomas expressed surprise, Stensland said, that the authorities had so quickly identified him as the false Sherwood.

"As an experienced man," Stensland said, "Thomas should have known he could not record the transfer of an automobile in his true name to 'E. T. Sherwood' without leaving a direct connection."

In the sheriff's office, Mrs. Thomas patted her husband's arm when he drooped under the questioning and said he wanted to "make amends."

"It's all right, old boy," she assured him. "We'll carry on again."

"I believe," she explained, "the intense mental strain he has been under, coupled with the lack of sufficient recreation, temporarily impaired his perspective."

Schumann-Heink Defends Appearance in 'Four-a-Day'

Sings in Vaudeville at 71 Because She Needs Money, She Says; Makes No Apology and Asks No Sympathy.

Detroit, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Ernestine Schumann-Heink, acclaimed for a generation as the greatest contralto in the opera world, today is doing "four-a-day" vaudeville, singing her best and "making no apologies and asking no sympathy."

The shining light of Wagnerian opera of other years, "Mother" Schumann, appearing here for an engagement, is emphatic, vigorous and unequivocal in her statement that she is "glad to be able to work." She is 71 years old, still has a sparkling eye and ruddy cheeks, and is as outspoken as the Schumann-Heink of another day.

"Eyebrows were raised and nice people sighed when I said I was going to do this thing—go into vaudeville," she said. "One of the best-known music critics in New York said, 'What a tragedy! Schumann-Heink in vaudeville * * * I can't believe it.'

"I told him right there that if he couldn't believe it he should come to see the show next week.

"Some women in New York," she continued, "they say, 'This is terrible!' Or else behind my back they say, 'What a comedown! From grand opera to vaudeville.'

"I said, 'You! You have rich husbands. And your husbands are jumping out of ten-story windows these days. That is a comedown, hah!"

Bluntly, Mme. Schumann-Heink says she works because she needs the money.

"I make my living," she said. "And it isn't just because I am Schumann-Heink. I sing my best. And the people who hear me like it. You get closer to people on the vaudeville stage. They are warmer. And you can't imagine how much that means to a sentimental old lady like myself.

"See! It is a new world for me. Imagine an old lady of 71 years 'going over' like that. And just starting in! Great, eh? Yah!"

William Penn Plot Is Given to State

Pennsylvania Celebrating 250th Anniversary of Landing.

Bristol, Pa., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Part of the once broad acreage of Pennsbury, the country estate of William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, was presented to the State today for dedication as a national shrine in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of Penn's landing in America.

Charles Warner, one of the owners of the tract and a descendant of men who knew and dealt with Penn, made the presentation. The land, situated in Falls Township, Bucks County, was received for Pennsylvania by Dr. James N. Rule, State superintendent of public instruction and chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission. "Pennsbury should and can be made to bear the same relation to Pennsylvania as Mount Vernon bears to the Nation," said Dr. Rule.

Tomorrow the celebration will center in Philadelphia's Convention Hall, where three-minute speeches by Kings of England and Sweden and the Queen of Holland are scheduled to be heard in an international radio hookup. In addition other notables also are expected to speak.

THREE FOUND SLAIN IN FIRE-RAZED HOME

Bodies of Elderly Couple and Unidentified Man Are Discovered in Kentucky.

Bloomfield, Ky., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The bodies of an aged couple and an unidentified man were found in the ruins of a farm house near here that had been destroyed by fire. County authorities, who started an investigation, were told each of the three had been shot through the head. The elderly couple was identified as Mr. and Mrs. Lud Ingram, both 70 years of age.

Pending outcome of the investigation, Nelson County authorities expressed belief robbery was the motive for the killings. They said the couple recently drew approximately $8,000 from a bank.

The Ingram home is located in the rural section of the county and details of the tradegy were meager. The fire was discovered early this morning by a paper carrier, Herbert Holt. Unable to gain entrance to the dwelling, he summoned aid, but the frame structure was practically destroyed before the bodies could be reached.

Authorities said two pistols were found in the house and at least one of them had been discharged recently. Neighbors said a large automobile was parked in front of the four-room home several hours before the fire was discovered. Officers sought to trace the automobile and question its occupants.

Two of the bodies were found in the bedroom and the other was in an adjoining room.

SURVEY OF MEDICAL ADVERTISING MADE

Widespread Public Demand for Information Shown by Study.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Julius Rosenwald fund today published the results of a survey of newspaper medical advertising in the last ten years, conducted by Miss Mary Ross, of New York, and covering all the various efforts made in the way of public education in health problems by medical organizations, nonprofiting institutes and private businesses.

No conclusions are offered and no recommendations, but the results of campaigns in different fields are presented. Michael M. Davis, director for medical services of the fund, in a commentary chapter, however, concludes tentatively:

That there is a widespread demand for information by the public.

That newspaper advertising is only one channel of publicity, in addition to speakers, pamphlets, radio talks and press bureaus.

That newspapers are cooperating well in the effort to keep out quack advertising and that all campaigns should be under the control of professional men, both medical and advertising experts.

That the advertising yields definite results, but only in proportion as its aims are against a specific disease rather than general.

That closer relations between editors and doctors would be of mutual advantage.

The report points out that personal advertising by physicians is unethical by medical codes, but that educational advertising by medical groups to help the public understand disease is approved and often effective if well handled.

Voyagers Float Down Ohio, Depicting Washington's Trip

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Clad in Colonial dress of Revolutionary days, a band of 10 "pioneers" reached their flatboat and birch bark canoe on the Wheeling shore of the Ohio River today.

They are portraying George Washington's voyage down the river in 1770, from East Liverpool, Ohio, to Point Pleasant, W. Va.—a 10-day journey.

"Washington"—with Roy W. Lewis, of St. Clairsville, Ohio, a collateral descendant of the first President, playing the role—and his seven venturesome companions and two Indian guides were greeted by a large crowd. The guides were loaned to Gen. Washington by a friendly Mingo chieftain.

Here, the site of Fort Henry, a leader of the settlement told Washington that "the people of Western Virginia have heard much of your progress, although news does not arrive here quickly."

The pageant was arranged by a joint State committee of Ohio and West Virginia as part of the Bicentennial celebration. The party in the role of reenacters travels and halts true to the schedule followed by Gen. Washington.

The adventurers will leave tomorrow for Powhatan, Ohio, where Washington pitched camp on his third day out of what is now East Liverpool.

Very unpioneer-like, the voyagers slept tonight in a hotel.

FOREIGN DUMPING.

British cement which is imported over the tariff wall at prices below the cost of production in this country will soon be going into buildings that are being erected to relieve unemployment in New York and surrounding territory. This amazing paradox was revealed at the hearings conducted by Commissioner of Customs F. X. A. Eble on the dumping of foreign goods into the American market. Soon after Great Britain went off the gold standard British cement began to invade the American market. It is sold here at about 20 cents per barrel below the American price. Apparently the amount shipped in is not large, but in this time of depression it forces some American mills to curtail or suspend operations. Thus men are thrown out of work.

Many similar reports have been told to the Commissioner of Customs by manufacturers who are overwhelmed by cheap products from other countries. Most of the complaints are directed against Japan. Japanese manufacturers have completely taken over the Christmas tree electric light industry, which was making 50,000,000 tree bulbs a few years ago. Now the Japanese are shipping incandescent lamps used for ordinary lighting purposes into the American market at less than the materials cost in this country. Light bulb manufacturers are fearful that their industry will be destroyed unless protection is forthcoming.

Even the steel industry is complaining of cheap pig iron from Japan, Belgium, Germany and France. The shoe industry has been making its complaints heard for some time. Rubber manufacturers have lost their market for light rubber goods and foresee an invasion of the domestic market for automobile tires, as Japan is becoming an adept in that field. In almost every case, these importations are coming from countries with depreciated currency, where labor and materials have been cheapened in terms of American money. Foreign manufacturers are taking advantage of the depression by paying starvation wages. Especially in Japan labor lives on a pittance, but renders efficient service.

The solution of this problem is by no means clear. It is obvious that the Government will not stand by and see American workingmen cheated of their jobs and American industries pushed to the wall. But not much relief can be expected from the existing anti-dumping laws, and a revision of the tariff at this time might do more harm than good. President Hoover has asked the Tariff Commission to investigate these conditions with a view toward giving relief, but the commission's powers are very limited. Congress might enact a law at its coming session to nullify the shrinking effect of depreciated currency on ad valorem duties, but the advantages which foreign manufacturers have through the payment of starvation wages and the exploitation of raw materials at ruinous prices can not be offset in that way. The only sure method of preventing ruinous foreign competition is to fix the valuation of goods on the basis of American cost of production.

The immediate effect of this foreign dumping on the American market is to emphasize the utter impossibility of reducing the protective tariff without increasing unemployment, driving wages lower and retarding the recovery of industry. There has never been a more inappropriate time for the United States to embark upon a policy of competition with industry in foreign lands. The tariff is the last bulwark against destruction of the American standard of living. If it is to be substantially lowered, then the people of this country must move down to a lower level where they can compete with foreign pauperized labor. No more bath rooms for American workingmen or their families if Gov. Roosevelt's plan to reduce the tariff is adopted. Meat once a week, and children at work instead of in school, must be the rule if Americans are to compete with foreign labor.

SUSTAINED IMPROVEMENT.

The most encouraging feature of the business situation is that the improvement in general conditions registered in August was continued through September. When industry can advance in the face of natural seasonal declines for many lines, and in the midst of a presidential campaign, it is convincing evidence that the upturn which started nearly three months ago was not simply a false spurt of activity. There has been a logical progression following restored confidence in July. As soon as the threat of bonus legislation was ended the country went forward. Certain lines still lag at this season, but sales and production have improved in so many directions that a more cheerful note is heard from all sections of the country.

The National Industrial Conference Board in its latest bulletin, just issued, finds that business conditions, as reflected in definite statistical records, show an extension of gains from fields of consumers' goods production and consumption into producers' goods channels, a betterment that has been long awaited. An interesting meeting held in New York between the steel interests and the railroads may result in the release of orders for rails aggregating 1,000,000 tons. Agreements have been reached to lower the basic price of rails. The accumulated replacement needs of the roads may be useful in supplying a giant backlog of orders which will do much to restore normal activity to the steel industry.

The report of the Federal Oil Conservation Board just sent to the President brings the cheerful indication that the oil industry may be the first basic industry to emerge from the world depression. This latest survey shows that the successful efforts to restrict production has resulted in increased prices, which, though still at the border line of production costs, are over twice the mid-continent levels of a year ago, and five times over the 1931 lows. Oil enjoys the one market which has suffered little reduction, crude demand for the first half of this year being 89 per cent of that of 1929 and 94 per cent of the same period last year.

SAO PAULO QUITS.

The revolution of Sao Paulo is regarded by some observers as the largest and fiercest ever fought over an equal period in Latin America. The thorough organization of the Paulistas, and the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire population, resulted in a bloody struggle against the rest of Brazil, lasting three months. To the outside world it was astonishing that this state, supported only by the thinly populated state of Matto Grosso, could fight the other nineteen states for so long, cut off as it was from getting supplies of any kind from outside.

Paulistas, on the contrary, were astonished at the sudden conclusion of the war. Internal propaganda and censored reports of conditions led the populace to believe Sao Paulo would win. A campaign asking for contributions of gold articles to finance the war was heroically met. Women gave their wedding rings and jewelry; medals, ornaments and bits of gold were contributed by over 90,000 people. This spirit, and the fact that virtually no family in Sao Paulo was without a son or brother at the front, fostered confidence in their cause.

When news of the armistice, amounting to defeat, reached Sao Paulo, the people were stunned; they could not believe it. There is a widespread belief that Sao Paulo was betrayed by the military police. The commander of this body has explained that knowing the desperate conditions existing on all fronts he felt it to be his duty to save further bloodshed. Whatever the motives of the commander, feeling is running high against him since his retention as head of the military police by the new military governor in contrast with the treatment accorded to Gen. Klinger, commander-in-chief of the Paulista forces, who was sent to Rio with his staff and imprisoned on the steamer Pedro II.

AMERICAN HOMES.

An average home in the United States, not including farm homes, was worth $4,778 in 1930. In the District of Columbia the average home was valued at $9,246. Washington leads all the States in the average value of its homes, and the median rental here is also ahead of the average in the States.

These interesting figures are contained in a report of the Census Bureau. In its nation-wide enumeration two years ago it recorded 10,503,386 nonfarm homes owned by their occupants, and 12,351,549 rented nonfarm homes. Apparently Washington leads the list in both the average home value and the average rental because the District is entirely urban, while a large percentage of homes in the States are rural. New York stands next to the District in the average value of its homes. Then come New Jersey and Connecticut. Outside of Washington average rentals are highest in New York, Illinois, Michigan and New Jersey, all States with high urban population.

There is a wide spread between the value of the average home in Washington and in Mississippi, which State is at the foot of the list. Mississippi's average home is worth $2,074, and the average home is only slightly more valuable in Arkansas. Most of the southern States have a low average in both home values and rentals. In Washington 41 per cent of all the homes were valued at $10,000 or more in 1930, but in Idaho only 2.4 per cent of the homes had that value.

It is interesting to note that the value of the average nonfarm home owned by foreign-born white residents is higher than the value of native American homes. Rentals paid by foreign-born families are also higher. This is probably not due to greater prosperity among the foreign-born, but to the fact that a large percentage of aliens remain in cities where real estate is expensive.

Washington is revealed as a city of temporary residents by these census statistics. In the country as a whole there is quite a fair balance between owned homes and rented living quarters. But in the District there are 47,190 owned homes compared with 75,223 rented homes. A large majority of the homes here are valued between $5,000 and $15,000. The average rental here in 1930 was $44.28 per month, with nearly two-thirds of all the rented living quarters ranging from $30 to $75 per month. Only about 1,100 families paid more than $150 per month.

Looking at this general picture of American homes, a wide diversity is apparent. The number of elaborate and expensive homes is considerable, and poor homes are numerous. But on the whole there is no other country in the world that possesses such an excellent average home as the United States.

CONGRESSIONAL OPINION.

A poll of the candidates for Congress in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut was taken by the New York Sun on their attitude toward the three important questions of the bonus, repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and a sales tax. The candidates canvassed number 143, and 106 replied. Generally speaking the preponderant votes favored repeal and the sales tax and opposed the bonus.

Of the 106 who answered 71 said that they were not for the cash payment of the bonus; 91 favored repeal, and 71 favored passage of a sales tax bill similar to the one defeated at the last session of Congress. A comparison of the answers given by the incumbents in the metropolitan area with the roll call records during the first session ending last July shows only four changes of opinion. One New Jersey representative who opposed the sales tax is ready to support it, while another who voted for the bonus and against the sales tax is ready to reverse himself on both issues.

So far as the great bulk of those polled are concerned they have not changed their views, or at least merely qualify categorical answers. The doubtful, or those whose opinions may be altered before they vote again, may be numbered among the candidates who failed to reply to the Sun's queries. Only six outright noes are numbered in the vote cast on the question of repeal. It is evident from the decided character of the votes that even if all questioned had voted the majority opinions could not have been changed and the Sun's editorial comment on the result is that "it is apparent from incomplete answers that candidates who are also members of the 72nd Congress still hold in the main to views which they expressed in the first session by votes."

When the leader of the bonus boys says Gov. Roosevelt has not closed the door on them he opens the door to alarm on the part of the taxpayer.

When it comes to another Californian occupying the White House, Hi Johnson is an inconsolable irreconcilable.

Gov. Roosevelt urges the voters not to be scared—the Hoover recovery program will be wrecked painlessly.

A PHILIPPINE "DOMINION."

From the Atlanta Constitution.

An interesting suggestion for the solution of the Philippine problem is made by Vicente Villamin, widely known Filipino lawyer and economist, in an interview appearing in Sunday's Constitution.

Mr. Villamin, who stopped briefly in Atlanta on his way to New Orleans to deliver a series of addresses, feels that the "creation of a Philippine dominion," fashioned along the lines of the British empire, is the "most rational and least imperfect solution" of the question of what is best for the islands which have made such remarkable progress during the past quarter of a century under the protection of the United States.

Complete separation from this country, he feels, would be suicidal for the Philippines from both an economic and political standpoint in view of the unsettled conditions now existing in the Far East. Without the protection of this country he predicts that the islands, now coveted by no nation, would become "an apple of international discord."

At this time, this able Filipino points out, his people are the "freest, the happiest, the best situated and the best treated people in the Orient, being in peace and plenty in the midst of poverty, pestilence and wars in that section of the world."

They have more independence from the Federal Government than the States of the Union, 98 per cent of their government personnel being Filipinos; they pay no tax to this country, despite the protection given them, and it is not necessary for them to pay the expenses of military armament. Thus it is possible to devote the entire revenue of their government to the educational, physical and agricultural development of the islands.

As a "dominion" of the United States this happy condition could be continued, under a government to all intents and purposes their own.

Mr. Villamin is one of the ablest and broadest visioned leaders of his race. While making frequent visits to his native islands, he spends most of his time in lecturing and the practice of his profession in this country. Certainly his interesting suggestion is worthy of the careful consideration of Congress in the effort to come to the best possible solution of the Philippine problem.

POST HASTE.

If the governor wants to defend the measures passed by the Democratic House the President's Detroit speech will save his looking up a lot of dates.

Gov. Roosevelt plans a special financial post for Al Smith in the Cabinet. He would need extra help to cut that billion from where it ain't.

Senator Tom Walsh says he sees no signs of the depression lifting. Distrusting Commerce experts, he might consult Messrs. Dun and Bradstreet for that astigmatism.

Don't worry about there only being two weeks left. It doesn't take a voter long to make up his mind when he gets facts to compare with fanciful promises.

Larger audiences than the old-time spellbinders could talk to in a month are being reached every day by radio.

It is suggested that Gov. Roosevelt be provided with two rubber stamps, one bearing "yes" and one "no," for use instead of the present one which says "yes and no."

With Gov. Sterling supporting the Republican nominee for governor in Texas, who in turn offers to retire if the Democrats will put up any other candidate, outsiders wonder how the Fergusons ever got nominated.

Escaping the usual broken hearts and ties, Tom Mix got off in his encounter with a Hollywood love scene with only two broken ribs.

Senator Borah is contributing to the Berlin press, supporting Germany's right to arm. Since he is taking up these matters direct he ought in all kindness to be relieved of his circumlocutory duties on the foreign relations committee.

Gov. Roosevelt's efforts to twist the international belt and bitch the world depression to the United States, is a mechanical impossibility that only his college theorists could have conceived.

Since Sing Sing has inaugurated regular games prison guards elsewhere must be careful not to confuse football practice with riots.

One thing the Republican orators can not deny is that this country has nothing to compare with the huge unfavorable trade balances of France and England. PAUL HUDSON.

SILVER SPRUCE.

I never see a garden spot,
A spruce tree, gleaming silver blue,
But what I think mankind is not
With selfishness shot through and through.
For patches of lawn men beautify
Give joy to strangers passing by.

A little row of asters gay,
A bed of salvia late in fall,
Tenants of houses drab display
As gifts they make to one and all.
In beauty's language they declare
What's loveliest in life they'll share.

Long hours and bitterness and pain
And sorrow are the common lot;
Yet people seldom think it vain
To labor o'er a garden plot,
And some their inmost thoughts reduce
To shimmering boughs of silver spruce.

If He Has No Ear for Music, Why Waste His Time on Piano Lessons?
By ROBERT QUILLEN

FROM what source is the benefit of college derived?

From books.

Who, then, is equipped to obtain benefit from college?

Those who have a natural taste and aptitude for books.

What, then, of those more numerous youngsters to whom all books are a bore and a nuisance?

The question answers itself. Would you train a plow horse for racing, or a race horse for plowing? Would you ask your son to spend four years learning to paint if he had no talent for drawing?

There is a diversity of gifts. To assume that all young people can or should covet and comprehend the knowledge printed in college textbooks is no more reasonable than to assume that all of them should learn to play the harp or study navigation or take lessons in singing.

Many young people abominate books. They fall asleep when they try to read anything that promises to "improve their minds." They are bored by printed matter that contains ideas. Left to their own devices, they would not open a book from one year's end to the next.

When youngsters of this kind go to college, they make no effort to acquire knowledge for its own sake. They merely memorize certain facts to meet college requirements. They are not in college to learn, but to graduate—to get a "dip." Their one ambition is to "get by" with a minimum of effort.

It can be stated as a general rule that any youngster who never voluntarily reads a good book or consults a dictionary or encyclopedia will get little benefit from college. He will fail to make the grade or he will bluff his way through.

And it can be stated as an invariable rule that any college graduate who never buys or reads a book after completing his "education" is indebted to the college for nothing at all except a four-year delay of his career.

This doesn't mean that people who dislike books are stupid. Some of our most successful men failed in college or ranked as dull students because they were asked to learn things in which they felt no interest. Colleges are for those who desire "book learning." To those who despise books they are an unprofitable punishment imposed by the vanity of parents.

You can force a boy to study theology. But if he feels no urge to preach, you may rob the world of a good mechanic to give the pulpit an unhappy hypocrite.

PRO AND CON

Who Had Foresight?
Kansas City Star.

Opponents of the President, from Mr. Garner down, and up, are horrified at the thought that the administration did not see the depression in advance and do something about it before it happened. But were these critics or any of their fellow party members possessed of this rare vision? At least, if they saw what was coming and what ought to be done, they were remarkably quiet about both. Even after the event they were, and are, without a program of action. But, of course, a lot more is expected of the administration, especially with a campaign in full swing.

California Uncertain.
Los Angeles Times.

While California is normally strongly Republican and stands to lose more than almost any other commonwealth at the hands of a low-tariff Democratic administration, it is idle to deny that lassitude and indifference on the part of its Republicans may result in a Democratic victory in this State on November 8.

Further, as happened in 1916, the outcome in California may easily mean the difference between success and defeat for the Republican national ticket. For all their vociferous claims the Democratic strategists privately admit that the race will be very close and that California's 22 votes in the electoral college may determine the final result.

To a Frazzle.
Louisville Courier-Journal.

Virgil said: "The noblest motive of a statesman is to do the public good." Some of them have succeeded in doing the public good and brown.

Covering the Elephant.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Curtis places the responsibility for the depression on the Democrats and Mr. Hoover puts the blame on the rest of the world. And that's an alibi that ought to be big enough to cover the elephant, limping along into disconsolate, shivering November.

How About Wild Bill?
Macon Telegraph.

Standard Oil man just back from the island says he couldn't find a wild man in all Borneo. He can find several around at the Republican national campaign headquarters if that's all he's looking for.

This Is Telling 'Em.
Jay House, in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

We have talked little politics in this campaign and shall talk even less as the campaign proceeds toward its end.

The reason is that political discussion irks us beyond words. It isn't that we object to the other fellow's political affiliations. So far as we are concerned, it is all right for him to be for whomsoever he chooses. What we can't stand is his abysmal ignorance and the puerile arguments with which he supports his viewpoints.

Your average political talker neither grasps nor understands any of the implications of a political campaign. He has no background of political knowledge and not the faintest notion concerning what is going on. His inability to talk or reason intelligently annoys us out of all proportion to its importance, and for that reason it is much better if we talk to him not at all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wild Crabapple Tree Has Beautiful Blossoms but Poor Fruit—Mrs. Clifford Tells a Parable.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a striking difference in the habit of apple trees. For instance, the wild crabapple tree presents an attractive, promising spectacle with its perfect bower of beautiful, fragrant blossoms, but on maturing its fruit is bitter, puckery, dwarf and impossible. Unless.

Other varieties produce a less prolific, modest, yet beautiful blossom and, in due season, yield the most healthful, useful and general purpose fruit on the market. No other fruit is so universally used in such a variety of ways. The wise, experienced boy immediately singles out the best apple tree in the orchard by number of clubs in and around it. President Hoover has been sufficiently "clubbed" to distinguish him as belonging to the latter variety.

I can not help likening Gov. Roosevelt, with his prolific, general promises of curing all the world's woes over night, to the wild crab tree. His competitive tariff plans reminds one of the man who, having an unusual dread of sickness and death, provided what he called his "jug-of-all-sorts." Into it he poured a prescribed remedy for all the various ills that beset humanity. Application to this jug would cure any and all ills.

Let us, with the wisdom of the small boy, pin our faith to the tree with the greatest number of clubs in and around it, thus proving that it has, in the past, yielded useful fruits. Hold on to Hoover.

MRS. JENNIE R. CLIFFORD.

Music Lover Protests Against Suppression of Service Band Concerts on Demand of Union Musicians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Perhaps I may be unnecessarily alarmed, but the statement in The Post of October 21, relative to the attitude of the union musicians toward the service bands on the air, seems to me to be just one more of those attacks on the personal liberty of the American taxpayer.

The service bands are paid by the citizens of this country, and we who are taxpayers have every right to hear them. I do not mean by this that paid musicians should be kept off the air, but certainly those of us who enjoy the splendid music played by the Marine, Army and Navy bands should not be denied the right to hear them over a radio for which we have also paid money.

Also consider that a great many of us do not care for the so-called music which many of these orchestras and bands put out. When we tune in for a Service concert, we are sure of good music splendidly played. When we tune in for some of these other bands or orchestras, we are never certain but that trash or baked crooning member of the chestra will be put on.

MUSIC LOVER.

Bonus or No Bonus?—Voter Can't Quite Understand Roosevelt's Position.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Hoover opposes the bonus on the basis of principle and on the basis of the inability of the Government to pay. Mr. Roosevelt, at Pittsburgh, with bumptious finality again leaves us dangling in the treetops. He repeats his earlier statement that he does not see how the Government can consider the anticipation of a bonus payment "until it (the Government) has a balanced budget * * * with cash in the Treasury."

How much cash in the Treasury, Mr. Roosevelt; 10 cents or a billion dollars? And if by any super-miracle such surplus as the latter total developed, do we understand that you would then approve the bonus? Or what do we understand?

May I submit the modest opinion that I do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt can continue to fool for another three weeks enough of the people to elect him President of the United States? BOB STANLEY.

Yonkers, N. Y.

Suggests Amendment Requiring Approval of People to Give Effect to Bill Passed Over Veto.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would seem to the writer, in view of the American Legion's action in demanding immediate payment of the bonus, regardless of the disastrous effect it would have on the country, and the low grade and irresponsibility of the present Congress, that we badly need another amendment to the Constitution providing that before any act passed over the President's veto becomes law it shall be submitted to a vote of the people.

The first bonus payment and the proposed widow's pension and the Philippine independence are evidence of this need, not to mention the grossly excessive amount now expended by the Government for the veterans. H. G. THOMPSON.

According to an article recently quoted by S. H. McCrory, chief, Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, U. S. Department of Agriculture, an English farmer's wife in the sixteenth century had many and varied duties to perform. "Among other things she is to make her husband and herself some clothes, and she may have the lockes of the shepe either to make blanketts and coverlettes, or both. It is a wive's occupation to wynowe all manner of cornes, to make malte, to washe and wrynge, to make heye, shere corne, and, in time of nede, to helpe her husband to fyll the muckewayne or dounge carte, drive the ploughe, to loade heye, corne and suche other. And to go or ride to market, to sel butter, chese, mylke, egges, chekyns, capons, hennes, pygges, gese, and all maner of cornes." Most of us will admit that there has been at least some improvement in 400 years.

REPRISALS MENACE CHICAGO TAX DODGER

Officials Threaten to Cut Off Water and Recall Parking Privileges.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Chicago tax dodger squirmed today under threats of having no place to park his automobile and no water for his bathtub, as city officials considered a retaliation campaign intended to start the flow of nearly $200,000,000 in unpaid taxes into the city treasury.

Victorious after legal complications for months held tight the purse strings of deliberate tax strikers, a somewhat riled Father Dearborn pounded the table and shouted predictions that if tax slackers didn't pay up reprisal would be started along no uncertain lines.

Alderman John Clark, chairman of the finance committee of the city council, went into conference with Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens' committee on public expenditures. They developed a plan to withhold from tax dodgers at least a part of the city's services.

A recent Supreme Court decision holding the assessment of taxes legal gave the city authority to collect unpaid taxes, officials said, and to break a so-called tax strike that prevented collection. Thousands of citizens had joined in a strike and withheld their tax payments on the grounds that assessments were illegal.

The Sargent plan for collection which will be submitted to the finance committee this week recommended that water-tax dodgers have their water shut off; that garbage removal be stopped; that automobile parking privileges and other services rendered by the city be withdrawn until the strikers pay up. The plan, he suggested, should be tempered to limit retaliation to strikers owing more than $10,000, on property now producing revenue.

The nonpayment of 20 per cent of the 1928 taxes, 30 per cent of the 1929 taxes, and 45 per cent of the 1930 taxes, through evident conspiracy of the so-called tax strikers," he said, "has so depreciated and endangered governmental credit in the city as to cause many local governmental agencies to default on the principal and interest of their funded debt."

Marker Is Placed At Historic Tavern

Visits of Washington to Inn Near Beltsville Commemorated.

George Washington's visits to the old Van Horn Tavern on the Baltimore road were commemorated yesterday with the placing of a Bicentennial marker on the site of the famous wayside inn near Beltsville, Md.

The Beltsville memorial was presented by the Rezin Beall Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. A son of the tavern keeper married a daughter of Gen. Beall, who lived nearby, and for this reason the chapter selected the tavern site for the marker.

Mrs. John G. H. Lilburn, State regent of the D. A. R., made the address of presentation after the marker was formally presented to her by Miss Laura Matthews, regent of the chapter. C. C. Magruder, chairman of the county bicentennial committee, also made an address.

26 Nations' Winemakers Open Sessions in Rome

Rome, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Winemakers of 26 nations met today to begin a week's international congress which they hope will revive their business. Italian Minister of Agriculture Baron Acerbo presided.

The United States was in the thoughts of many delegates. One of the subjects for discussion was "a project for dividing consumers' markets by reciprocal agreements among producing countries and for conquering new markets where wine has been hitherto unknown or obtainable with difficulty."

EVENTS IN CAPITAL SOCIETY

President Returns to Washington From Detroit

THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. HOOVER returned to Washington yesterday from Detroit, where the former made a campaign address at the Olympia Arena Saturday night.

In machines decorated with their slogan, "Rolling Up Votes for Hoover," they are cooperating with Mrs. Ellis Yost and local committeewomen in 32 States to get out the vote for Mr. Hoover.

Mrs. Roy V. Wright, of New York City, national chairman of the Elect Hoover Engineers' Wives group is heading this motor corps division.

Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins, at whose home Mrs. Hoover received 1,500 engineers' wives from nearby Virginia and Maryland at a tea October 14 with a committee of 200 has organized the local division.

Meeting with the group which was received at the White House in addition to Mrs. Roy Wright, Mrs. Tompkins and their committee of 200 were Mrs. Sarah Duvell, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Henry K. Morris, Mrs. Eugene Stevens, Mrs. Harley Wilson, Mrs. Francis Tompkins, Miss Elizabeth Sherier, Mrs. Eugene Stevens, Mrs. Chester Warrington, Mrs. Daniel Borden, Mrs. Paul Sleman, Mrs. Frederic E. Farrington, Mrs. David H. Blair, Mrs. William H. Williamson, Mrs. Karl Corby, Mrs. E. G. Montgomery, Mrs. Fay Stanley Holbrook and Mrs. Whitman Cross.

Mrs. Roy V. Wright, in a few brief remarks, outlined the purpose of the organization. Miss Tompkins presented Mrs. Hoover with a bouquet of garden flowers gathered from members' gardens as the journey was made to Washington.

After being received, the delegation entered their machines and, with Mrs. Roy V. Wright and Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins leading, passed in a single-line auto parade formation past the southwest gate of the White House, with Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Stark MacMullin waving to the women drivers as they went by.

As the long line of cars rolled down Pennsylvania avenue on the right, circled the Peace Monument in front of the Capitol, and again returned to the White House gates on the left, where it disbanded, it was evident that this was mothers', daughters' and grandmothers' organization banded together to get out the votes on election day with veteran-like skill and dispatch.

Ambassador Claudel Is Back From New York.

The Ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel, returned to Washington yesterday from Albany and New York City. While in Albany, the ambassador received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University of the State of New York, which was conferred on him by Dr. Frank P. Graves, commissioner of education, and president of the university.

The Ambassador stopped in New York en route to the Capital and on Saturday was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Cartier, who entertained at luncheon in his honor. The other guests were Vicomtess de Farramond, Mrs. Seney Park, Miss Mary Kenna, the Financial Attache of the Embassy, M. Emmanuel Monick; the Air Attache of the Embassy, Maj. Georges Thenault; Mr. Charles de Fontnouvelles, the French Consul General in New York, and M. de Sieyes.

Mme. Claudel and their daughters plan to sail from France on November 2 for this country.

The Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Veverka were the guests in whose honor the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, entertained at luncheon yesterday.

The occasion was the exhibition of a recently completed portrait of Dr. Nevils painted by Mme. Veverka, which she has presented to the university. Later the painting will be on exhibition in the Beauchamps-Hughes Art Cabinet at the college.

The luncheon guests who included close friends and relatives were Miss Nella Veverka and Mr. Ferdinand Veverka, daughter and son of the Minister and Mme. Veverka; the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal; Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce, Mrs. Robert Mackenzie, Miss Bernadette Daily, of Philadelphia, a niece of Father Nevils; Mr. Francis U. Wolpert, Mr. Berchman Daily and Mr. Regis Daily, nephews of Father Nevils; Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of the university, and Mr. John G. Bowen.

Mrs. Neuhauser Gives Tea at Residence.

Mrs. William H. King, wife of Senator King, and Mrs. Allard H. Gasque, wife of Representative Gasque, were among those assisting Mrs. Roy L. Neuhauser at a tea given yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Neuhauser has converted the basement of her home on Kalorama road into a charming Spanish court, and the tea yesterday was the first function to be held there. The walls have been elaborately decorated by the hostess, who is an artist of note.

Others assisting Mrs. Neuhanser were Mrs. William Cleary Sullivan, Mrs. Christopher H. Pope and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George Richards announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth Richards, to Mr. Edward Winslow Coffin Devereux, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Ryan Devereux, on last Saturday afternoon in the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament. The ceremony which took place in the presence of Gen. and Mrs. Richards and members of the bridegroom's family, was performed by the Rev. Father Smythe, and comes as a surprise to the friends of the young couple, although the engagement was announced some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Devereux left for a wedding trip to New York immediately after the ceremony, and before returning to Washington will visit the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Devereux, at their home in Baltimore.

Miss Anne Buffington Tennant, of Oatlands, Va., whose marriage to Mr. Southgate Lemmon Morison, of Welbourne, Loudoun County, will take place tomorrow, has chosen as her maid of honor, her cousin, Miss Alice Hathaway Tennant. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Virginia Harris, of Aldie, Va., and the bridegroom's sister Miss Frances Morison, of Middleburg.

Mr. Nathaniel Holmes Morison will act as best man for his brother. The ushers will be Mr. David Tennant Bryan, of Richmond, cousin of the bride; Mr. David Rondall, of New York; Mr. Carter Moore, of New York; Mr. Robert Stimson, of Baltimore; Mr. Jack Bonman, of Warrenton; Mr. William Davidson, of Plainfield, N. J., and Mr. Robert Stauft, of Uniontown, Pa.

Mr. Morison and his bride will go to Bermuda on their wedding trip and upon their return will make their home in Baltimore.

Today Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, uncle and aunt of the bride-to-be, will give a luncheon at their home in Middleburg and this evening Mr. and Mrs. Morison, parents of the bridegroom-elect, will entertain at their home, Welbourne, for Miss Tennant, their son, the wedding party and the out-of-town guests.

Miss Tennant is a grand-daughter of Mrs. John W. Bayne and frequently visits her at Salubria, near Oxon Hill, Md., which has been in the Bayne family for generations.

Mrs. Guy W. S. Castle and Mrs. Bayne Proctor are her aunts.

The wedding will take place at noon, in the Oatlands Church, and will be followed by a reception at "Oakham," the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry Fairfax.

The Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall Leaves for St. Louis.

The Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, former rector of St. Mark's Church, who has made his home at The Dodge for the past few yeaars, left Thursday for St. Louis, Mo., where he will take up his new duties as rector of St. Peter's Church.

M. Stephen Fauzanne, chief editor of the Paris Matin, is making his headquarters at the Mayflower while in Washington for a brief visit.

Miss Anna C. Riley has returned to her apartment at Wardman Park Hotel for the winter season, after an absence of several months.

Mrs. George Tillman Bell has issued invitations for a luncheon to be given in honor of her daughter, Miss Marylee Bell, November 16, at the Shoreham.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, of Paris, who are now making their annual visit to the United States, will arrive in Washington tomorrow and will be guests at the Mayflower for a week or two.

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Haas, of this city, have leased an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel and will make their home there in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Guida Meriam Smith, to Mr. Arthur Stouffer Bovey, son of the Rev. Elmer E. Bovey, of Waynesboro, Pa., on Thursday, September 29, at Ellicott City, Md.

The Rev. H. D. Stewart, of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, officiated.

Mrs. Joseph M. Heller is visiting Atlantic City for a short stay and is a guest of the Traymore Hotel. Mrs. I. Saks, of New York, motored from her country home at Elberon, N. J., to be with her for a few days.

A list of patrons, as announced by Mr. Elmer E. Field, for the All-States Halloween ball, to be held at the Willard Hotel next Monday evening, follows:

Miss Marjorie Maxfield, Miss Betty Schwartz, Miss Dorothy Cronin, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alter, Miss Hattie Bishop, Miss Eleanor Harvey, Miss Genevieve Beardsley, Mr. and Mrs. James Dewhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dixon, Miss Vera Thummel, Mr. C. S. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. James Wooding, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Caldwell, Mrs. W. Stuart Hodge, Miss Grace Critchett, Miss Anne Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Davidson, Miss Myrtle Riley, Miss Betty Devlin, Miss Edna Gilmore, Mrs. Stella Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fairchild, Miss Eva Walling, Miss Frances Crossman, Mrs. Otis J. Rogers, Miss Elizabeth Groves, Miss Barbara Butler, Mr. Henry Saks, Mr. Raymond Young, Miss Ruth Paugh, Miss Dorothy Wade and Miss Evelyn Cray.

The wearing of costumes is optional, but prizes will be awarded to the wearers of the funniest, prettiest and most original costumes. Members of all State societies and their friends are invited.

Post Model Home Now in Sixth Week

Hundreds Take Advantage of Convenient Location to Visit Residence.

The ever-increasing list of visitors to The Washington Post model home at 5727 Third place northwest continued to mount yesterday as hundreds of persons viewed the attractive residence, now entering its sixth week of exhibition.

Built by Boss & Phelps, the house presents all up-to-date requirements of the modern home owner. It is open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Those motoring to its convenient location may reach the home from Sixteenth street or Georgia avenue northwest, driving east on Longfellow street to Fifth street northwest, then north to Nicholson street northwest, and east to the group of homes.

Those going by street car may reach the residence on Fourteenth street cars marked Takoma to Third and Nicholson streets and walking half a block to the 5700 block of Third place. Furniture in the home is from Hutchinson's Inc., and draperies are from the Shade Factory.

Lansburgh Tomb Unveiled at Rites

Clerics and Representatives of Civic Groups Are in Attendance.

With clergymen of several creeds and representatives of a number of civic groups in attendance, a granite sarcophagus, containing the body of Henry Lansburgh, civic leader and son of the founder of Lansburgh's department store, was unveiled yesterday afternoon in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The tomb was unveiled by Frank P. Major and William F. Murphy, close friends of the late Mr. Lansburgh and veteran employes of the department store. The ceremony was under auspices of the Henry Stanley Masonic Club, of Lansburgh's department store.

Among speakers were Dr. John C. Palmer, pastor of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church; Mgr. Cornelius Thomas, rector of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, and Rabbi Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

More Than 2,000 Cars Use New Skyline Drive

Luray, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—More than 2,000 cars bringing visitors from 30 States drove today over the section of Skyline drive which yesterday was opened to the public. Among the visitors who rode over the Shenandoah National Park roadway were a number of prominent Washington officials.

Drivers and passengers in the automobiles were required at the entrance to the drive to sign a statement absolving the Government from responsibility in case of accident. Unofficial estimates placed the crowd at 11,000 persons.

Hearst Quits Hospital Following Operation

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—William Randolph Hearst, publisher, today left Cleveland Clinic Hospital, where he had been a patient for three weeks, for his ranch at San Simeon, Calif. He came here from California for an operation, which was performed by Dr. George W. Crile, who issued the following statement:

WARNING TO WORLD ISSUED BY POINCARE

(Copyright, 1932, by United Press.)

Paris, Oct. 23.—Warning the world against pessimism in the face of the present crisis, Raymond Poincare, grand old man of French politics, reiterated his belief in the present French government's policies in an exclusive interview today.

The 72-year-old wartime premier has just returned from his retreat at Sampigny, in Lorraine, where last Sunday he was reelected to the Senate.

Sitting at his desk in his Paris residence on the Rue Marbeau, Poincare declared that he is mindful of the seriousness of the present international situation, and that the constant attention of all true peace devotees should be exerted.

Recalls Old Battles.

Rather than take his seat in the Senate, he said he intends to start for the Riviera in mid-November, where he will spend the entire winter, returning to Sampigny in the spring.

Once the greatest figure on Europe's political horizon, obliged as wartime president to master such bitter animosities as those which separated Clemenceau, Foch and Joffre, Poincare has lost little of his dash and vigor.

He harked back today to that period when, as peacetime premier, he was charged with the operations of the Versailles Treaty. He recalled, likewise, the days in 1926 when, again as premier, the franc reached its lowest value in history and he engineered the battle which culminated in France's hoarding of one-third of the world's gold.

Lauds Herriot's Policies.

Now he is as keenly interested in France's affairs as ever, and his declaration in favor of the Herriot government has had a distinct influence in lending added prestige to the present cabinet. Poincare offered further praise for Herriot's policies in the interview today, saying he is particularly impressed by France's stand on disarmament and on Germany's demand for arms equality.

While Poincare is mentally alert and follows international affairs from day to day, he said that it is physically impossible for him to "even dream of returning to power." His general condition is good, but his recovery from the partial paralysis that followed an operation has been slow.

The former president will spend the remaining days of his life completing his autobiography, the ninth volume of which was published this week, bringing the work down to 1917.

"Several days ago," he said, "I received a visit from M. Herriot. I told him firmly that I approve of his foreign policies. I have received many visitors who lament the turn world affairs have taken, but my constant reply is that we mustn't be pessimists, for pessimism leads to anxiety which would be bad for the world today.

"There is no denying that the situation is critical, but France can have full confidence in M. Herriot's foreign program."

Beds Used by Lincoln And Douglas Auctioned

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The beds on which Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas slept before their historic debate here in 1858, were sold at auction yesterday—for $20 and $1.25, respectively. The beds were included in the furnishings of the Brewster House, which were sold at auction. The Brewster House, opened in 1857, was closed recently and will be torn down to make way for a new building.

Matthew Marvin, of Freeport, bid $20 for the Lincoln bed, but obtained it with the rest of the furnishings in the room for a collective bid of $100. A Mrs. Gebrach, of Chicago, got the bed used by Douglas.

10 Towns Without Power Due to Fire.

Sterling, Colo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Electric service to ten towns in this region was placed out of commission by a fire at the Public Service Co. plant here today. Sterling's water supply also was considerably diminished through the absence of power with which to operate the water plant. The cause of the blaze, which started on a roof, was not determined.

WORLD PEACE PLEA MADE BY HERRIOT

Stresses French Disarmament Security Plan in Heart of Old War Zone.

Lens, France, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—In the heart of the old war zone, Premier Edouard Herriot today appealed for world peace, referring to 75,000 German graves in the nearby Maison Blanche Cemetery, which he asserted "France cares for with respect."

The premier said the forthcoming disarmament security plan, which France will submit to the disarmament conference called for November 3 "binds nations to a renunciation of arms by the growing forces of right."

He expressed the belief that the German soldiers buried here "were also in that immense majority of men who doubtless wished to work in peace."

"France would like to be seconded by all peoples from whom she asks, as I asked in 1924, an end of mortal hatreds," he added.

After asserting that France pursued the aims of the 1924 protocol at Lausanne during 1932 at Geneva, the premier said, "France knows how to be generous when only her material interests are concerned."

France, he said, "asks only to pursue this work," and, in order that its disarmament plan "may succeed, all peoples must be as reasonable as herself."

The premier met yesterday with a special committee of the national defense council which is studying the French plan for disarmament and security. The superior war council must approve the plan later.

"The government is pursuing this task daily, without regard to violent and enthusiastic manifestations," the premier said.

Deputy Alfred Maes, Mayor of Lens, in an address preceding that of the premier, lauded M. Herriot's efforts to seek a plan for international security against war. The mayor said if it was accepted by nations of the world it would "end an armament race under the weight of which Europe would soon be crushed."

Practitioner Seen Losing His Field

Treating Patients Through Governmental Aid Is Called Unfair.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. R. C. McCaughan, of Chicago, secretary of the American Osteopathic Association, told delegates to the New York convention of the association today that "if the present rate of socialization of medicine continues there will be no field for the general practitioner in fifteen years."

Condemning what he described as the "unfair" practice of treating patients through "governmental" and "political" aid, he said:

"At Washington, in the national health departments, in the various State capitals, in the boards of health, in county, city and school governmental public health endeavors, in such governmental institutions as prisons and asylums, medicine has been entirely socialized."

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF October 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:45 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Influences astir on this October 24 should make for a day of great mental and physical activity. Ideas will spring seemingly from nowhere, and briefly formulated plans will probably be found to unfold themselves in great detail. Do not hesitate to put these plans or ideas to work, as they are most likely not hunches, but more probably dormant thoughts come to the fore. Much energy will be expended in outdoor exercise.

Children born on this October 24 will probably have cold natures. They will not require a great deal of affection, and will respond more quickly to common sense argument than to affectionate entreaty. The whys and the wherefors must be made clear to them; they can not be coaxed. They have good minds and are willing workers.

If October 24 is your birthday, you are probably not an overly ambitious person. You will no doubt work only hard enough to secure for yourself and family the necessities of life. You will see that they have a comfortable existence, but any of the frills and fripperies of life they will have to provide for themselves. You are not a saver, and this, coupled with the fact that you may not make a great deal of money, will perhaps lead you into difficulties later in life.

You are not a particularly jolly person, but your calmness and poise attract many friends. Nervous and restless people find in you a restful and comfortable companion. You are a home-loving person and do not like to go out a great deal socially. At the same time, you derive great joy in entertaining your friends in your own home; you are a perfect host.

Both men and women born under the Scorpio influence usually make splendid mates. This is probably true because of the fact that they are most careful in the selection of a mate. Most particularly is this true of the women who seem to realize that happiness does not usually come without a fairly firm economic foundation, and who choose their husbands accordingly. In no sense of the word, though, can they be accused of being calculating; they are simply very practical about considerations of marriage.

Successful people born on October 24:

Noah Brooks, author.

Belva A. B. Lockwood, lawyer.

George W. Hough, astronomer.

William F. Apthorp, dramatic and musical critic.

Frank L. O. Wadsworth, scientist.

SUN BATHS.

(Department of Labor.)

In cold climates real outdoor sun baths exposing more than the face and hands cannot be given between the first of November and the first of March. However, on bright winter days the baby can be put outdoors in the middle of the day for a long sunning. Many mothers think that in cold weather a baby may not be put outdoors, not realizing that in the sun the thermometer may register 40 or 50 degrees higher than in the shade. If the baby is protected from the wind the sun will keep him warm. During this season the ultra-violet rays of the sun are not so strong as in summer, and therefore winter sunnings should be longer than summer ones. The baby's face and hands should be exposed to the direct rays of the sun. In the South winter days are often warm enough to permit the arms and legs also to be exposed.

A sun bath can be given indoors at a window opened at top or bottom, the baby being placed in the patch of sunlight coming through the open space. If the room is heated and the doors closed to prevent drafts, the baby need not be wrapped up. First the face, hands and arms and afterwards the legs can be exposed daily for 15 to 20 minutes, and later for increasing periods until the sun bath is given for 1 to 2 hours. It is thus possible to produce tanning. If the sun is sufficiently warm even the baby's shirt may be taken off. The mother should sit beside the baby and watch him. If the sun goes behind a cloud the baby must be covered. By holding her own hands in the sun the mother can tell how warm it actually is.

Babies born in the winter or fall should be given long indoor sun baths throughout the winter. In many localities if a baby is used to indoor sun baths he can be started on outdoor ones by the first of March or even earlier, depending on the climate and the weather.

Interpreting the Mode

NOW I have just received something very interesting from Paris, which I hasten to pass to you. The first fashion show ever broadcast from Paris will be held on November 6, which is a Sunday evening. The time will be 10 to 10:30 Paris time—and you can very easily check up on the exact time that this means in your town by writing or phoning the nearest National Broadcasting station. 'Tis over this station that the fashion show will be given, and it will be presented in the form of a dialogue between two most famous Parisian couturiers. Here is an opportunity to listen to a fashion show right from Paris to your drawing room.

Worth is fitting out the college miss in green, it seems. A stunning model from this house for daytime is of greenish gold velours, both waterproof and uncrushable. The coat is raglan with turn-over collar, the skirt is straight and fairly long, with an inverted side pleat for fullness. The accompanying pull-over is brown and loosely knitted, and a knitted scarf of the same color pulls through a velvet ring. Then an evening wrap for Miss Collegiate is of leaf-green velvet, silk lined and beautifully draped in the back. The straight and small standing collar is held together with a diamond arrow, and the shoulders are shirred. Nice?

Fur cloth is an entirely new idea—not at all to be confused with imitation fur made from fabric, my dear. 'Tis a new cloth, and though it resembles one or another fur, it is a shame to mention it, because one thinks of imitation furs made of cloth—and loses somewhat of the beauty of this new cloth.

I am reminded of this fact by looking at the stunning afternoon coat that we sketched for you today, which was made by Helen Hubert, of Paris, and just sent me to sketch for you. The coat is a dressy one, in black woollen, and trimmed with a new cloth called breitschwantz tissue. To see it one would not possibly suspect that it tried to be an imitation fur—but to write about it, one might. That's the why of all the above explanations, you see!

How about a Mister Turtle for a child's gift? Why, he's an oilcloth turtle, my dear—and in two colors, too, just like a real turtle really is. And, he's a nursery pillow, or a studio pillow, or a toy, each and all. And this week's illustrated leaflet tells you how exactly to make them, total cost, 20 cents; total work, one hour—total result, a dee-lighted child and the fun you have yourself in making something that pleases the child so much. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, then, and find out how to make Mister Turtle for a kiddie—or a grown up, just as well.

Mani-colored enamel has long been a favorite way of jewelry making, and now Miladi wears huge bracelets that look just like cuffs, of French enamel work on gold. The brooch matches the bracelets, but for variety is made of opaque-colored stones, called cabochons—and strass, which is another name for brilliants, further decorates it—all sketched today.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

477.

MASTER OF BRIDGE.

LIEUT. ALFRED M. GRUENTHER, of West Point, is known to Duplicate Contract players, particularly in the East, through his marvelous skill in directing tournaments. It is not as generally known that he is also a very strong Bridge player, with a rather marvelous flare for psychology.

Recently Lieut. Gruenther, with his family, spent a vacation in his home city of Omaha, Nebr. The home town had heard of Lieut. Gruenther, and a match game between two teams-of-four was arranged. Lieut. Gruenther, had as his partner Mrs. Gruenther, and the other members of their team were Messrs. Cyrus P. Mason and Richard Losch. They were pitted against a team representing the Athletic Club—Messrs. Manning Handler, Charles Martin, Harry Perlmutter and Morris Perer.

The margin of their victory was accounted for on the following board, in which Lieut. Gruenther introduced the psychic Third Hand novulnerable bid to the metropolis of Nebraska.

North—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ 10 6 3♡ Q 7 5◇ K 8 5♣ J 9 4 2 | |
| ♠ A K Q 9 5 4♡ A K◇ 7♣ A 10 7 6 | | ♠ J 8 2♡ 9 6 2◇ A 9 6♣ K Q 8 5 |
| | ♠ 7♡ J 10 8 4 3◇ Q J 10 4 3 2♣ 3 | |

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| | | Pass | Pass |
| 2NT(1) | Dbl.(2) | Pass | Pass |
| 3♠(3) | Dbl.(4) | Pass | Pass |
| 4♣(5) | 4NT(6) | Pass | Pass(7) |
| Pass | | | |

1—A very daring, but, as it happens, extremely sound bid. South's object, of course, is to play the hand cheaply at diamonds or to prevent his opponents from bidding a Slam, which from his holding may be easily makable.

2—Probably West's best bid.

3—Continuing the policy of deceptive surprise.

4—Showing a hand of mammoth proportions, considering the fact that East and West are vulnerable.

5—Continuing the deceptive tactics one step further.

6—West, of course, is fully aware of what South is doing.

7—Unfortunately, East is unable to decode the message.

The result, due to the fact that North decided to open a club, was that West made his contract and 3 overtricks as well. With any other Opening, of course, only 12 tricks could have been made.

At the other table, where Lieut. Gruenther's teammates held the East and West cards, a Small Slam in spades was bid and made.

In view of the originality displayed by Lieut. Gruenther in finding bids with his trickless hand, I am seriously considering sending a very strong recommendation to the War Department that he be appointed as chief of the general staff. Certainly, if he applies the same strategy to war as to Bridge, the element of surprise is going to be hard for his opponents to overcome.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ A 6♡ 7 6 4◇ 6 5 3♣ A Q J 10 9 | |
| ♠ 10 5 4♡ 10 9 8 5◇ 9 2♣ 6 5 4 2 | | ♠ K J 7 3♡ A J 3◇ Q J 8 7♣ K 3 |
| | ♠ Q 9 8 2♡ K Q 2◇ A K 10 4♣ 8 7 | |

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THERE are so many points in favor of proper posture. The health standpoint, for instance. Erect position means better and deeper breathing, better digestion, better balance for the vital organs. Then, there's the point of beauty. Who can deny that a young woman who is straight, walks and sits erect, is lovelier than that same woman slumping?

And there's the fashion influence and right now with so much stress being placed on the vogue of the moment, it is well to remember that proper posture can lend a million-dollar look to a moderately priced dress.

Perhaps you yourself are the fortunate one in your group about whom the rest enviously remark: "She can hang a rag on her back and it looks like a million." Well, it's not the hanging the dress does, but the pouring into it that the body does.

How Do You Stand?

Do you stand correctly? Heels a few inches apart, toes pointing straight ahead. Do you pull up to your full height? Do you carry your head proudly, shoulders back and down, chest out, chin in, weight on the ball of your foot?

If you have a long mirror in your bathroom, make this test. Simply slump a bit and watch the chest become hollow while the abdomen bulges and the back arches ungracefully. Or hunch your shoulders and watch the ugly line this gives.

How Do You Sit?

When you sit, do you hunch your back or slouch or slump? Or, do you sit erect, shoulders back, spine perfectly straight, thighs well back in the chair, abdomen in, chest out?

A proud, erect posture lends a look of confidence, an air of grace and a million-dollar look. Try it yourself and see. Very often a new dress or hat makes you walk more proudly. The next time you get one, tell yourself that you are going to wear it to the best advantage. And every day, even if the dress lives to be ten years, wear it with the same proud air.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

LIME AND SPASMODIC DISORDERS.

A RECENTLY published study of the cause of convulsions in children throws some sidelights on certain somewhat related disordered states. One of these is spasmophilia. This study indicates that spasmophilia is unimportant in babies less than one month of age, but that it is of more consequence in the later months of the first year of life. It reaches its maximum importance in the second half of the first year of life and continues at a high level until toward the third birthday, after which it continues for a year or so, but rather rapidly drops off to disappear as a cause of convulsions by 10 years of age.

It would be interesting to see a similar study of the age distribution of spasmodic croup, a spasmophilic disorder which frightens parents unduly but does not endanger life. If anyone has studied the prevalence of croup by ages I have not seen the report of it. The age distribution of the acuter symptoms of rickets also related to spasmophilia has been written about.

Spasmophilia is an on-edgeness, a lack of nerve and muscle equilibrium which is not called a disease, but goes by such designations as spasmophilic diathesis or spasmophilic constitution.

The fault lies in lack of calcium or a loss of line balance. Going further back, this diathesis is supposed to result from a deficiency of vitamin D and of exposure to suplight.

The remedies used for it are exposure to sunlight, light and therapy, and the use of vitamin D preparations and preparations of calcium and perhaps parathyroid. This study indicates that babies are born with ample vitamin D and lime salts. In many of them these principles begin to run low after one month of age. The ages of greatest need of vitamin D and sunlight are ages 6 months to 3 years. Between ages 3 and 10 years the child is liable to get nearly enough light, lime, and vitamin D from its food and its play in the sunlight. A small proportion run below a safe level.

Another observation relates to the ages in which infections with such alarming symptoms as convulsions are liable to occur. Not many babies under 1 month of age are prone to this kind of infection. However, after passing 1 month and until 3 years is reached the danger of violent onset of infection is great. From 3 to 10 years of age infections are dangerous. The reference is principally to measles, whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, and sleeping sickness.

After 10 years of age a very considerable proportion of the children have built up immunity enough to prevent them from catching diseases or else they are resitsant enough not to develop convulsions during the attacks.

The diarrheas are not of particular importance in babies under 1 month. Nearly all babies of that age are living on mother's milk. This disorder reaches its maximum as a cause of convulsions in the later five months o fthe first year of life. After a baby passes 6 months of age diarrhea is not so important as it is in the earlier months of life. Children more than 3 years of age are very prone to diarrheas resulting from eating foods that are too rough for them, or improper for other reasons, but the running of the bowels and the loss of appetite generally remove the cause in a day or less. Convulsions from eating indigestible foods practically never occur in children under 3. Attacks of diarrhea which result are generally self-limited.

BUNIONS.

Miss J. J. writes: What causes bunions? The slippers I am wearing now are comfortable and do not hurt in any way, although the ones I wore just before this did hurt me and I stopped wearing them. I think I am getting a bunion on each foot and would like to know what to do to correct this before it goes too far. I am 22 years old.

Also what can I do to get rid of a callus?

Wearing shoes that are too narrow in front is only one of the causes of bunions. An X-ray picture of your foot taken from above downward would show sesamoid bones between the bones of the ball of your foot and probably more than one other bone abnormality.

Wear shoes that are broad in front. Keep your toes straight by wearing cotton gauze or something else between them. There are toe spreaders on the market.

Wear moleskin adhesive plaster over the calluses.

THE PERPLEXED VOTER.

"NO, sir," said the Man Who Hadn't Missed a Campaign Speech. "I can't quite make up my mind how to vote. The more orators I listen to the more puzzled I am whether to vote for Herbert C. Washington or ——"

"Herbert C. Hoover," corrected his companion.

"Whether to vote for Herbert C. Hoover," corrected the speaker, "or Franklin D. Jefferson."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt," corrected his friend.

"I've listened to every radio speech and read most of the orations printed in the newspapers," continued the puzzled voter, "and it's even harder to make up my mind on the Vice President than on the President. Now, take the Democratic candidate, John Nance Jackson——"

"Garner, isn't it?"

"What did I say?"

"You said Jackson."

"Well, Garner, then. Take John Nance Garner; he's got his good points and his bad ones. But you can say the same of the Republican candidate, Abraham Curtis."

"The first name is Charles, not Abraham."

"My mistake. Of course, I suppose there's no sense worrying over the Vice Presidents. The Presidency is the thing. I guess I'm fickle. One night I listen to a Republican rally and decide that Alexander Hoover—"

"Hamilton Hoover, I think you mean," corrected his friend.

"Is it Hamilton?" asked the voter, a little perplexed himself.

"Let me think a minute," urged his friend. No, it's Herbert. I've been listening to those orators, too."

"Well, anyhow, as I was saying, one night I decide that that peerless statesman, that noble citizen, that great humanitarian, Herbert Clark Lincoln has. * * *"

"Hoover," corrected his friend, Herbert McKinley Hoover."

"One night I decide that Hoover should be returned to office as a great captain of the ship of state, and the next night I listen to a Democratic rally and think that the best interests of this glorious country, this land of the Pilgrim fathers, this richest country on God's earth. * * * are ya lissenin?"

"Yes."

"Will be best served by the election of that giant among men, that most unselfish of public servants, that tireless champeen of the peepul's rights, Woodrow Delano Roosevelt."

"The first name isn't Woodrow, is it?" questioned his companion.

"What is it?" asked the Man Who Hadn't Missed a Campaign Speech.

"Grover, I think," suggested his friend. "Yes, Grover A. Roosevelt."

"What's the A. for?"

"Andrew as in Jackson."

"Are you sure?"

"No."

"Oh, well, let's not discuss it any more. It's too confusing. You go your way and vote for Teddy Hoover or William Jennings Roosevelt and I'll go my way and do likewise," concluded the M. W. H. M. A. C. S.

2. "My friends, it is a great pleasure to be here among my old neighbors."

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

TUNE in Station WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight for the first broadcast of "The Postilion"—a resume of the latest news of the world as it is being gathered for your perusal in The Washington Post tomorrow morning. The latest developments in national politics, national events, civic affairs, sports, the theater, the music world, as well as the broader field of international affairs may be learned from an accurate source by a twist of your radio dial to 630 kilocycles every night, including Sunday, at 10 o'clock.

Alfred E. Smith will take the stump for his party by radio tonight (WRC, 10 o'clock), when he speaks from a meeting in Newark, N. J., in his first coast-to-coast campaign address for the Democrats.

The address of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in Atlanta, Ga., tonight will be broadcast by the Dixie network of the Columbia Broadcasting System at 10:15 o'clock. The nearest station to Washington over which this address might be heard is WBT, Charlotte, N. C., which operates on a frequency of 1,080 kilocycles.

E. F. Hutton, prominent businessman and financier, will speak over WRC at 8:30 o'clock tonight in support of the candidacy of President Hoover.

THE fourth season of the American School of the Air begins at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon over Station WJSV. The school, which is distributed over 85 stations affiliated with CBS, is under the guidance of a group of educators cooperating with the network in preparation and presentation of the programs. Geography, elementary science, the classics, history, and allied subjects will be treated during the course.

A new series to be presented each Monday and Thursday at 9:15 o'clock over WJSV will make its bow tonight. Dale Wimbrow, the Mills Brothers, and Don Redman's Harlem band will be featured.

The Buick Travelers, featuring Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, will make their bow over WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight. An all-star group of soloists and artists will be heard from time to time.

This incident recently happened in a Chicago restaurant. The waiter, who had been neither prompt nor courteous, tripped against a chair and sent a tray of dishes crashing to the floor. The masculine diner smothered a laugh and his feminine companion shouted "Goodie!"

The explanation is that the one tempted to laughter was Ace of "Easy Aces," and that his companion was his wife, Jane Ace, who discouraged the guffaw by calling her husband by the nickname he most abhors. His first name is Goodman—but the waiter didn't know that.

ROBERT RUCKMAN, playing the new four manual organ at the National City Christian Church, will offer a half-hour recital at 9:15 o'clock tonight over WMAL.

ARTHUR JARRETT, heard with Don Bestor and his band over NBC net work, forgot his lyrics when he made his first public appearance as a singer. He was then a student at Fordham University. Art is appearing at the Fox Theater this week.

DICK TRACY—The Coup

AFTER JUNIOR'S DISCOVERY OF A BOTTLE HID IN THE LOAF OF BREAD HE TOOK IT TO TRACY. THEN, OVER SUNDAY, TRACY HAD THE BOY LEAD HIM TO THE "BAKERY" WHICH WAS UNOCCUPIED. BUT WHERE THE DETECTIVE DISCOVERED ADDITIONAL QUANTITIES OF DOPE.
JUNIOR, DO YOU THINK YOU CAN KEEP A SECRET?
SURE
WELL THEN—DON'T SAY A WORD TO ANYBODY ABOUT WHAT WE'VE DISCOVERED. THAT MAN YOU'RE WORKING FOR IS A CROOK, AND THIS IS YOUR CHANCE TO HELP ME CAPTURE HIM AND HIS GANG IF YOU DON'T TALK.
CHEE, YOU CAN 'PEND ON ME, TRACY.
NOW, TONIGHT AFTER SCHOOL—GO BACK THERE AGAIN JUST LIKE YOU'VE BEEN DOING—AND GO ON ABOUT YOUR DUTIES AS THOUGH NOTHING HAD HAPPENED. PAT AND I WILL DO THE REST.
OBOY! I SURE WILL.
ONE HOUR LATER AT HEADQUARTERS
BUT WHAT DO YOU MEAN, TRACY?
I MEAN THAT THAT KID HAS UNCOVERED THE DOPE RING WE HAVE BEEN TRYING TO BUST UP. HE'S BEEN WORKING FOR THEM—AND YOU AND I, PAT—ARE GOING DOWN THERE AT FOUR O'CLOCK TODAY AND NAB MUCELLI.
IT SOUNDS EASY—TRACY—VERY EASY—BUT MUCELLI HAS NEVER BEFORE BEEN OUTWITTED!

THE WRONG PLAY
COMMENCEMENT WAS OVER AT BENTLEY COLLEGE AND THE STUDENT BODY WAS EAGERLY ANTICIPATING THE SUMMER VACATION
ON THE LAST DAY OF THE COLLEGE YEAR DEAN GOODMAN ADDRESSED A MEETING OF THE TRUSTEES OF THE UNIVERSITY
GENTLEMEN, AS YOU ARE AWARE, WE SHALL BE IN A MOST UNUSUAL AND EMBARRASSING POSITION NEXT FALL!!
IT IS AGAINST THE PRINCIPLES OF OLD BENTLEY TO LAY TOO MUCH STRESS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF ATHLETICS, BUT UNLESS WE WIN THE ANNUAL FOOTBALL GAME WITH ASHTON IN NOVEMBER, WE MUST FORFEIT THE HENRY WYNDAM ENDOWMENT!!
IN 1880 WYNDAM WAS ONE OF THE GREATEST FOOTBALL PLAYERS IN THE COUNTRY AND FOCUSED THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COLLEGE WORLD ON BENTLEY. THREE YEARS IN SUCCESSION HE HUMBLED OUR RIVAL, ASHTON!!
HE IS NOW AN ECCENTRIC OLD MILLIONAIRE, STILL FOOTBALL MAD, AND DETERMINED THAT BENTLEY SHALL BE PROUD OF HER PROWESS IN FOOTBALL BUT UNFORTUNATELY ASHTON HAS BEATEN US THE LAST TWO YEARS AND IF WE LOSE THE GAME NEXT FALL WE LOSE THE ENDOWMENT WITH IT!!
MEET HENRY WYNDAM TOMORROW!!

WARNING TO WORLD ISSUED BY POINCARE

(Copyright, 1932, by United Press.)

Paris, Oct. 23.—Warning the world against pessimism in the face of the present crisis, Raymond Poincare, grand old man of French politics, reiterated his belief in the present French government's policies in an exclusive interview today.

The 72-year-old wartime premier has just returned from his retreat at Sampigny, in Lorraine, where last Sunday he was reelected to the Senate.

Sitting at his desk in his Paris residence on the Rue Marbeau, Poincare declared that he is mindful of the seriousness of the present international situation, and that the constant attention of all true peace devotees should be exerted.

Recalls Old Battles.

Rather than take his seat in the Senate, he said he intends to start for the Riviera in mid-November, where he will spend the entire winter, returning to Sampigny in the spring.

Once the greatest figure on Europe's political horizon, obliged as wartime president to master such bitter animosities as those which separated Clemenceau, Foch and Joffre, Poincare has lost little of his dash and vigor.

He harked back today to that period when, as peacetime premier, he was charged with the operations of the Versailles Treaty. He recalled, likewise, the days in 1926 when, again as premier, the franc reached its lowest value in history and he engineered the battle which culminated in France's hoarding of one-third of the world's gold.

Lauds Herriot's Policies.

Now he is as keenly interested in France's affairs as ever, and his declaration in favor of the Herriot government has had a distinct influence in lending added prestige to the present cabinet. Poincare offered further praise for Herriot's policies in the interview today, saying he is particularly impressed by France's stand on disarmament and on Germany's demand for arms equality.

While Poincare is mentally alert and follows international affairs from day to day, he said that it is physically impossible for him to "even dream of returning to power." His general condition is good, but his recovery from the partial paralysis that followed an operation has been slow.

The former president will spend the remaining days of his life completing his autobiography, the ninth volume of which was published this week, bringing the work down to 1917.

"Several days ago," he said, "I received a visit from M. Herriot. I told him firmly that I approve of his foreign policies. I have received many visitors who lament the turn world affairs have taken, but my constant reply is that we mustn't be pessimists, for pessimism leads to anxiety which would be bad for the world today.

"There is no denying that the situation is critical, but France can have full confidence in M. Herriot's foreign program."

Beds Used by Lincoln And Douglas Auctioned

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The beds on which Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas slept before their historic debate here in 1858, were sold at auction yesterday—for $20 and $1.25, respectively. The beds were included in the furnishings of the Brewster House, which were sold at auction. The Brewster House, opened in 1857, was closed recently and will be torn down to make way for a new building.

Matthew Marvin, of Freeport, bid $20 for the Lincoln bed, but obtained it with the rest of the furnishings in the room for a collective bid of $100. A Mrs. Gebrach, of Chicago, got the bed used by Douglas.

10 Towns Without Power Due to Fire.

Sterling, Colo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Electric service to ten towns in this region was placed out of commission by a fire at the Public Service Co. plant here today. Sterling's water supply also was considerably diminished through the absence of power with which to operate the water plant. The cause of the blaze, which started on a roof, was not determined.

WORLD PEACE PLEA MADE BY HERRIOT

Stresses French Disarmament Security Plan in Heart of Old War Zone.

Lens, France, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—In the heart of the old war zone, Premier Edouard Herriot today appealed for world peace, referring to 75,000 German graves in the nearby Maison Blanche Cemetery, which he asserted "France cares for with respect."

The premier said the forthcoming disarmament security plan, which France will submit to the disarmament conference called for November 3 "binds nations to a renunciation of arms by the growing forces of right."

He expressed the belief that the German soldiers buried here "were also in that immense majority of men who doubtless wished to work in peace."

"France would like to be seconded by all peoples from whom she asks, as I asked in 1924, an end of mortal hatreds," he added.

After asserting that France pursued the aims of the 1924 protocol at Lausanne during 1932 at Geneva, the premier said, "France knows how to be generous when only her material interests are concerned."

France, he said, "asks only to pursue this work," and, in order that its disarmament plan "may succeed, all peoples must be as reasonable as herself."

The premier met yesterday with a special committee of the national defense council which is studying the French plan for disarmament and security. The superior war council must approve the plan later.

"The government is pursuing this task daily, without regard to violent and enthusiastic manifestations," the premier said.

Deputy Alfred Maes, Mayor of Lens, in an address preceding that of the premier, lauded M. Herriot's efforts to seek a plan for international security against war. The mayor said if it was accepted by nations of the world it would "end an armament race under the weight of which Europe would soon be crushed."

Practitioner Seen Losing His Field

Treating Patients Through Governmental Aid Is Called Unfair.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. R. C. McCaughan, of Chicago, secretary of the American Osteopathic Association, told delegates to the New York convention of the association today that "if the present rate of socialization of medicine continues there will be no field for the general practitioner in fifteen years."

Condemning what he described as the "unfair" practice of treating patients through "governmental" and "political" aid, he said:

"At Washington, in the national health departments, in the various State capitals, in the boards of health, in county, city and school governmental public health endeavors, in such governmental institutions as prisons and asylums, medicine has been entirely socialized."

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF October 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:45 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Influences astir on this October 24 should make for a day of great mental and physical activity. Ideas will spring seemingly from nowhere, and briefly formulated plans will probably be found to unfold themselves in great detail. Do not hesitate to put these plans or ideas to work, as they are most likely not hunches, but more probably dormant thoughts come to the fore. Much energy will be expended in outdoor exercise.

Children born on this October 24 will probably have cold natures. They will not require a great deal of affection, and will respond more quickly to common sense argument than to affectionate entreaty. The whys and the wherefors must be made clear to them; they can not be coaxed. They have good minds and are willing workers.

If October 24 is your birthday, you are probably not an overly ambitious person. You will no doubt work only hard enough to secure for yourself and family the necessities of life. You will see that they have a comfortable existence, but any of the frills and fripperies of life they will have to provide for themselves. You are not a saver, and this, coupled with the fact that you may not make a great deal of money, will perhaps lead you into difficulties later in life.

You are not a particularly jolly person, but your calmness and poise attract many friends. Nervous and restless people find in you a restful and comfortable companion. You are a home-loving person and do not like to go out a great deal socially. At the same time, you derive great joy in entertaining your friends in your own home; you are a perfect host.

Both men and women born under the Scorpio influence usually make splendid mates. This is probably true because of the fact that they are most careful in the selection of a mate. Most particularly is this true of the women who seem to realize that happiness does not usually come without a fairly firm economic foundation, and who choose their husbands accordingly. In no sense of the word, though, can they be accused of being calculating; they are simply very practical about considerations of marriage.

Successful people born on October 24:

Noah Brooks, author.

Belva A. B. Lockwood, lawyer.

George W. Hough, astronomer.

William F. Apthorp, dramatic and musical critic.

Frank L. O. Wadsworth, scientist.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

SUN BATHS.

(Department of Labor.)

In cold climates real outdoor sun baths exposing more than the face and hands cannot be given between the first of November and the first of March. However, on bright winter days the baby can be put outdoors in the middle of the day for a long sunning. Many mothers think that in cold weather a baby may not be put outdoors, not realizing that in the sun the thermometer may register 40 or 50 degrees higher than in the shade. If the baby is protected from the wind the sun will keep him warm. During this season the ultra-violet rays of the sun are not so strong as in summer, and therefore winter sunnings should be longer than summer ones. The baby's face and hands should be exposed to the direct rays of the sun. In the South winter days are often warm enough to permit the arms and legs also to be exposed.

A sun bath can be given indoors at a window opened at top or bottom, the baby being placed in the patch of sunlight coming through the open space. If the room is heated and the doors closed to prevent drafts, the baby need not be wrapped up. First the face, hands and arms and afterwards the legs can be exposed daily for 15 to 20 minutes, and later for increasing periods until the sun bath is given for 1 to 2 hours. It is thus possible to produce tanning. If the sun is sufficiently warm even the baby's shirt may be taken off. The mother should sit beside the baby and watch him. If the sun goes behind a cloud the baby must be covered. By holding her own hands in the sun the mother can tell how warm it actually is.

Babies born in the winter or fall should be given long indoor sun baths throughout the winter. In many localities if a baby is used to indoor sun baths he can be started on outdoor ones by the first of March or even earlier, depending on the climate and the weather.

Interpreting the Mode

NOW I have just received something very interesting from Paris, which I hasten to pass to you. The first fashion show ever broadcast from Paris will be held on November 6, which is a Sunday evening. The time will be 10 to 10:30 Paris time—and you can very easily check up on the exact time that this means in your town by writing or phoning the nearest National Broadcasting station. 'Tis over this station that the fashion show will be given, and it will be presented in the form of a dialogue between two most famous Parisian couturiers. Here is an opportunity to listen to a fashion show right from Paris to your drawing room.

Worth is fitting out the college miss in green, it seems. A stunning model from this house for daytime is of greenish gold velours, both waterproof and uncrushable. The coat is raglan with turn-over collar, the skirt is straight and fairly long, with an inverted side pleat for fullness. The accompanying pull-over is brown and loosely knitted, and a knitted scarf of the same color pulls through a velvet ring. Then an evening wrap for Miss Collegiate is of leaf-green velvet, silk lined and beautifully draped in the back. The straight and small standing collar is held together with a diamond arrow, and the shoulders are shirred. Nice?

Fur cloth is an entirely new idea—not at all to be confused with imitation fur made from fabric, my dear. 'Tis a new cloth, and though it resembles one or another fur, it is a shame to mention it, because one thinks of imitation furs made of cloth—and loses somewhat of the beauty of this new cloth.

I am reminded of this fact by looking at the stunning afternoon coat that we sketched for you today, which was made by Helen Hubert, of Paris, and just sent me to sketch for you. The coat is a dressy one, in black woollen, and trimmed with a new cloth called breitschwantz tisue. To see it one would not possibly suspect that it tried to be an imitation fur—but to write about it, one might. That's the why of all the above explanations, you see!

How about a Mister Turtle for a child's gift? Why, he's an oilcloth turtle, my dear—and in two colors, too, just like a real turtle really is. And, he's a nursery pillow, or a studio pillow, or a toy, each and all. And this week's illustrated leaflet tells you how exactly to make them, total cost, 20 cents; total work, one hour—total result, a dee-lighted child and the fun you have yourself in making something that pleases the child so much. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, then, and find out how to make Mister Turtle for a kiddie—or a grown up, just as well.

Mani-colored enamel has long been a favorite way of jewelry making, and now Mihdi wears huge bracelets that look just like cuffs, of French enamel work on gold. The brooch matches the bracelets, but for variety is made of opaque-colored stones, called cabochons—and strass, which is another name for brilliants, further decorates it—all sketched today.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

MASTER OF BRIDGE.

LIEUT. ALFRED M. GRUENTHER, of West Point, is known to Duplicate Contract players, particularly in the East, through his marvelous skill in directing tournaments. It is not as generally known that he is also a very strong Bridge player, with a rather marvelous flare for psychology.

Recently Lieut. Gruenther, with his family, spent a vacation in his home city of Omaha, Nebr. The home town had heard of Lieut. Gruenther, and a match game between two teams-of-four was arranged. Lieut. Gruenther, had as his partner Mrs. Gruenther, and the other members of their team were Messrs. Cyrus P. Mason and Richard Losch. They were pitted against a team representing the Athletic Club—Messrs. Manning Handler, Charles Martin, Harry Perlmutter and Morris Perer.

The margin of their victory was accounted for on the following board, in which Lieut. Gruenther introduced the psychic Third Hand novulnerable bid to the metropolis of Nebraska.

North—Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| | | Pass | Pass |
| 2NT(1) | Dbl.(2) | Pass | Pass |
| 3♠(3) | Dbl.(4) | Pass | Pass |
| 4♣(5) | 4NT(6) | Pass | Pass(7) |
| Pass | | | |

1—A very daring, but, as it happens, extremely sound bid. South's object, of course, is to play the hand cheaply at diamonds or to prevent his opponents from bidding a Slam, which from his holding may be easily makable.

2—Probably West's best bid.

3—Continuing the policy of deceptive surprise.

4—Showing a hand of mammoth proportions, considering the fact that East and West are vulnerable.

5—Continuing the deceptive tactics one step further.

6—West, of course, is fully aware of what South is doing.

7—Unfortunately, East is unable to decode the message.

The result, due to the fact that North decided to open a club, was that West made his contract and 3 overtricks as well. With any other Opening, of course, only 12 tricks could have been made.

At the other table, where Lieut. Gruenther's teammates held the East and West cards, a Small Slam in spades was bid and made.

In view of the originality displayed by Lieut. Gruenther in finding bids with his trickless hand, I am seriously considering sending a very strong recommendation to the War Department that he be appointed as chief of the general staff. Certainly, if he applies the same strategy to war as to Bridge, the element of surprise is going to be hard for his opponents to overcome.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

| | ♠ Q 9 8 2♡ K Q 2◇ A K 10 4♣ 8 7 | |

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THERE are so many points in favor of proper posture. The health standpoint, for instance. Erect position means better and deeper breathing, better digestion, better balance for the vital organs. Then, there's the point of beauty. Who can deny that a young woman who is straight, walks and sits erect, is lovelier than that same woman slumping?

And there's the fashion influence and right now with so much stress being placed on the vogue of the moment, it is well to remember that proper posture can lend a million-dollar look to a moderately priced dress.

Perhaps you yourself are the fortunate one in your group about whom the rest enviously remark: "She can hang a rag on her back and it looks like a million." Well, it's not the hanging the dress does, but the pouring into it that the body does.

How Do You Stand?

Do you stand correctly? Heels a few inches apart, toes pointing straight ahead. Do you pull up to your full height? Do you carry your head proudly, shoulders back and down, chest out, chin in, weight on the ball of your foot?

If you have a long mirror in your bathroom, make this test. Simply slump a bit and watch the chest become hollow while the abdomen bulges and the back arches ungracefully. Or hunch your shoulders and watch the ugly line this gives.

How Do You Sit?

When you sit, do you hunch your back or slouch or slump? Or, do you sit erect, shoulders back, spine perfectly straight, thighs well back in the chair, abdomen in, chest out?

A proud, erect posture lends a look of confidence, an air of grace and a million-dollar look. Try it yourself and see. Very often a new dress or hat makes you walk more proudly. The next time you get one, tell yourself that you are going to wear it to the best advantage. And every day, even if the dress lives to be ten years, wear it with the same proud air.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

LIME AND SPASMODIC DISORDERS.

A RECENTLY published study of the cause of convulsions in children throws some sidelights on certain somewhat related disordered states. One of these is spasmophilia. This study indicates that spasmophilia is unimportant in babies less than one month of age, but that it is of more consequence in the later months of the first year of life. It reaches its maximum importance in the second half of the first year of life and continues at a high level until toward the third birthday, after which it continues for a year or so, but rather rapidly drops off to disappear as a cause of convulsions by 10 years of age.

It would be interesting to see a similar study of the age distribution of spasmodic croup, a spasmophilic disorder which frightens parents unduly but does not endanger life. If anyone has studied the prevalence of croup by ages I have not seen the report of it. The age distribution of the acuter symptoms of rickets also related to spasmophilia has been written about.

Spasmophilia is an on-edgeness, a lack of nerve and muscle equilibrium which is not called a disease, but goes by such designations as spasmophilic diathesis or spasmophilic constitution.

The fault lies in lack of calcium or a loss of line balance. Going further back, this diathesis is supposed to result from a deficiency of vitamin D and of exposure to sunlight.

The remedies used for it are exposure to sunlight, light and therapy, and the use of vitamin D preparations and preparations of calcium and perhaps parathyroid. This study indicates that babies are born with ample vitamin D and lime salts. In many of them these principles begin to run low after one month of age. The ages of greatest need of vitamin D and sunlight are ages 6 months to 3 years. Between ages 3 and 10 years the child is liable to get nearly enough light, lime, and vitamin D from its food and its play in the sunlight. A small proportion run below a safe level.

Another observation relates to the ages in which infections with such alarming symptoms as convulsions are liable to occur. Not many babies under 1 month of age are prone to this kind of infection. However, after passing 1 month and until 3 years is reached the danger of violent onset of infection is great. From 3 to 10 years of age infections are dangerous. The reference is principally to measles, whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, and sleeping sickness.

After 10 years of age a very considerable proportion of the children have built up immunity enough to prevent them from catching diseases or else they are resistant enough not to develop convulsions during the attacks.

The diarrheas are not of particular importance in babies under 1 month. Nearly all babies of that age are living on mother's milk. This disorder reaches its maximum as a cause of convulsions in the later five months o fthe first year of life. After a baby passes 6 months of age diarrhea is not so important as it is in the earlier months of life. Children more than 3 years of age are very prone to diarrheas resulting from eating foods that are too rough for them, or improper for other reasons, but the running of the bowels and the loss of appetite generally remove the cause in a day or less. Convulsions from eating indigestible foods practically never occur in children under 3. Attacks of diarrhea which result are generally self-limited.

BUNIONS.

Miss J. J. writes: What causes bunions? The slippers I am wearing now are comfortable and do not hurt in any way, although the ones I wore just before this did hurt me and I stopped wearing them. I think I am getting a bunion on each foot and would like to know what to do to correct this before it goes too far. I am 22 years old.

Also what can I do to get rid of a callus?

Wearing shoes that are too narrow in front is only one of the causes of bunions. An X-ray picture of your foot taken from above downward would show sesamoid bones between the bones of the ball of your foot and probably more than one other bone abnormality.

Wear shoes that are broad in front. Keep your toes straight by wearing cotton gauze or something else between them. There are toe spreaders on the market.

Wear moleskin adhesive plaster over the calluses.

THE PERPLEXED VOTER.

"NO, sir," said the Man Who Hadn't Missed a Campaign Speech. "I can't quite make up my mind how to vote. The more orators I listen to the more puzzled I am whether to vote for Herbert C. Washington or ——"

"Herbert C. Hoover," corrected his companion.

"Whether to vote for Herbert C. Hoover," corrected the speaker, "or Franklin D. Jefferson."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt," corrected his friend.

"I've listened to every radio speech and read most of the orations printed in the newspapers," continued the puzzled voter, "and it's even harder to make up my mind on the Vice President than on the President. Now, take the Democratic candidate, John Nance Jackson——"

"Garner, isn't it?"

"What did I say?"

"You said Jackson."

"Well, Garner, then. Take John Nance Garner; he's got his good points and his bad ones. But you can say the same of the Republican candidate, Abraham Curtis."

"The first name is Charles, not Abraham."

"My mistake. Of course, I suppose there's no sense worrying over the Vice Presidents. The Presidency is the thing. I guess I'm fickle. One night I listen to a Republican rally and decide that Alexander Hoover—"

"Hamilton Hoover, I think you mean," corrected his friend.

"Is it Hamilton?" asked the voter, a little perplexed himself.

"Let me think a minute," urged his friend. No, it's Herbert. I've been listening to those orators, too."

"Well, anyhow, as I was saying, one night I decide that that peerless statesman, that noble citizen, that great humanitarian, Herbert Clark Lincoln has, * * *"

"Hoover," corrected his friend, Herbert McKinley Hoover."

"One night I decide that Hoover should be returned to office as a great captain of the ship of state, and the next night I listen to a Democratic rally and think that the best interests of this glorious country, this land of the Pilgrim fathers, this richest country on God's earth, * * * are ya lissenin?"

"Yes."

"Will be best served by the election of that giant among men, that most unselfish of public servants, that tireless champeen of the peepul's rights, Woodrow Delano Roosevelt."

"The first name isn't Woodrow, is it?" questioned his companion.

"What is it?" asked the Man Who Hadn't Missed a Campaign Speech.

"Grover, I think," suggested his friend. "Yes, Grover A. Roosevelt."

"What's the A. for?"

"Andrew as in Jackson."

"Are you sure?"

"No."

"Oh, well, let's not discuss it any more. It's too confusing. You go your way and vote for Teddy Hoover or William Jennings Roosevelt and I'll go my way and do likewise," concluded the M. W. H. M. A. C. S.

Quite a Shock.

"FRANCE and Britain Prepare to Pay Debts Due U. S. on December 15." — Headline. Quick, nurse, the smelling salts!

Mr. Samuel Insull, the papers say, had two pet dogs, a sealyham, aged 8, and an airedale, aged 3, both in excellent health, shot on his English estate the other day and buried in neatly prepared graves there. It seems he didn't want them to fall into the hands of people who might be inconsiderate.

Puzzle Department.

What campaign orators and candidates can you recognize from the following words:

1. "Bunk. Let's consult the record."
2. "My friends, it is a great pleasure to be here among my old neighbors."
3. "London went off the gold standard and within ten days a billion dollars in gold was withdrawn, &c."
4. "And I can tell you that I will be the real mayah-h-h-h of the city and give the best that is in me to the peepul of this great municipality-y-y-y-y."
5. "He holds out his right hand and socks you with his left."
6. "Economic recovery is definitely under way."

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

TUNE in Station WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight for the first broadcast of "The Postilion"—a resume of the latest news of the world as it is being gathered for your perusal in The Washington Post tomorrow morning. The latest developments in national politics, national events, civic affairs, sports, the theater, the music world, as well as the broader field of international affairs may be learned from an accurate source by a twist of your radio dial to 630 kilocycles every night, including Sunday, at 10 o'clock.

Alfred E. Smith will take the stump for his party by radio tonight (WRC, 10 o'clock), when he speaks from a meeting in Newark, N. J., in his first coast-to-coast campaign address for the Democrats.

The address of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in Atlanta, Ga., tonight will be broadcast by the Dixie network of the Columbia Broadcasting System at 10:15 o'clock. The nearest station to Washington over which this address might be heard is WBT, Charlotte, N. C., which operates on a frequency of 1,080 kilocycles.

E. F. Hutton, prominent businessman and financier, will speak over WRC at 8:30 o'clock tonight in support of the candidacy of President Hoover.

THE fourth season of the American School of the Air begins at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon over Station WJSV. The school, which is distributed over 85 stations affiliated with CBS, is under the guidance of a group of educators cooperating with the network in preparation and presentation of the programs. Geography, elementary science, the classics, history, and allied subjects will be treated during the course.

A new series to be presented each Monday and Thursday at 9:15 o'clock over WJSV will make its bow tonight. Dale Wimbrow, the Mills Brothers, and Don Redman's Harlem band will be featured.

The Buick Travelers, featuring Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, will make their bow over WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight. An all-star group of soloists and artists will be heard from time to time.

This incident recently happened in a Chicago restaurant. The waiter, who had been neither prompt nor courteous, tripped against a chair and sent a tray of dishes crashing to the floor. The masculine diner smothered a laugh and his feminine companion shouted "Goodie!"

The explanation is that the one tempted to laughter was Ace of "Easy Aces," and that his companion was his wife, Jane Ace, who discouraged the guffaw by calling her husband by the nickname he most abhors. His first name is Goodman—but the waiter didn't know that.

ROBERT RUCKMAN, playing the new four manual organ at the National City Christian Church, will offer a half-hour recital at 9:15 o'clock tonight over WMAL.

ARTHUR JARRETT, heard with Don Bestor and his band over NBC net work, forgot his lyrics when he made his first public appearance as a singer. He was then a student at Fordham University. Art is appearing at the Fox Theater this week.

DICK TRACY—The Coup

AFTER JUNIOR'S DISCOVERY OF A BOTTLE HID IN THE LOAF OF BREAD HE TOOK IT TO TRACY. THEN, OVER SUNDAY, TRACY HAD THE BOY LEAD HIM TO THE "BAKERY" WHICH WAS UNOCCUPIED. BUT WHERE THE DETECTIVE DISCOVERED ADDITIONAL QUANTITIES OF DOPE.
JUNIOR, DO YOU THINK YOU CAN KEEP A SECRET?
SURE
WELL THEN—DON'T SAY A WORD TO ANYBODY ABOUT WHAT WE'VE DISCOVERED. THAT MAN YOU'RE WORKING FOR IS A CROOK, AND THIS IS YOUR CHANCE TO HELP ME CAPTURE HIM AND HIS GANG IF YOU DON'T TALK.
CHEE, YOU CAN 'PEND ON ME, TRACY.
NOW, TONIGHT AFTER SCHOOL—GO BACK THERE AGAIN JUST LIKE YOU'VE BEEN DOING—AND GO ON ABOUT YOUR DUTIES AS THOUGH NOTHING HAD HAPPENED. PAT AND I WILL DO THE REST.
OBOY! I SURE WILL.
ONE HOUR LATER AT HEADQUARTERS
BUT WHAT DO YOU MEAN, TRACY?
I MEAN THAT THAT KID HAS UNCOVERED THE DOPE RING WE HAVE BEEN TRYING TO BUST UP. HE'S BEEN WORKING FOR THEM—AND YOU AND I, PAT—ARE GOING DOWN THERE AT FOUR O'CLOCK TODAY AND NAB MUCELLI.
IT SOUNDS EASY—TRACY—VERY EASY—BUT MUCELLI HAS NEVER BEFORE BEEN OUTWITTED!

SLATS, THE OFFICE BOY, IS AT HOME SICK AND WON'T BE ABLE TO COME TO WORK FOR A WEEK OR SO! WHAT WILL I DO, MR. BIBBS?
CAN'T YOU GET A SUBSTITUTE? WE NEED A BOY!!
I'VE TRIED THE AGENCIES AND THERE'S NO OFFICE BOY AVAILABLE, RIGHT AWAY!
WELL, WHY DON'T YOU GET YOUR FATHER TO COME DOWN JUST TO HELP US OUT!!
I WOULD, BUT IF FAWTHAW THOUGHT HE WAS SUBSTITUTING FOR AN OFFICE BOY, HE'D HAVE A DOZEN FITS AND REFUSE, IN THE BARGAIN!
WELL, IT'S NOT AN IMPORTANT JOB, SO I TELL YOU WHAT YOU DO—

ARLINGTON VICTORY SEEN BY DEMOCRATS

Bragg Predicts Majority of 500, for First Time Since 1916.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Arlington County will go into the Democratic column at the November election the first time since 1916 by a majority of approximately 500, declared William L. Bragg, Democratic County chairman, yesterday.

"In 1928, our opponents carried the county by a majority of 2,800, in 1924 by 96 and in 1920 by 120, but this year there will be a different story to tell on the morning of November 9," Bragg said.

He said the county, for the first time in many presidential campaigns, is thoroughly organized with both men and women's Democratic clubs and a junior organization.

Calling attention to the lengthy ballot which measures 32 inches, Bragg urges all Democrats to study it and see to it that when voting the line is properly drawn through the names of persons not being voted for.

The meeting of the Lyon Village Citizens Association tonight at the home of I. C. Buchanan, 120 North Spruce street, will be called promptly at 8 o'clock so that the business may be disposed of and the association attend the special meeting of the county board at the courthouse to discuss ways and means of acquiring an adequate approach to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge.

The Arlington Citizens Association will meet tonight in the auditorium of the Patrick Henry School at 8 o'clock.

Spouse of Menjou Mystified by Suit

Kathryn Carver, Leaving Hospital, Can Not Explain Separation.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Mystified over the cause of their announced separation and impending divorce, Kathryn Carver, stage and screen actress and wife of Adolph Menjou, film actor, was removed to her home today from a hospital where she has been recovering from a nervous breakdown.

The separation, impending divorce and property settlement was announced last week by Milton Cohen, an attorney who said he represented Menjou, portrayer of suave roles in motion pictures. Cohen said a tour of European capitals by the Menjous as a gesture of reconciliation had failed and they had decided on a divorce.

"I'll bite," Miss Carver said, "what is it all about? It all seems so vague to me. I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown when we returned from Europe. I was ill before we went abroad and ill part of the time we were there. I went to the hospital on our return."

San Francisco Thrilled By Lily Pons' Singing

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Nearly 20,000 persons heard Lily Pons sing "Lucia di Lammermoor," here today—a city's tribute to a singer unequaled here, observers said, since the days of Tetrazzini.

The new War Memorial Opera House, first and only municipal opera house in the United States, was filled to capacity—it seats 3,285—with hundreds standing. The Exposition Auditorium, a block away, likewise held a capacity audience of 15,000, and an overflow stood in the Public Square, opposite the City Hall.

Fairfax Deputy Sheriff Marries Radford Girl

Deputy Sheriff Henry Thomas Magarity, of the Fairfax County police force, was married Saturday noon in Rockville, Md., to Miss Iris Evelyn Thornton, of Radford, Va. The bridegroom gave his age as 35, the bride as 21.

The couple will make their home at McLean, Va.

S. S. President Grant Rushes to Aid of Boat

Aboard S. S. President Grant, off Mexican Coast, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—This liner tonight swerved from her course to go to the assistance of the Mayflower, a fishing boat which lost its rudder and was reported helpless 200 miles off the coast of Mexico.

POKING FUN AT THE MOVIES

ZaSu Pitts, Sidney Fox and Jack Oakie, as they impressed themselves upon the cartoonist's consciousness in Universal's picturization of the Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman satire, "Once in a Lifetime," now convulsing audiences at the Rialto.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

MR. RODNEY COLLIER'S announcement from the Rialto Theater that following the run of "Once in a Lifetime," the satire that is currently making laughter epidemic, Boris Karloff will occupy the screen in Universal's picturization of J. B. Priestley's "The Old Dark House," occasions the thought that while Mr. Karloff may have deemed his make-up for "Frankenstein" the height of something - or - other, at that time he hadn't, to quote Mr. Jolson, seen nothin' yet!

BORIS KARLOFF

Little did he reck how soon he was to find out what being a mmumy is like! For, even then, some imaginative soul was conceiving a fantasy called "Im-Ho-Tep," a story about a mummy that comes to life after 3,400 years—a siesta that makes old Rip Van Winkle's catnap of twenty years look like insomnia! Mr. Karloff is playing the mummy.

The process of mummification, it seems, is largely comparable to being molded into a life-size mud pie. The ordeal begins with a period of about four comparatively motionless hours in a barber's chair in Jack Pierce's make-up emporium.

First, the face is covered with spirit gum. Over this is spread a layer of thin linen. When this is dry, the Karloff physiognomy is smeared with varnish, giving rise to the impression that, physimahogany, after all, may be the word. The coating of clay, to come later, they say, will adhere only to varnish. This clay, by the way, has to be dried thoroughly, because when the mummy comes to, it has to fall away like dust. Something like 1,000 yards of gauze, rotted artifically by a heating process, in the meantime, has been wound around the Karloff carcass. The rotting is necessary, so that when he comes to life it will not be too difficult to break his bonds.

Through all of this complicated operation, Boris just sits. Whether he thinks or not, I wouldn't know. But it is fairly certain about the sitting. There is nothing else he can do.

Hours and hours after Karloff's scientific aging, the scene was shot. It could be taken but once, as goes without saying, so had to be right. To insure this essential perfection, Lon Chaney's legitimate successor as the sole actor entitled to a degree of D. D.—Doctorate of Disguise—had to stand in his mummy case another hour or two while the lights and cameras were set. The whole experience probably brought back vivid memories of the time, not so far back, when he was chauffeuring a cement truck!

And in a case like that, what does a guy do if his nose itches?

So the gift volume of "Two Maids Go to Market," Laurence Schwab's first novel, published by Covici-Friede, came duly to hand and, as far as I have got, is a breezily written story of the musical comedy world in which two sharply contrasted youngsters from a village in Maine tackle the Big Town, fall in love with the same man and—

I'll let you know later.

And Jack Powell, the drum-stick virtuoso scoring one of the outstanding personal hits in Ed Wynn's "Laugh Parade," joins that select list of grateful artists, headed by Ruth Etting and Mitzi Mayfair, and goes philosophical in a letter dated October 20, and reading as follows:

"Dear Mr. Bell:—The capacity for appreciation is the most glorious gift we have! How long would any of us be happy if no appreciation came our way? No matter how great a man or woman becomes, he or she lives alone upon appreciation. Many of our greatest figures in art, letters, science and statecraft died of broken hearts, disappointed at not being appreciated for their worth, while yet in life.

"Applause to an actor is 'his everything' and complimentary tribute from a 'dramatic critic' is something he cherishes for a lifetime.

"It is with grateful appreciation that I acknowledge your kind review of my humble efforts with Ed Wynn's 'Laugh Parade,' currently at the National Theater.

"For years I have played Washington, and always look forward to return engagements with eager anticipation.

"In conclusion, may I again thank you, and wish you and yours the best of everything.

"Cordially (Signed),

Not many of the boys and girls back of those footlights are so thoughtful—or such conservationists of form and substance!

It was suggested a day or two ago that we probably had missed an instance or two of the favorite players' being visible in two or more theaters at the same time this week. Well I should say so! ZaSu Pitts, for instance, is currently on view in "Once in a Lifetime," at the Rialto; "Madison Square Garden," at the Earle, and "The Crooked Circle," at the Columbia. No wonder she is in a Los Angeles hospital in a state of physical collapse, the precise seriousness of which is not known at the moment!

There is on its way to the local screen one of those infrequent combinations of story, stars and direction that spells sure-fire box-office appeal. I mean, "Red Dust," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer opus which finally brings together the two players who seem to have been, as the advertisements already proclaim, "born to costar"—Jean Harlow and Clark Gable, aided and abetted by Mary Astor and Gene Raymond, supported in turn by Tully Marshall, Donald Crisp and a Chinese comedian whose name I do not recall, if I ever knew it. Combining the familiar elements of "Rain," "Passport to Hell," "Kongo" and others of the epics of the outlands, "Red Dust" still manages to strike fire by virtue of the vivid performances of its principals.

If a complete surrender to the task in hand, an utter abandonment to the vagaries and occasional vulgarities of an abandoned young siren of the swamps and complete conviction count for anything, the role of Lily is the best thing Miss Harlow has done. It betrays none of the momentary lapses from photographic fidelity to character such as from time to time obtruded themselves in "Red-Headed Woman." And in the role of the young boss of the Sumatran rubber plantation—or wherever it was—Clark Gable has a chore wholly within the compass of his abilities. This roughneck job will largely eradicate the depressing memory of his desolate groping about in the role of Ned Darrell in "Strange Interlude."

"Red Dust" is pretty strong meat, but it seemed to satisfy the appetite of an enthusiastic midnight audience at Loew's Fox last Thursday midnight, and will do no less when it is shown right out in public.

"Red Dust," incidentally, is the picture that was in the making when the bitter tragedy of her husband's death overtook Jean Harlow. Many who evidently keep tab on this department's matutinal activities have inquired if Miss Harlow betrays anything of the tremendous nervous strain under which she must have been working during the closing sequences of the picture. She does not.

Hot cakes right off the griddle, but without much syrup: Deems Taylor, who composed "The King's Henchmen" and "Peter Ibbetson," produced by the Metropolitan Opera Co., in New York, is writing music for "The Rape of Lucrece," Thornton Wilder's translation of "Le Viol de Lucrece," by Andre Obey, which Katharine Cornell will present in New York in December . . . Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Lowe, who supply symphonies and syncopation for the Shoreham, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Vallee over the weekend at the Army-Yale football game and the Vallee camp on Lake Keyser, Me. . . . Lou Holtz, who never got here with "Humpty Dumpty," has been engaged by Lew Brown and Ray Henderson for "Forward March," but may not join the show until after its current engagement at the National . . . Eddy Gilmore, statistical stentor of the Loew organization in Washington, has figured out that Art Jarrett, canarying at the Fox this week, will sing 135 numbers during the engagement—radio included. . . . Capt. J. B. McKenzie, organizer of the Fox Military Band, is busy assembling a symphony orchestra for the Palace. . . . Nothing less than a round trip to beautiful Bermuda will be awarded the lucky one at Arabian Nights Ballroom on Wednesday night, October 26. . . . Kate Smith is being given top billing in "The Big Broadcast," coming to town Friday . . . Brooke Johns' "Fourteen Marylanders," at the Shoreham, are a banjo ensemble that do some very elegant plinkety-planking . . . Goode Montgomery is doing the hot stepping with them, she probably having been named after the county in which Brooke does his gentleman farming!

Since this is an organ of public information, I suppose there should be a stop here.

DR. GIBSON TO HOLD ALEXANDRIA REVIVAL

Will Preach at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Two Nights This Week.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Rev. Dr. Churchill J. Gibson, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Richmond, will hold a mission in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, this city, tomorrow and Wednesday nights. Dr. Gibson is one of the best known of the younger group of clergy in the Episcopal Church. His father, the late Right Rev. R. A. Gibson, was the sixth Bishop of Virginia, and his grandfather, the Rev. Churchill J. Gibson, was for many years rector of Grace Church, Petersburg, Va.

Dr. Gibson was born while his father was rector of the Episcopal Church in Parkersburg, W. Va., and was educated at the Episcopal High School, Alexandria; the University of Virginia, and the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. His first charge was rector of Christ Church, Luray, with charge of the mountain missions in that vicinity. During the World War he served as chaplain of the 110th Field Signal Battalion of the Thirty-fifth Division of the A. E. F., and at present he is a lieutanant colonel chaplain of the Reserve Corps.

At the close of the war, Dr. Gibson became rector of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Church, Lexington, which ministers to the students of Washington and Lee University and the Virginia Military Institute. Here he made a national reputation for his unusual ability to interest students in religious work, and was frequently a speaker at national student conventions. After ten years service here he was called to St. Mary's Church, Ardmore, Pa., and from there to Richmond.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to pass through Alexandria tomorrow afternoon, en route to Baltimore, and plans are being made by the Democrats of the city to meet the train at Union Station, Alexandria, if arrangements can be made for a brief stop of the train.

The Alexandria chapter of the Red Cross will open the flour-distribution center again at 10 o'clock this morning at the George Mason Hotel.

A meeting of the Fourth Ward committee of Alexandria, with Nicholas J. Lawler, chairman, will be held tonight at the Boyd-Carlin Motor Co., corner Alfred and Prince streets, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Louise Marie Merhling, 47, widow of J. W. Merhling, died yesterday at her home, 402 Hume avenue, Alexandria, and funeral services will be held at 7 o'clock tonight, the body to be sent to Manasquan, N. J., for burial. She is survived by one daughter.

Labor Roosevelt Opposition Denied

Progressive League Cites Telegrams "Refuting" G. O. P. Claims.

(Associated Press.)

The National Progressive League said last night it had telegrams from fourteen labor leaders "repudiating the document * * * recently issued by the labor division of the Republican national committee" which gave the "inference * * * that they are opposing the election of Gov. Roosevelt."

The circular, which bore the names of eighteen labor leaders, the league said, "purports to say that the officers of the various national unions whose names are attached to it are opposed to the tariff plank of the Democratic national platform."

The league, organized to support Roosevelt, quoted telegrams from Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; Philip Bock, of New York; Thomas Kennedy, of Indianapolis; William Kohn, Long Island, N. Y.; T. F. McMahon, of New York; Philip Murray, of Pittsburgh; Martin Francis Ryan, of Kansas City, Mo.; Francis J. German, of Providence, R. I., and Felix J. Belair, of Washington.

Naumburg, Germany, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Count Arthur Posadowsky-Wehner, a prominent member of the old imperial regime, died today at the age of 87. He had served as minister of interior, and from 1897 to 1907 he was deputy chancellor, resigning as a result of a quarrel with Prince von Buelow.

In 1920 he declined reelection to the Reichstag because of his age, but he took a seat in the Reichstag, and since 1928 he had served in the Prussian Diet, of which he was the oldest member. He was affiliated with the Emall nationalistic Volksrechtpartei.

U. S. Seen World Hope In Economic Recovery

Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—President Joseph Motta of the Swiss Confederation said in a broadcast to America today he was convinced the United States could contribute more than any other nation to the restoration of economic health.

He expressed gratification over the United States collaboration with the League of Nations.

Fire Wipes Out Man Who Canceled Debts

Ryerson Station, Pa., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Edward McCracken, the village storekeeper here who started the year 1932 by wiping from his books nearly $10,000 owed him by farmers, lost his home, his store and filling station by fire today.

McCracken said he let fire insurance policies covering his property lapse last week.

Cash and Hats as Prizes To Make 13 Women Glad

What kind of hat should Irene Dunne wear?

There's a type of hat adapted for every one, as every woman knows, and there's a hat best suited for Miss Dunne.

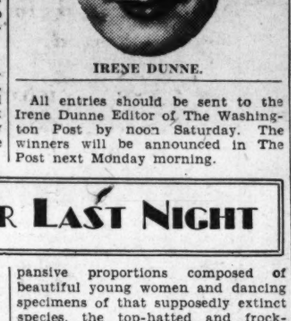
Thirteen prizes will be given for the thirteen best pictorial designs. For the best, a cash prize of $10 will be given; second and third best will each be given a $5 hat by the Hecht Co., and each of the next ten best will receive a guest ticket to the picture, "13 Women," produced by RKO-Radio Pictures, and opening Friday at RKO-Keith's Theater.

Here are the rules of the contest:

Draw a hat on Irene Dunne's head. Do your art in watercolor, crayon, pencil, ink or oils. Remove or add some hair to the sketch, as you think best. Make a toque, beret or any type of hat. Adjust it at the angle thought to be the most fetching.



IRENE DUNNE.

All entries should be sent to the Irene Dunne Editor of The Washington Post by noon Saturday. The winners will be announced in The Post next Monday morning.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

NATIONAL

By NELSON B. BELL.

Some lilting tunes, a few speedy blackouts, a comedy skit or two that embody real ideas, and some others that do not, a horde of dancers, three or four accomplished instrumentalists, solo specialties, dizzy ensemble numbers, about the usual amount of off-color humor, striking costumes, dazzling girls, no attempt at scenic or pictorial grandeur, save only in the first-act finale, "Restless," and a noticeable bewilderment on the part of cast and chorus—these are the jumbled impressions following an evening in the theater that approximated little more than a dress rehearsal of a revue that may or may not be whipped into acceptable shape for Broadway. There is no way of telling at this juncture in its preparation.

As it was presented last evening, after six preliminary performances in Philadelphia, this new Brown and Henderson production could be appraised only as a magnified vaudeville show. As a revue, it lacked cohesiveness, form and direction. In the cast were players making their first appearance last night; at least one other who only joined the show Saturday. Under the circumstances, those involved behind the footlights did remarkably well; those out front, even better in the matter of manifest appreciation. There has not previously been so much applause in the National Theater this season.

"Forward March" stresses its songs and dances. The comedy sketches, with one or two exceptions, are merely stop-gaps. Of the songs, "It's Great to Be Alive," sung by Gracie Barrie, who recently completed a triumphant engagement of three weeks at the Earle, made her first appearance in her present part Saturday night and is busily engaged rehearsing new numbers to be sung later in the week; "Home to Harlem" and "Old Mother Nature," by George Dewey Washington, supported by the Will Vodrey Singers; "Let's Call It a Day" and "I Hate to Think You's Growing Old, Baby," sung by Milton Watson and Carolyn Nolte and Mr. Watson and Sally Sweet, respectively, and "Love and Rhythm," by Joan Abbott, seem to have the best chance of wide popularity.

Nan Blackstone's "I'm a Good Girl," done as a pianologue number, is a rowdy riot. Raymond Baird and Sally Sweet knock the customers, already ga-ga, trying to follow the printed program's disorganized line of march, for a complete loop in a tenor saxophone-song-dance interlude. Another individual specialty that clicks is the eccentric dance executed by Malissa Mason in the second act. Miss Mason is the dancer seen with Roger Wolf Kahn's orchestra in a Vitaphone short "The Yacht Party," at the Metropolitan recently and immediately celebrated in these columns as stellar revue material. Well, here she is!

Comedians are thick as flies in many scenes, but there is nothing much for them to do. Smith and Dale, who made their debut in the piece last night, are for the time being using skits that are familiar to Washington, but will have new material later in the week. Hugh Herbert's sketches were practically all deleted last night and I understand his notice has been handed in. Eric Cowley, the English comedian—in the George Huntley manner—last seen here in "Hay Fever," is to all intents and purposes wasted. Sam Dody wanders in and out honoring the merest bits. And so it goes.

There is a mixed chorus of expansive proportions composed of beautiful young women and dancing specimens of that supposedly extinct species, the top-hatted and frock-coated chorus boy. Many of the dancing teams that render yeomen's service I am unable to identify. No such difficulty exists, however, in the case of the Aber Twins, dancing violinists, two charming and talented blondes.

Altogether, an interesting, if experimental, evening in the playhouse. No matter upon what day or evening you attend this week, you will be generously entertained by a large group of individually competent people. Whether you will see a finished and smooth-running revue, remains to be seen. Who can tell? Probably not even Brown and Henderson!

GAYETY

"WHIRLY-GIRLIES." Empire Burlesque attraction, featuring "Happy" Hyatt, Harry Stratton, Bert Saunders, Dorothy DeHaven, Rosemond Mae and "Ritzy" Phillips, Lillian Murray and Georgia Sothern guest stars. Reviewed Sunday night by William L. Wright.

By popular request "Miss Dynamite," otherwise Miss Georgia Sothern, is playing a return engagement at the Gayety with the "Whirly-Girlies," this week's attraction. Miss Sothern lifts what would be a very ordinary show into the rarified atmosphere of the excellent and unique. She has a method all her own of pleasing her audience and leaving them clamoring for more.

The "Modern Venus," Lillian Murray, is as beautiful as ever. She has a fair voice, but what she lacks in vocal equipment is more than compensated for in other ways. The generous applause following her appearances proves everyone is satisfied. Nuf sed.

Dorothy De Haven's difficult toe dances in the "Scene Beautiful" and "Egypt" were gracefully done. She also earned many encores with her fine singing in "Irish Melodies."

The less said of the comedy the better. "Happy" Hyatt and Harry Stratton were badly off form, many of their best scenes failing to click. Russell Trent, straight man, put over some good fun. "A Band Concert" was also good for considerable mirth.

Palmer Cote, acrobatic dancer, and Bert Saunders, tenor, complete the cast. They worked hard, as did the chorus of sixteen attractively costumed eye-fillers.

Pants Thieves Beat Victim.

Attacked by three colored men as he walked along the street near his home last night, Archie Bellelco, 22, of 20 H street northeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital for severe cuts and bruises. He told police his assailants fled with a pair of trousers he was carrying over one arm.

NATIONAL TITLE RACE NARROWS TO SEVEN TEAMS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE thinning ranks of the unbeaten and untied among the Nation's major football teams face new and fresh tests next Saturday, with Notre Dame claiming its traditional place in the limelight after three weeks of easy pickings.

The Irish invade Pittsburgh on Saturday to battle the Pitt Panthers in the outstanding contest on the week's program, the first real obstacle thus far in Notre Dame's avowed path to the national championship and the first game that will offer an accurate index of the power that has been mustered at South Bend this season.

Haskell, Drake and Carnegie were bowled over by the Irish with no more difficulty than so many ten pins. One hundred and seventy-seven points were rolled up by Notre Dame in these three early season tests, while the opposition hasn't yet pierced the Irish's 10-yard line. But Pitt, with its 18-to-13 victory over Army and its scoreless tie with Ohio State is calculated to extend Notre Dame.

Auburn and V. P. I. Get Breathers.

Of the South's Conference contenders, the surprising Auburn Team, fresh from its victory over Tulane, finds respite in the Mississippi contest, as does Virginia Poly, Kentucky's nemesis, in the game with Washington and Lee, once a formidable rival in Virginia circles, but hardly in the same class this season.

Tennessee, with its three victories and no defeats, and with a 7-to-3 triumph over Alabama as its chief recommendation, encounters a high hurdle this week in Wallace Wade's Duke Team, which is coming along rapidly after an 18-to-7 defeat by Auburn.

Vanderbilt's claim, marred by a 6-to-6 tie with Tulane, will be risked this week with a Georgia Tech Team that showed new-found power in a 43-to-14 victory over North Carolina. Georgia will meet a Florida team that is slightly off color compared to Bachman's Gator elevens of previous years.

Columbia Battles Cornell.

Lou Little's Columbia Lions, winner of five games by lopsided margins, has an opportunity to merit more serious consideration for its national and sectional claims in the game with Cornell, that will be one of the East's features. Dobie's Cornell eleven has a scoreless tie with Princeton as its chief recommendation, and will be completely rested after an open date last Saturday.

In another Eastern feature, Eddie Casey's unbeaten and untied Harvard squad encounters Brown, victor of Yale, and also unbeaten, but held to an 11-to-0 score by Tufts over the week-end. The critics deemed Harvard extremely lucky to eke out its 10-to-7 victory over Dartmouth in a game that saw the Big Green compile fourteen first downs to seven by Harvard.

Another battle of the unbeaten involves Washington's own Catholic University Team that engaged Holy Cross at Worcester. The Cardinals will carry into the battle a record of eleven consecutive varsity wins. The incentive for another victory is provided by the fact that Holy Cross was the last team to score a victory over C. U., accomplishing the feat in the opening game of the 1931 season.

Colgate, another of the unbeaten tribe in the East, anticipates easy sailing against Penn State, but the University of Pennsylvania will meet an improving Navy team that has high hopes of toppling the Quakers from their unbeaten pedestal.

Chicago is the only member of the unbeaten clan in the Big Ten to meet intraconference competition. Stagg's Maroons, a surprising victor over Indiana in its first Big Ten test, figures to triumph over Illinois which was trounced, 32 to 0, by Michigan last Saturday.

Northwestern and Minnesota, both with one victory, one defeat and one tie, will clash in the only other Big Ten battle of the day with defeat meaning elimination for one or the other.

Michigan, the Big Ten's outstanding claimant for national honors, faces only a mild test in a Princeton team that was held to a scoreless tie by Navy, and Cornell and that was beaten, 20 to 0, by Columbia.

Club Honors Landed by Dr. Webb

Indian Spring 20-Man Golf Team Scores; Other Results.

By DAVE HERMAN.

DR. THOMAS WEBB, who took his first golf lesson from Dave Thomson about twelve years ago, reached the rainbow's end yesterday by conquering Reese Hair, 3 and 1, to win the Washington Golf and Country Club championship.

Possessor of an all-around game, and an expert in approaching, Dr. Webb was forced to battle every hole of the 36-hole journey before springing the climax with a par 4 to Hair's 5 on the thirty-fifth green. He succeeds Henry Nicholson as champion.

So tight was the match that the finalists were all even at the end of the ninth, eighteenth and twenty-seventh. Early in the morning round, Hair stepped into a 2-up lead, but Dr. Webb rallied to put the issue in the balance. Dr. Webb won the nineteenth, they halved the next two, but Reese stepped out to even things by bagging the twenty-second.

Dr. Webb Scores Brace Of Birdies.

Steadying himself, Dr. Webb came back to nail birdies on the twenty-third and twenty-fourth and became 2 up. Hair, not to be denied, annexed the next two. Dr. Webb won the twenty-ninth and shot a birdie 3 on the thirty-first to recover his 2 up advantage. Hair took the thirty-third. Webb got another birdie on the thirty-fourth and ended the match on the thirty-fifth.

Both shot close to 80 in the morning round. In the afternoon, Dr. Webb was three over par for the seventeen holes.

Dale Drain defeated Capt. E. M. Lewis, 4 and 3, to capture the second flight honors, while Guy McKinney trimmed A. W. Howard, 6 and 5, in the third flight finals.

Indian Spring's twenty-man golf team, led by Larry S. Otell, champion, and Tom Belshe, the former titleholder, repulsed the invasion of the Army and Navy linksmen by winning the interclub match yesterday at the former's course, 19 to 9.

Army-Navy Wins Two Matches.

Otell and Belshe, paired on number one team, turned back the visiting aces, Maj. R. K. Sutherland, champion, and Capt. K. J. Fiedler, 2½ points to ½. Sam Rice, Washington baseball player and versatile left-handed golfer, teamed with the elongated J. W. Harvey, Jr., to blank Maj. E. A. Noyes and Capt. Francis, of Army and Navy, winning all three points.

Of the ten matches, Army and Navy was successful in two, the teams of Maj. Saunders and Capt. Shipp and Capt. Menzie and Surles scoring three points in their duels.

Results:

Maj. R. K. Sutherland and Capt. K. J. Fielder (Army-Navy), ½; Larry O'Tell and Tom Belshe (Indian Spring), 2½. Maj. E. A. Noyes and Capt. Francis (Army-Navy), 0; Sam Rice and J.W. Harvey, jr. (Indian Spring), 3. Capt. Luscomb and Maj. Robertson (Army-Navy), 1; Arthur Bahnsen and Alec Baumgartner (Indian Spring), 2. Maj. Dearing and Lieut. Macher (Army-Navy), 0; L. Fuchs and V. Brett (Indian Spring), 3. Capt. Hickey and Maj. Beck (Army-Navy), 0; Craig McKee and Pat Cook (Indian Spring), 3. Maj. Saunders and Capt. Shipp (Army-Navy), 3; John Hauser and R. C. Hubbard (Indian Spring), 0. Col. Fulton and Maj. Peabody (Army-Navy), 1; L. A. Strong and George Gist (Indian Spring), 2. Capt. Menzie and Maj. Surles (Army-Navy), 3; Homer S. Pope and R. T. Kruezburg (Indian Spring), 0. Maj. Brown and Maj. Sadler (Army-Navy), 0; F. A. Butler and W. B. Dickhout (Indian Spring), 2. Lieut. Pirie and Lieut. Bertschy (Army-Navy), ½; Howard Eales and E. B. Wagner (Indian Spring), 2½.

Argyle Country Club, playing host to Beaver Dam's 15-man team yesterday, defeated the Landover contingent, 15 to 9, with William P. DiEste, cross-handed champion, and P. W. LeDuc, No. 1 team, setting the encouraging example for their team with a clean point sweep over William Cox and Jess Baggett.

Argyle won five of the eight matches. J. B. Harmon and Bill Walsh scored three points, as did W. H. Flannery and T. Willmett. The teams of E. Imlay and R. M. Brown, and J. M. Palmer and N. Wilson gave Beaver Dam six points.

Beaver Dam played without the services of its two star players, Johnny Miller, champion, and Martin F. McCarthy.

Results:

William P. DiEste and P. W. LeDuc (Argyle), 3; William Cox and Jess Baggett (Beaver Dam), 0. J. B. Harmon and William B. Walsh (Argyle), 3; J. Dawkins and Fred Stringer (Beaver Dam), 0. George W. Wood and Dr. J. W. Dudley (Argyle), 2; D. N. Pratt and W. LaBille (Beaver Dam), 1. F. C. Columbus and Tim Reardon (Argyle), 2½; H. Bailey and D. E. Wattison (Beaver Dam), ½. W. H. Flannery and T. Willmett (Argyle), 3; E. B. Heimer and E. E. Bailey (Beaver Dam), 0. N. I. Gibson and E. S. Cassidey (Argyle), 0; E. Imlay and R. M. Brown (Beaver Dam), 3. E. L. Mifflin and William A. Taylor (Argyle), 0; J. M. Palmer and N. Wilson (Beaver Dam), 3. E. J. Mohler (Argyle), 1½; J. Abrams (Beaver Dam), 1½.

C. B. Dulcan captured top sweepstakes prize with 104—31—73 yesterday at the Woodmont Country Club. Howard Nordlinger emerged second with 80—5—75, and Robert Baum, third, with 88—13—75.

The mixed foursome tournament at Woodmont went to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller, with 107—25—82. Second prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Baum, with 111—26—85, and Mrs. Jerome Meyer teamed with Leopold V.

Celtics Rally To Nose Out Mohawks

District's Champions Bow, 12 to 6, in Last Period.

Passes Bring Victory to Alexandrians as 2,000 Watch.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

UNLEASHING a brilliant aerial attack in the final period, after having the worst of the argument for three quarters, St. Mary's Celtics scored two touchdowns to overtake and then forge ahead of the Mohawks to a thrilling 12-to-6 victory yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

A crowd of 2,000, keyed to a pitch that bordered on a frenzy by the breath-taking turn of events in that dramatic last period, crowded around the field as the teams waged their bitter struggle in the lengthening shadows of dusk.

Ed Leary's bullet-like heave, grasped by Johnny Lyon as he streaked for the goal line on a dead run, enabled the Celtics to tie the score midway in the last quarter.

But the greatest thrill of the game came in the last three minutes of play, when a 6-to-6 deadlock seemed inevitable.

Barry Saves Day For Celtics.

St. Mary's had the ball on its own 12-yard line when Al McAlwee's bad pass from center evaded Pepco Barry and rolled behind the goal line. Barry retrieved the bounding pigskin and managed to get back to the 6-inch line, where he was thrown.

Leary attempted to kick out of danger, but the boot went outside on the 14-yard line, where the Hawks took the ball. But the Indians could not penetrate the stone-wall defense of the fighting green-shirted eleven, and the Virginians assumed the offensive after Deckman's third attempted pass had been frustrated.

At this juncture, with Pepo Barry, the most consistent ground gainer in the Celtic back field, and Don McCann sweeping the ends and hitting off-tackle, St. Mary's made three consecutive first downs, bringing the ball to the 34-yard line. Here McCann uncorked a 20-yard heave to Leary, who threaded his way through a broken field behind Dick Turner's perfect interference, the remaining distance to the goal line.

Eddinger Runs to Touchdown.

Eddie Eddinger, who was much in evidence all afternoon, scooped up Leary's partially blocked punt, which had bounced to the Celtics' 12-yard line, and ran for the only Mohawk touchdown, in the third period.

Frank Stipe, elongated Mohawk end, almost succeeded in completely blocking the kick, one of three he dragged his lengthy frame in front of, but the ball got off and Eddinger was the victor in the ensuing scramble for its possession.

With Snitz Snyder bearing the brunt of the burden, the Mohawks crashed through the opposing wall for small but steady gains in the first period. The drive was unceasing until the 12-yard stripe hove in view, then the Celtics rallied and held for downs.

Tom Brew, Frank Holland and Clint Price were bulwarks on the defense for the invaders. Price was injured early in the game and removed from the fray, but later he returned and played a nice game.

The officials did most of the ball carrying in the first half. First one blew his whistle, walked over to the referee, and after a hasty conference, stepped off 15 yards. Seeing this, another gentleman in white knickers, promptly tooted his horn.

"Say, buddy," he said, "how about letting me carry that ball." So he walked 15 yards in the opposite direction. Evidently not to be outdone by the lesser officers of law and order, the referee then pounced on the pigskin and walked it for another gain.

While the officials were having their fling, Mr. Arthur Wondrack, coach of the Hawks, threw his helmet on the ground, uttered some remarks about the officiating, and even threatened the left guard of the Celtics, but to no avail. Each verbal onslaught brought fresh penalties.

First Win of Season To San Francisco U.

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The University of San Francisco won its first football game of the season here today by defeating the San Francisco Olympic Club, 16 to 0.

The Dons, coached by Spud Lewis, one-time Stanford star quarter back and more recently assistant coach at Northwestern, scored touchdowns in the first and second periods, added points by conversion and made two more tallies on a safety in the third quarter.

Dead Heat Features Longchamp Race Card

Longchamp, France, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Jean Pratt's Macaroni won the Prix Conseil Municipal, valued at 200,000 francs ($8,000) today, beating out Marcel Boussaic's Bara. Pourquoi Pas took third place. The distance was 2,400 meters and the winner paid 12 to 5.

The Prix la Foret brought a dead heat between James Hennessy's Lovelace and Count Derivaud's Assuerus and, oddly enough, they brought the same odds, 9 to 5, to win. Saturno Unzues' Lord Byron was third. The race, over the 1,400-meter distance, was valued at 75,000 francs ($3,000).

HOLY CROSS NEXT TEST FOR C. U.

Overconfidence Hurt G. W.; Bradley Is Star at G. U.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY increased its aura of invincibility in sterling fashion over the week-end, to hold the center of the local spotlight. Its 12-7 victory over Chick Meehan's Manhattan Maulers was the fifteenth consecutive game the team has won—counting scheduled meetings with its freshman, and informal battles. But its victory over the mismatched Manhattanites was not impressive enough to make one believe that it will continue its streak next Saturday when Holy Cross is met.

New York papers belittled C. U.'s victory.

The impending Holy Cross-C. U. game is another Alabama-G. W. contest, with different uniforms, different men, but identical ingredients. It will be a closer game, however, for no team can suppress this Whelan.

Georgetown should not feel bitter about that loss to Western Maryland. The Terrors are beginning to be Terrors again, after an arid period during which Coach Dick Harlow's scouts seemed lax about picking up real football material. Western Maryland has one of the greatest lines Washington will see this year, and two downright good ball toters in Shepherd and Merko.

Bradley Star for Georgetown.

One Hilltopper stood between Western Maryland and many goals. He was Wilmer Bradley, Georgetown's roving back, who must have accounted for half the tackles made by Georgetown Saturday. Bradley's technique of weathering those charging Terrors and remaining on his feet to bring down the ball carrier was superb. It was the greatest defensive use of the hands seen here this year.

George Washington had a tough break in meeting Tulsa without Fenlon, but Jimmy Pixlee's main complaint is that the Colonials actually were too darn overconfident. This is a strange and healthy virtue to come from a team upon the eve of meeting a club which already had won two

Baltimorean Is Out for Revenge

Previous Bout Was Ruled Draw; Four Other Battles.

Strickler and D'Capua Clash; Essinger to Face Antonelli.

CONFIDENT he flashed enough boxing stuff to win the decision in their first battle, and greeting philosophically the news that Frankie DeAngelo plans a quick knockout, Benny Schwartz, scrappy Baltimore bantamweight, goes after his Italian opponent tonight at Portner's Arena in Alexandria declared to be in the greatest shape of his career.

On the eve of the eight-round match that bids fair to lure a capacity crowd to the one-time brewery, Schwartz, through his manager, Goldie Ahern, popped this question in response to DeAlgeno's boast of a knockout.

"Who has DeAngelo knocked out?" Schwartz steps into the ring with a great boxing record to his credit. Seeking new fields to conquer, with his eyes fastened on the bright lights of Madison Square Garden, the Baltimore boy has made strong stands against three world's champions, Charlie Phil Rosenberg, Pancho Villa and Al Brown. He has boxed among others Johnny Buff, Wilbur Cohen and Johnny Erickson. He will open fire weighing 120 pounds, 2 pounds heavier than in their last draw bout. Ahern has indicated that Schwartz will go after DeAngelo right from the start, swinging both hands instead of one, as in the last match.

DeAngelo in Good Shape.

Harry Kid Groves, DeAngelo's manager, stated last night that the Italian puncher was in as good shape as when he laid aside the gloves a year ago. DeAngelo is punching harder and showing more flash and dash, according to Groves. He will tip the scales at 122.

Schwartz, before agreeing to box De Angelo, made Matchmaker Frankie Mann cut down the distance to eight rounds and consent to the referee rendering the verdict.

In their last bout Referee Short favored Schwartz, one of the judges called it a draw and the other voted for De Angelo.

Billy Strickler, the "Terminal Bulldog," will be brought into action in a six-rounder against Jimmy De Capua, of Miami, Fla. De Capua fought Joe Banovic at Twin City back in August and, although losing, made a good showing. In his career, Strickler has never taken the count. De Capua is said to be a greatly improved boxer.

In the six-round main preliminary Nick Antonelli, who has been whipped into tip-top shape by Johnny Bowen, fights Billy Essinger. Antonelli, greatly peeved because officials switched him from the semiwindup to the preliminary class, hopes to prove his right to a place on the next main bout, in his duel with Essinger.

The first bout goes on at 8:30 o'clock.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Schwartz to beat De Angelo. Strickler to beat De Capua, Antonelli to beat Essinger, Lowry to beat Raspi, Belt to beat Quigley.

each by 7-6 margins, and Oregon turned back Idaho, 32-0, in Pacific Coast Conference struggles.

In the South, Virginia Poly remained in the title hunt by beating Kentucky, 7-0, as did North Carolina State in turning back Florida, 17-6. Vanderbilt conquered Georgia, 12-6; Alabama walloped Mississippi, 24-13, and Georgia Tech won from North Carolina, 43-14.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: LAUREL RACE TRACK.

Well boy, if you were out early Saturday you probably saw horsemen with watches in hand and with eyes riveted on a big horse, burning up the track. That was Twenty Grand, reeling off a mile and a quarter in 2:07 2-5 and looking fit. But that's not cashing those win tickets that went to the cleaners the last time out. Wasn't my fault they made Notebook and Gallant Sir the chalk in the two big stakes. I had them right where they ran. My second choice, Battering Ram scored at a neat price and Syriac died after setting the pace. But remember, Syriac can beat Negopoli on a fast track. At least important people believe it. BILL.

FIRST RACE—BAND WAGON gets No. 1 post here and stands a good chance of taking the purse. Ran a neat second the last time and was winging out in front of Ladysman up in New York. LEAROYD, another that placed the last time, will have the benefit of Hanford's handling, but must break from the outside. SKY HAVEN has been running well here.

SECOND RACE—LORD JOHNSON jumped his way to a bang-up second to Huffy before setting the pace in the Chevy Chase Handicap. Was outclassed that day, but seems to have the situation well in hand in this field. SOME HERO and DANIEL SOOT appear the best of the others, and either can win if the top fellow makes mistakes.

THIRD RACE—WELL BUILT'S race behind Luna Mica earns my backing for this. Gilbert has been having tough luck with his Glen Riddle mounts, but should get this one home. A fast finisher, WELL BUILT will appreciate the added sixteenth here. KNIGHTS GAL and POMPOLO are the ones to fear.

FOURTH RACE—NIGHT PATROL has the edge on this field. Todd probably will take the mount. COLOSSAL is at tops and a dangerous one. BID A WEE for the show. An off track would move MATADI and MUD up.

FIFTH RACE—PILATE comes off those fast sprints and is capable at a mile and 70 yards. Seems like asking too much work from this one after that fast 6 furlongs Saturday, but I can't keep him off the top. CONAMORE'S last was a good effort. If there is to be a major upset it looks like SWATTER.

SIXTH RACE—AEGIS seems likely to draw Hanford, which is worth a length or two in any race, and this pair may never be caught in this speedy field. I'd prefer to let THE BEASEL get a Maryland race under his belt inasmuch as they seem to allow one conditioner here. LITTLE AMERICA, brilliant in the West, for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—I have a failing for BRIGHT BIRD, and it's just possible that that last sprint was the prep for this mile and a sixteenth. BRIGHT BIRD, normally a sprinter, has been working well at the route and may surprise in this open race. GRAND ACRE and MARSE ROBERT for the rest.

CABELL HERO AS FRATERS WIN, 6-0

Alexandrians Defeat Richmond Arrows Before 11,000.

Special to The Washington Post.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 23.—A fighting eleven from the Fraters Club, of Alexandria, got revenge for their lone defeat last year by the local Arrows when they supplied the scoring punch in the second period to push over a touchdown and hand the Arrows its third straight defeat, at the stadium, this afternoon, the score being 6 to 0 11,000 fans saw the battle.

The visitors, with Goodwin and Lankford engaging in a punting duel during the first period, were on even terms, but when Reed returned a punt early in the second period to the Arrow 30-yard line, they took advantage of their opportunity. A 5-yard penalty moved the ball to the 25-yard stripe and Coopy Goodwin shot a beautiful pass to Cabell, who was waiting on the 5-yard line and with no opponent near, he trotted over for the winning touchdown.

Goodwin's fine punting staved off a determined Arrow threat in the second half when the local eleven drove twice deep in Fraters' territory, losing the ball once on downs and again when a pass was grounded over the goal line. Superb playing by Gensmer, Bayliss and Brenner for the Fraters halted the Arrow drives.

The line-ups:

Lyon Parks Beaten By Columbia Heights

Scoring twice in the first period, and adding another touchdown in the last quarter, Congress Heights 125-pound gridders defeated the Lyon Park Lions, 19 to 0, yesterday. The victors experienced little difficulty in piercing their opponents' line and gained consistently throughout the fray. Wahler and Sweeny played well for the Heights eleven.

SENATORS 6-3 WINNERS IN BALTIMORE

Show Class in Beating Irvingtons in Debut.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 23.—"Blackie" Hoffman's plunge through the line for a touchdown in the final period enabled the Washington Senators to open their season with a 6-3 victory over the Irvington Athletic Club in an exciting game here today. It was Irvington's first defeat of the season.

By their victory the Senators, playing their first season, earned the right to meet St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, Va., and the Washington Mohawks, in the race for South Atlantic pro honors. Irvington defeated the Celtics, 12-0, in a game played here last week.

Displaying surprising strength in its front line defense, the Senators held Irvington at a safe distance from the goal line throughout the fray. Irvington, however did approach close enough to kick a field goal, which Joe Bauer, former Navy star, sent spinning through the uprights in the third period.

Irvington failed to make any appreciable gains through the stalwart Senator line, gaining only six first downs in the entire game. The visitors pounded their way through the local team for eighteen first downs, but not until Hoffman's fourth-quarter plunge did they exhibit a scoring punch

"Ox" Bordeau and George Ekaitis played brilliant football for the home team. "Bozie" Berger and Hoffman shone for the Washington eleven.

Northeast Trojans Win From Hessicks

Playing before a large crowd yesterday at Burroughs field, the Northeast Trojans, a leading contender for city 135-pound honors, defeated the heavier Hessick Coalmen, 18 to 0.

The Trojans lost no time in scoring, shoving over their first six-pointer early in the first period after a sustained drive from midfield, Juliano carrying the ball over. Again in the second quarter the eventual winners marched down the field, the drive culminating in another touchdown. The Trojans added a third and final touchdown in the last period.

Brentwood Hawks 7-2 Victims of Mercurys

Scoring in the latter stages of the fourth period, the Mercury unlimited football team defeated the Brentwood Hawks, 7-2, in an exciting game yesterday at Mount Rainier.

Brentwood scored on a safety in the second quarter when Reddington, Mercury center, made a bad pass to Suit, who was tackled behind his own goal line.

Mercury opened up a determined offensive in the third period that netted five consecutive first downs and brought the ball to the 12-yard line, only to lose possession of the pigskin on a fumble. Healy and Brown did most of the rushing.

Again in the fourth period the Wingfeet initiated an offensive that penetrated deep into the Hawks' territory. This time Brown carried the ball over on a 12-yard run off-tackle.

CATHOLIC U. MEETS HOLY CROSS NEXT

impressive victories over them, as had Tulsa over George Washington.

Mediocre blocking (incidentally, C. U. is the only real blocking team in Washington this year) was one of the elements that worked against George Washington, Pixlee believes. He promises a better team for the Iowa game of Friday night—a team that will play 60 minutes of football, not 30, as the Colonials did last Saturday.

G. W. Outrushed Tulsa.

G. W. outrushed Tulsa on straight plays, but like so many teams before them, fell before the dumbfounding aerials of the Golden Hurricane. The very nickname of the Tulsa team should have been a warning to G. W. Had they so soon forgotten "Hurry" Cain?

Maryland finally climbed back on the winning bandwagon, and it could do little besides that against St. John's. V. M. I. is next on the list, and it is hoped that the momentum achieved in the St. John's game will carry the Old Liners over the Cadets. They'll need plenty of it now, with Poppelman out for the season for the mere reason of rendering a freshman hors de combat. It would have been all right for him to knock the plebe cold on a flying tackle or a straight arm, but when he saves time and dispatches him with some extra-curriculum vigor, he gets fired.

There ain't, as you may have heard once or twice before, no justice.

6 Good Soccer Games Mark Opening of Season Here

Capital City and Recreation Leagues Start Play; Rosedales and Park Views Tie at 1-All in Feature of Day.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

SOCCER'S eighth season in the District of Columbia was inaugurated yesterday with one of the most brilliant opening days in the history of the sport here. Six games were played, and with a lone exception all were closely contested. The Capital City and Recreation Leagues each played three games.

In the Capital City, Columbia Heights Grays trounced Concord, 7 to 1; Gaithersburg stopped Brandywine, 2 to 0, and Marlboro defeated Rockville, 5 to 2. The reorganized Recreation League proved conclusively that it is ready to furnish the fans with big league soccer. All of the games were well contested and many of the youngsters showed flashes of brilliance that augurs well for the future.

Rosedale-Park View In Feature.

The best struggle of the day in the Recreation brought together Rosedale and Park View, old rivals. After a well-fought game, the final whistle sounded with the score appropriately standing 1 to 1. Virginia Avenue had difficulty in stopping New York Avenue, 3 to 0, and Raymond eked out a 2-to-0 decision over Bloomingdale.

Although Columbia Heights won about as it pleased against Concord, the Northwest boys must show decided improvement in games with other teams in the league to live up to the hopes of Manager Edwards for the title. The little Concord eleven really gave the Heights squad a battle in the second half, and Nix, at goal for the Germans, made several unusual saves. Louie Koenel was in rare form for the winners, flashing past Concord backs like a shadow. He dented the losers' goal three times.

Gaithersburg looked like it is about ready to make a real bid for the league title. Ward played a brilliant defensive game and also contributed the first goal for the Montgomery County kickers 25 minutes after the start, when he headed under the crosspiece neatly from a corner by Smith. The latter also played well, in fact, the whole Gaithersburg aggregation was clicking.

Recreation League Teams Impress.

Those who came to laugh at the debut of the young Recreation League left with only praises on their tongues. The Rosedale-Park View game demonstrated that the playground youngsters have finally caught the idea of dribbling and passing. Rosedale scored in the early minutes of the game on a nice drive by Simmons and the Park View eleven equalized late in the game, when Hurlitz headed in like a veteran.

New York Avenue and Virginia Avenue put up a nice game and aside from the fact that most of the victors were shod with regulation soccer shoes, while but a comparatively few of the losers had these helps, there was little to choose between the two. Harding, at right back for Virginia Avenue, will be heard from in a big way before the season is over.

Raymond and Bloomingdale staged a thrilling duel. Bill Connor's Raymond boys were leading, 1 to 0, at half time and had to struggle every minute of the way in the second period to down the game Bloomingdale squad, Dellinger, Chance, Beall and Davis were the Bloomingdale stars, while Fox, Padgett and E. Smith shone for Raymond.

The Capital City League will meet tonight in room 313, District Building.

Blue Coals Swamped By Terry Eleven, 44-0

Terry's Service eleven continued its march toward another 150-pound District grid title yesterday, bowling over the Griffith Blue Coal aggregation by a score of 44-0 in a game played yesterday at Gonzaga field.

Terry's scored in every period but the second. Three drives resulted in as many touchdowns in the first period, and after that it was only a question of how wide the margin between the two teams would be.

Ed Scanlon, Divers, Tonker and Hudson ripped the Coalmen's line to shreds ploughing through for lengthy gains.

Frequent substitutions in the Terry line-up failed to halt the massacre and the eventual winners added four more touchdowns in the final half. Terry's lead the Independent League.

CENTENNIALS BEATEN BY 7-2 COUNT

Third Victory in Row Credited Brookland Boys Club.

STAVING off an eleventh-hour rally of the opposing team, the Brookland Boys Club defeated the Centennials, 7-2, for its third consecutive victory in the 150-pound division of the Independent League.

George La Sisses, swivel-hipped Brookland half back, scored the winning touchdown for his team in the second period on a sweeping end run of 24 yards.

Brookland threatened to score on no less than four distinct occasions only to be held for downs when within striking distance. The work of Nealon, Scagnelli and Newberry, all linemen, featured the Centennial defense on these goal-line stands.

McNally fell on a blocked kick behind his own goal in the third period, giving the Centennials a safety and two points, but preventing a touchdown being scored against his team.

In the final quarter the Centennials initiated a drive that threatened to win the game. Juliano, Foley and Bussink rammed through the line for huge gains and the team advanced to the 4-yard line. But with a touchdown and victory in view, the timekeeper's whistle halted hostilities.

Independent League Lead Goes With Marion Victory

Hoff's 40-Yard Pass to Licarione Leads to Only Score of Game as Maryland A. C. Eleven Bows, 6-0.

ED HOFF'S 40-yard pass to "Hike" Licarione, who stepped off the remaining 10 yards to the goal line, enabled the Marions to defeat the Maryland Athletic Club eleven, 6-0, at Seat Pleasant yesterday and to assume the lead in the Independent League championship race. A large crowd witnessed the game.

The teams waged a fairly even battle in the first period, but the Maryland attack began functioning on all cylinders in the second quarter and the team advanced to the Marion 5-yard line before being halted.

Both clubs resorted to a kicking game and Gene Manatt, Marion full back, surprised by outdistancing Ed Radtke, star booter of the suburban eleven.

Despite its numerous gains through the line, Maryland was outplayed by a wide margin in this respect. The Marions piled up nine first downs to the home team's four.

Marions Hold on One-Yard Line.

Maryland inaugurated another drive in the third period, advancing to the one-yard line with the aid of a penalty, but here the Southeast eleven rallied and held for downs. Manatt got off a 50-yard punt from behind his own goal line, putting the team out of danger.

Later in the same period, the green jerseyed Marion backs began smashing through the line for consistent gains to bring the oval to midfield. Here Hoff inserted his long heave to Licarione for the only score of the fray.

But Maryland had one last thrust left and it was used in the waning minutes of the final period. With Pat Butler and Kolley doing most of the rushing, Maryland drove to its opponent's 20-yard line, but an untimely fumble by Dick Cady was recovered by alert Marion linemen.

Myles' work in the Maryland line was outstanding, while Radtke did the best work in the back field. Licarione, Shorb and Boyden played well in the line for the victors. Ed Hoff, Dick Hughes and Manatt shone behind the forward wall.

Mohawk Preps Down Marion Eleven, 20-0

Scoring in every period but the last, the Mohawk Preps defeated the Marion 125-pound eleven, 20 to 0, yesterday. The Hawks displayed a well-balanced offensive with a sturdy defense in turning back the fighting Marions. Dasher, Mitchell and Thorn scored for the winners.

Dutras First, Second In S. California Golf

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The golfing Dutra family, Olin and Mortie, made the Southern California open golf championship a one-two affair today, Olin adding the open crown to his P. G. A. championship and Mortie winning second honors.

Olin finished the 72-hole test at Brentwood Country Club with a total of 277 and Mortie came home with a 283.

Argyle, Indian Spring Win in Interclub Golf Matches.

Freudberg for third honors with 98—13—85.

The pro-amateur sweepstakes tournament this afternoon at Woodmont is expected to attract twenty crack teams from the Middle Atlantic sector. Play will start around 1 o'clock. Baltimore pros with star simon-pure players will be well represented.

Today's eighteen-hole medal handicap tournament, sponsored by the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association at the National Women's course, will find the two chief winners of a similar event last year entered in the field of close to 100. They are Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring, who set the pace to win low gross honors, and Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, of Congressional, who annexed low net prize.

Eight additional entries were received yesterday by Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, president of the association, thereby boosting the list to 96. With post entries to be accepted, the field promises to soar over the century mark. Play will begin at 9 o'clock. Late entries include the names of Mrs. L. O. Cameron, former Chevy Chase champion; Mrs. John S. Supham, Mrs. Eric King, Mrs. Frank Purdon, and Mrs. F. M. Moore, all of Army and Navy.

Players are requested to pick up caddies at Wisconsin avenue and Bradley lane, turn left and follow Bradley boulevard to the club, Danny Burton, young Chevy Chase caddy, will assist Mrs. Keefer in running the tournament—the last of the year sponsored by the association.

Bowie-Pope Meet for Junior Honors.

The finals in the junior handicap match play tournament at the Columbia Country Club Saturday will find Buddy Bowie and Buddy Pope clashing for the title. In the consolation division Bobby Shelton and Marty West, jr., will vie.

Thirty-two will play this morning in the qualifying round of the Columbia Country Club women's championship. Match play begins tomorrow.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

UNEXPLAINED by science is the mystery of Angelo Faticoni, "the human cork," who could float on water in any position, and who could remain upright in water with his head above the surface, even though a 20-pound cannonball was lashed to his legs.

Faticoni could lie down and sleep in water, without danger of drowning. He was once sewed in a bag, weighted down with 20 pounds of metal, and thrown head first into the water. He quickly came to the top and, despite the weight, remained there motionless for 15 hours. Medical authorities became interested in his feats, and he submitted to tests at Harvard University, but the mystery was not solved. He often promised to divulge his secret, but never did, and carried it with him to the grave.

Sitka spruce veneer, sliced in sheets one-eightieth of an inch thick, can be cut and sewed much like ordinary fabric. In Hoquiam, Wash., the usefulness of this veneer was demonstrated in making articles of clothing and swimming suits.

Although the widely accepted conception of the difference between an animal and a plant is that the former can move, while the latter can not, this is not always the case. Many lower forms of animal life, as the sponge and sea squirt, remain fixed in one place during adult life. Some plants, as the Venus flytrap, respond very readily and quickly in movement to certain stimuli.

MAN AND CAT SAVED AS 3-ALARM BLAZE MENACES BUILDING

Baker's Helper Is About to Leap From Third Floor as Rescuers Appear.

A spectacular downtown fire, originating in a second-floor kitchen of the Western Lunchroom, 629 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, early yesterday, caused damage estimated at $1,000 and furnished spectators with two thrilling rescues from upper-floor windows.

First fire companies to reach the blazing building found the flames had gained considerable headway, and a second alarm was sounded. This was followed by a third, when flying sparks and leaping flames appeared for a time to threaten an adjoining building, occupied by the Central National Bank.

At the height of excitement, as firemen attempted to enter the blazing structure with lines of hose, a man appeared at a third-story window and shouted to the crowd that he was going to jump. Cries of warning from several hundred spectators apparently changed his mind, and a ladder was quickly raised.

Hysterical Cat Saved.

Aided by two firemen, the man was soon brought to safety. He said he was William Murry, 29, colored baker's helper. He was trapped on the third floor and, unable to reach the rear fire escape, decided to leap from a front window.

As Murray was being helped to the ground, an equally thrilling rescue was in progress at the rear. A black cat, found in one of the rooms on the fourth floor, was being carried to safety by a thoughtful fireman. The cat, however, resented his interest, and finally leaped to the shoulder of another firefighter.

Amid showers of sparks and shouts of brother firemen, the new custodian of the cat had his hands full, but managed to reach the pavement with the feline clinging to the back of his thick coat.

Butter and Sauce Rescued.

John Jenkins, colored chef, said that he was working over the kitchen stove when the flames "appeared from nowhere." Grabbing several pounds of butter and a bowl of apple sauce, he fled to the street.

Firemen expressed belief that the blaze originated in a defective flue. It spread rapidly and for a time appeared to be out of control. Additional engine companies responding to the third alarm soon extinguished the flames, but not, however until the interior of two floors had been completely wrecked.

It was recalled that about a year ago two men lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the inside of the same building. The men were trapped on an upper floor.

EARTH INDUCTOR COMPASS SHOWN

Underwood & Underwood.

LEAGUE OF LAYMEN LISTENS TO SERMON BY BISHOP FREEMAN

Challenge of World Conditions Discussed at Special Cathedral Service.

Hundreds of laymen of the diocese of Washington assembled in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral yesterday afternoon to attend the special corporate service arranged for the Laymen's League and other laity, while many of the diocesan clergy marched in the procession preceding the service.

In the processional also was a group of laymen representing the founders of the new Laymen's League, including its president, Eugene Thompson, and Busey H. Howard, vice president for the province of Washington, and Richard W. Hynson, president of the chapter recently organized at Epiphany Parish.

The service was conducted by Canon Raymond L. Wolven, and the sermon, having as its theme the challenge of present day conditions to the religious life of laymen, was delivered by the Right Rev. Dr. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington. The lesson was read by the Dev. Dr. ZeBarney Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany and chaplain of the United States Senate. Special music was sung by the cathedral choir of men and boys under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster of Washington Cathedral.

More Christianity Needed.

Bishop Freeman welcomed the clergy and laity, stating that there could be no more fitting use for Washington Cathedral than to welcome them to what will ultimately come to be the mother church of the diocese. "Today's assemblage," declared the bishop, "is the highest witness to the value of the cathedral. My welcome comes from the heart."

The bishop in his sermon pointed out that even in the midst of the present economic crisis and stress the greatest need of the hour was to strengthen the spiritual and moral well-being of the Nation.

"We are in urgent need of better citizenship and more Christianity," declared the bishop. "We must restore the moral strength of the Republic. In the laity lies much of the future of the Christian Church. Like the clergy, they must keep aware of their trusteeship of the Christian faith and realize that the first obligation on every layman is the conservation of the Kingdom of Christ. The religion of the future will be the religion of both laymen and priesthood, both must retain their stewardship coming down to them direct from the Apostles."

Blames Lower Spiritual Tone.

Bishop Freeman expresed the belief that the whole economic problem and the many vital questions of the hour will find their solution in the determined attitude of Christian men. The bishop traced the present industrial upset to what he termed the lowered moral and spiritual tone of the United States at the present time.

"Christianity is not a spent force," concluded the speaker. "It is just beginning to be a force. Upon the Christian church will depend the future happiness and security of this great Republic.

"Christian trusteeship comprehends everything in your lives," he told the group of laymen before him. "You must measure every act of your lives by the standard 'What would Jesus do?' In everyday life the principles of Christianity must be carried out. There is a tremendous need for the laity to support the clergy in these trying hours and to take its full share of the trusteeship of the Christian Church.

"Stand by the Church so that it may not suffer in the most critical period of human history," the bishop exhorted his congregation of laymen as he finished his stirring sermon.

After the conclusion of the service many of the laymen participated in a pilgrimage about the Cathedral Close, and to objects of religious devotion and interest therein, conducted by Canon John W. Gummere, of the Cathedral staff of clergy.

Miss Story, Playground Favorite, to Marry Soon

MISS VIRGINIA HELEN STORY.

Culminating an acquaintance of less than a year, the forthcoming marriage this winter of Miss Virginia Helen Story, popular playground director and basket ball official, and Byron Haight Neilson, former University of Utah football player, was announced yesterday.

No definite date has as yet been set for the marriage of Mr. Neilson and Miss Story, who is at present one of the directors at the Eckington Recreation Center.

Miss Story is widely known about the city as a basket ball official, having refereed the A. A. U. championship tourneys for the past four years. She played basket ball at Central High School and George Washington University, and before that was noted for her play in playground basket ball circles. Miss Story is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. Before going to Eckington Recreation Center, she became known to hundreds of children of the upper northwest section as director of the Twin Oaks Playground.

Mr. Neilson, son of Mrs. A. F. O. Neilson, is a graduate of the University of Utah and a native of Burley, Idaho. He is at present connected with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Miss Story is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Story, of 5717 Ninth street northwest.

MERGER OF TWO AID GROUPS IS PLANNED TO FACILITATE WORK

Citizens Relief Association and Associated Charities Due to Be Combined.

Merger of the Citizens' Relief Association with the Associated Charities loomed as a probability last night, with announcement that the Board of Trustees of the Community Chest would be asked at their meeting this afternoon to approve such a step.

The boards of managers of the Citizens' Relief Association and the Associated Charities have agreed that the latter group assume the relief budget of the former as regards funds from the Community Chest and approval of the Chest trustees will make the merger final.

Announced By Ufford.

Announcing plans for the merger yesterday, Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Associated Charities, called attention to the fact that the budget committee of the Chest has frequently raised the question of why the Citizens' Relief Association should be a separate unit of the Chest.

Ufford declared that for purposes of simplification in budget accounting, the whole picture of the relief needs of the District as viewed by the visitors of the Associated Charities should be presented in a single item by the consolidation of the estimates of the two groups it is planned to merge.

Favored By Chest Group.

Mr. Ufford pointed out that the executive committee of the Community Chest has already given its approval to the proposed budget merger, and it is confidently expected that the board of trustees will ratify the recommendation of this group.

NINE HURT WHEN CAR CRASHES INTO SHOP

Two Pedestrians and Seven in Auto Injured as It Mounts Curb.

Nine persons were injured last night, two seriously, when an automobile careened onto the sidewalk at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest and crashed through the window of a barber shop.

Attempting to avoid striking two pedestrians crossing in front of his machine, Harry Paul, 43, of 1232 I street northeast, lost control of the car, which ran onto the sidewalk and plowed through a window at 211 Sixth street northwest.

Despite Paul's efforts, the two pedestrians were struck and knocked down before his machine hit the sidewalk. A barber's chair was torn from the floor by the impact and the car stopped well back into the shop.

At Emergency Hospital the pedestrians gave their names as William C. Ober, 39, of 515 Third street northwest, and Regina Ober, 20, of the same address. Ober suffered a fractured left leg and severe bruises. Miss Ober, his sister, suffered lacerations and severe internal injuries.

Six passengers in Paul's machine were treated for minor bruises. They were his wife, a son, Peter; two daughters, Ruth and Rosie; John Kousais, 60, of Baltimore, and Mary Virgados, 43, of 609 L street northwest.

Motorist Is Bonded After Fairfax Crash

Peyton L. Hinkle, of South Port, Conn., was released from the Fairfax County Jail yesterday on a $1,000 bond. His arrest was the result of an accident late Saturday night on the cut-off on the Lee highway one mile south of the town of Fairfax, Va., when the car he was driving sideswiped the car of John W. Walsh, of 5407 Kansas avenue northwest, Washington, injuring Mrs. Walsh and her mother, Mrs. B. E. Rodgers.

Miss Elizabeth Asher, who was with Hinkle, was seriously injured and was taken to the Georgetown Hospital. Hinkle was charged with being drunk and with possession of ardent spirits. His trial will be held this morning before Judge Paul E. Brown, of the Fairfax Police Court.

Man's Hand Mangled In Accident With Saw

Catching his right hand in an electric saw, while working at his home in Centerville, Va., yesterday afternoon, Anthony Senes, 44 years old, suffered the loss of his index finger and the tips of the others.

He was brought to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition was said to be undetermined. The index finger was amputated. The ends of the other fingers on the same hand were badly mangled.

Hoss Thieves Roaming in These Parts

A sorrel mare, harnessed and ready to go, must have been too great a temptation for thieves who entered a stable owned by Bernard Freeman, in the rear of 1261 First street southeast yesterday and stole the steed. About fifteen other housebreakings were reported to police, in which fishing poles, golf clubs, jewelry and clothes were discovered missing.

Thieves broke the glass in a door of an automobile owned by Esther W. Lomax, of the Conard Apartments, when she parked it in front of her residence early yesterday and stole clothing valued at $170. The tires were stolen from the automobile of Joseph E. King, when he parked it at Seventh and G streets southeast.

Two men who tried to force their way into the home of Mezin W. Ray, of 479 Maryland avenue southwest, by cutting a front shutter, were frightened away when Mr. Ray fired several shots at them with a shotgun. He told police that he thinks he hit one of the men.

A quantity of clothing was discovered stolen from a cleaning and dyeing establishment at 516 Minnesota avenue southeast by Clifton Davis, proprietor of the store. The merchandise was valued at $175. A number of golf clubs and several fishing poles valued at $40 were stolen from the front yard of 1700 Massachusetts avenue southeast. Hollister C. Sherman, owner of the sporting equipment, reported the theft to police.

Smoke Cloud Forces Police To Quit Chase

A furious 8-mile chase through downtown traffic, during which motorists and pedestrians scattered before a careening high-powered automobile, ended last night when two motorcycle policemen were forced to abandon the chase because of a heavy smoke screen loosed by the fleeing machine.

Policemen W. H. Bell and L. H. Peterson, attached to the Traffic Bureau, sighted the car at New Jersey avenue and M street northwest. The machine, they said, was traveling at a high ratee of speed as they fell in behind.

The driver, apparently realizing he was being followed, increased his speed, and at the same time a thick, blinding cloud of smoke enveloped the pursuing policemen.

Zig-zagging from side to side, the fleeing machine roared on its flight. Through cross streets and alleys the chase led, until at Fourth and T streets northwest the policemen were forced to give up, blinded by the acid smoke. A lookout was later sent for the car.

FORCING ENTRANCE, MAN FIRES AT DOOR

Threatens Wife of Bolling Aviator and Flees After She Calls Police.

Refused admittance to the home of Mrs. Alice Knight, wife of a Bolling Field aviator, at 1312 Tenth street northwest, an unidentified man last night forced his entrance, fired two shots through a doorway, threatened her life and escaped before the arrival of police.

Mrs. Knight said the man confronted her at the front door and demanded entrance. He said he wanted to see a woman, whom, he declared, lived on the second floor. Informed the party did not live in the house, the man produced a gun and on threat of death, forced his way past Mrs. Knight.

Running to a telephone Mrs. Knight called police. Scarcely had she hung up than two shots were heard on the second floor. The man unable to gain entrance to a room, fired through the door.

Loudly voicing his disdain, the man lumbered down the stairs, Mrs. Knight declared, and after again threatening her life, disappeared down the street. Police were looking for him early today.

Policeman Is Hurt In Making Arrest

Prisoner and Captor Are Treated at Hospital After Fight.

A battle between a policeman and a man he was attempting to arrest early yesterday resulted in both participants requiring hospital treatment.

Private Raymond M. Kesselring, of the Second Precinct, tried to arrest James McGowen, 27 years old, of 56 New York avenue northwest, at Thomas Circle.

McGowen is alleged to have resisted the policeman. Following a brief scuffle, the prisoner was sent to Freedmen's Hospital with severe injuries to his head and body. Kesselring was treated at Emergency Hospital for a possibly fractured hand and cuts and bruises. McGowen was charged with assaulting an officer.

Paper Spike Injures Policeman.

Policeman L. I. Mason, station clerk at the Second Precinct, suffered a severe laceration to his wrist last night when he lost his balance and fell against a metal paper spike while reaching for a pen. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital and returned to duty.

MASS IS DEFENDED IN CATHOLIC SPEECH

Is Much Misunderstood by Foes of Church, Says Edward Heffron.

"The mass is at once the most loved, the most hated and the most misunderstood thing in the world," declared Edward Heffron, of the National Council of Catholic Men, speaking yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Catholic Evidence Guild in Franklin Park.

"Catholics know Mass to be their highest act of worship, the very core of Catholicism. Those who dislike Catholicism dislike the mass. Those who misunderstand Catholicism misunderstand the mass," he said.

"Nevertheless, its institution is very clear in the Bible. At the Last Supper Christ said, 'This is my body, this is my blood,' not 'This represents my body and blood,' but 'This is my body and blood.'

"Since He came to reveal and not to deceive, the conclusion is obvious. Then He offered this, His body and blood 'unto the remission of sins.' And finally he enjoined the apostles to do likewise. The apostles were commanded to do the self-same thing, to change bread and wine into His body and blood and to offer them up for the remission of sins. That, precisely, is the holy sacrifice of the mass."

Every Sunday at 4 p. m. the Catholic Evidence Guild has two lay speakers in Franklin Park, who are duly authorized by Archbishop Curley.

Girls of Western Hold 'Sing' Today

Reserves Group to Gather at Y.W.C.A. for Autumn Campfire Event.

More than 100 Girl Reserves of Western High School will hold their autumn camp fire "sing" around the fireplace in the girls' clubroom at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest, today. The event is a part of Girl Reserve week, which began last Friday.

A musical program yesterday featured the Sabbath activities of the week with a number of renditions by the Girl Reserve Glee Club and the Toy Symphony Orchestra of Camp-Stay-at-Home at Barker Hall at the Y. W. C. A.

Tomorrow afternoon, the newly organized Girl Reserve Club at Washington-Lee High School, Clarendon, Va., will hold its first joint meeting with 200 girls in the senior club and 150 girls in the junior club.

Wednesday Girl Reserves at Dennison Vocational School will hold their annual costume Halloween party. Friday will see the fall rally of all Junior High School Girl Reserves at the Y. W. C. A. with formal installation of all new officers for 1932-33. This ceremony will begin at 4 o'clock. In the evening Eastern High School Reserves will hold a Halloween party at the Y. W. C. A. and the grade school reserves at 10 o'clock the next morning.

Cold Winter Predicted By Buffalo Scientist

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The coming winter will be colder than last year and the snowfall, especially in February and March, will be considerably greater, Prof. John A. Curtin, head of the science department of D'Youville College, announced tonight. He bases his predictions on observations of the size, number and rate of movement of sunspots during the past four months.

These solar storms, as Prof. Curtin terms them, are now diminishing in intensity and should reach their minimum in 1934, if they follow the normal cycle that scientists have observed during the past half century.

10 New Reptile Specimens Are Now on Exhibit at Zoo

Ten new reptile specimens which arrived several days ago are now on exhibition at the National Zoological Park and a dozen more are expected to arrive this week, Dr. William M. Mann, director of the zoo, announced yesterday.

The new specimens are five giant green tree frogs from Australia, the first of their kind ever acquired by the zoo; four spiny lizards from South Africa, and one horned frog from the Argentine. They may be seen at the new reptile house.

A dozen more reptiles should arrive the early part of this week. Dr. Mann said he did not know what type of reptile they are, but they come from Sumatra.

ALL SINS SAVE ONE CALLED FORGIVABLE

Dr. Vurpillot Asserts Only Offense Against Holy Spirit Is Excepted.

"He who by prejudice, error, ignorance or habit forgoes Jesus, or speaks ill of Jesus, may be forgiven; if he listens to the Holy Spirit, nothing is lost, salvation is possible," declared the Rev. Dr. Florian Vurpillot in his French sermon at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, yesterday afternoon.

The preacher took for his text, "All their sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and their blasphemies, but whosoever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness."

Dr. Vurpillot said in part:

"It may be said that the whole gospel of salvation holds in two words: Repentance, forgiveness; repentance on the part of man, forgiveness on the part of God. If we repent, all our sins shall be forgiven, even our sin against Jesus Christ, all our sins except one, the sin against the Holy Spirit.

"What a startling declaration. Is not the faith in Jesus Christ the one and only necessary thing? Does the gospel require another faith—a higher faith? Yes. The faith in Jesus Christ implies another requisite. Jesus refuses to be listened to unless we listen to the Holy Spirit, whose voice speaks in every one of us, whose action is felt in every one of us and whose organ is our individual conscience.

"Peter sinned three times against Jesus, but he listened to the Holy Spirit and was forgiven. Paul sinned against Jesus, but he listened to the Holy Spirit and was forgiven. But he who can not be forgiven is not the man today who sins against Jesus, but who muffles the divine voice speaking in us. How could he repent? By thwarting the dictates of his conscience or deadening that divine voice he puts himself out of the condition of repentance.

"By appealing to our conscience, or to the Holy Spirit working in us, Jesus has freed us from all intellectual or ecclesiastical bondage, to put us directly under his own yoke, which is also that of the Holy Spirit."

Dr. G. P. Atwater Dead in Brooklyn

Rites Today for Brother of Mrs. J. J. Dimon, of Washington.

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. George Parkin Atwater, 58, rector of Grace Protestant Church in Brooklyn Heights, N. Y., and brother of Mrs. J. J. Dimon, of Washington, who died Saturday of heart disease in Brooklyn, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Grace Church.

Dr. Atwater's sister, Mrs. Dimon, is the wife of the Rev. Dr. J. J Dimon, for 20 years rector of St. Andrew's Church here. He retired last year. Mrs. Dimon has been a resident of Washington for 22 years.

Besides his sister, Dr. Atwater is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marie Louise Atwater; a son, the Rev. David T. Atwater, and a daughter, Miss Mary Frances Atwater, all of Brooklyn.

TRADE EXPOSITION WILL OPEN TONIGHT

Green, Labor Chief, to Speak at Start of Chamber Industrial Show.

The eighth annual industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, lasting a week, will begin tonight at 7 o'clock at the Washington Auditorium. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will deliver the opening address, which will be broadcast over Station WMAL.

The doors of the auditorium will be thrown open at 7 o'clock, but the opening ceremonies will not take place until an hour later. More than 75 exhibitors, occupying in excess of 100 booths in the exhibition hall, will give away souvenirs to visitors at the exposition.

Alfred L. Stern, managing director of the exposition, announced last night that each night of the week has been assigned to some group. "Photography Night," tomorrow night, sponsored by the Master Photo Finishers Association, is expected to provide the largest display of photographic art ever seen here.

Wednesday will be "Civic Association and National Representation Night;" Thursday, "Fraternal Night;" Friday is Washington Chamber of Commerce Night, and Saturday will be "District National Guard Night."

Tickets to the show are obtainable gratis from exhibitors or the Washington Chamber of Commerce. Show hours will be from 2 to 5:30 p. m. and 7 to 11 p. m. daily through Saturday.

Rosary Defended By Father Coffey

Missionary Is Speaker on Catholic Radio Hour Broadcast.

The Rev. Thomas J. Coffey, missionary of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, preached the Washington Catholic Radio Hour's broadcast service from the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday. Father Coffey's subject was "The Rosary."

"The Rosary has often been criticized," said Father Coffey, "because of its simplicity. It has been said that it is a childish form of prayer. This we willingly concede. It is simplicity for which we should strive. Far better this than the bombastic orations which are called prayers, and which we hear so frequently at public gatherings. Surely in the Rosary there is nothing reminiscent of the tinkling cymbals and the sounding brass spoken of by St. Paul. Thank God if it be childish, for it must therefore be doubly pleasing to Him who has given us warning that unless you become as little children, you shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven."

Forty hours devotions are now going on in the church. Services today will be a high mass for peace at 12:15 noon, and holy hour tonight from 7:45 to 8:45. Tomorrow at 12:15 solemn high mass for reposition will be sung, and the solemn closing of the service will take place with a special procession at 7:45.

Man Victim of Sleep Powder.

An overdose of strong sleeping powder last night sent William Riley, 32 years old, of 1311 M street northwest, to Emergency Hospital in an undetermined condition. He was found unconscious by his landlord, Benjamin Johnson.

Reichman Speaks To Mormon Group

Effect of Labor-Saving Devices Are Described by Attorney.

Sociological conditions induced by the introduction of labor-saving devices into American industry during the twentieth century were discussed last night by Owen Reichman, attorney, at a meeting in the Washington Auditorium of the Mutual Improvement Association of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

"Human impulses, selfishness and stupidity must be brought under control and the spirit of cooperation, human sympathy, and mutual helpfulness granted recognition," Mr. Reichman declared before the Mormon group.

"In the past century," he continued, "the weight of human intelligence has been thrown in the direction of greater production. Today there is a demand for social intelligence, skill in the organization of human society with the end of greater happiness for the greatest number."

Four Boys Are Missing From Industrial Home

Four young boys were reported missing yesterday from the Industrial Home School, 2452 Wisconsin avenue northwest. Their disappearance was discovered shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning.

Police, who are searching for the youths, said they are Lloyd T. Stokes, 14, of 1532 Young street southeast; James Braswell, 16, of 2014 Ewarts street northeast; Thomas E. Finney, 14, of 808 Nineteenth street northwest, and James Davis, of 910 Seventh street southeast.

Musical Activities Center at Thomson

Many Bodies Hold Rehearsals at Twelfth and L Street Building.

Thomson Community Center, at Twelfth and L streets, is rapidly becoming a center of musical activity for the coming winter, due to activities of the Washington Light Opera Company, the Washington Civic Opera Company and the Chaminade Glee Club, all of which hold regular rehearsals Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings each week.

Children's music groups are also instructed at the center Saturday mornings and children's groups in tap and fancy dancing meet Tuesday afternoons. Drama groups are also affiliated with the center, namely, the Shakespeare Society and the Drama Guild.

Mrs. A. C. Driscoll, community secretary in charge of the center, also announces the organization of several language study groups on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, beginning this week, which include French, Spanish, Gaelic and Esperanto.
